Carter accuses big oil, threatens veto

Says companies trying to add $20 billion to natural gas price

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Accusing big oil companies of trying to add at least $20 billion to the price of natural gas, President Carter threatened on Saturday to veto the energy bill being considered by Congress if it conflicts with the interests of the people.

"I hate to veto a bill that a Democratic Congress passes," Carter declared, "but you can depend on it — I'll protect your interests when the bill comes to my desk."

Speaking to between 3,000 and 4,000 cheering, whistling supporters of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Henry Howell at a rally in Norfolk's Azalea Gardens, Carter endorsed Howell's populist, proconsumer stance and said the candidate is campaigning to "keep the big boys honest."

"We have the same problem in Washington about powerful companies having too much influence," Carter said.

"The gas companies are very powerful in Washington as you well know, and want to deregulate immediately and add a tremendous cost for the American public. ... $20 billion to the price of natural gas already discovered in Alaska alone."

In a Senate test vote Thursday, an effort to scrap an industry-backed natural gas deregulation bill failed by a 52-46 vote. The House already has passed Carter's gas-pricing plan, which would continue controls on gas shipped across state lines while lifting the price ceiling from the current $1.45 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75.

The President said his energy proposals call for an end to regulation of natural gas prices over time and include "enough incentive and encouragement for exploration."

He likened his fight against the petroleum lobby to Howell's battle to abolish automatic fuel adjustment provisions that Howell says allows utilities to unfairly raise electric bills in Virginia.

"I don't want to see an uncontrolled monopoly," Carter said.

The Senate, meanwhile, moved on Saturday toward making a natural-gas deregulation proposal less costly to homeowners, but shied away from a new test vote on a rival gas-pricing plan proposed by President Carter.

As a result, the senators remained at an impasse over the natural gas legislation after a rare eight-hour Saturday session.

Carter wants to keep price controls on gas, but Senate deregulation proponents have been trying to substitute their own plan for the administration's bill.

The Senate agreed, 61 to 17, to consider an amendment that would make industries, not homeowners, bear most of the extra cost — if natural gas prices are deregulated.

The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is also one of the chief backers of the deregulation proposal.

Bentsen said he made the move in an effort to win support from those who claim deregulation would be too costly to consumers.

Under the proposed modification, utilities and other industries that use natural gas as a boiler fuel would pay higher prices for their gas under deregulation than those who use it for home heating.

Truck crashes, sets buildings ablaze; 6 die

BEATTYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Brake failure sent a gasoline tank truck careening down a hill onto Beattyville's main street Saturday, spilling gasoline and exploding into sheets of flame that demolished businesses and killed at least six persons.

Officers said one other person was missing and presumed dead.

The truck left a swath of fire and rubble. Parking meters were partially melted and parked cars exploded as flames spread from the truck's 8,200 gallon cargo of gasoline.

Workers with emergency lights continued a search of the rubble of buildings on the town square for more bodies as hundreds of townspeople looked on. Officials said the search would continue through the night.

The sixth body was found late Saturday night at the rear of a beauty parlor sandwiched between a furniture store and a television shop.

Units from the Pomona and Chino Fire Departments responded to a 10 p.m. fire Saturday night at Brockway Glass Co., 1331 E. Philadelphia Ave., Pomona.

The fire started in a pile of wood shipping pallets near the plant and according to one spokesman sent flames shooting 50 feet into the air.

Fire officials estimated the loss at $60,000.

PROTEST LAYOFFS

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, addresses a group of demonstrators on the steps of the Capitol in Washington Saturday. The crowd was part of a group protesting the planned layoff of some 5,000 workers by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co.

Hit-and-run suspect in death of 2 jailed

Three persons were killed and four motorcyclists seriously injured in five traffic accidents in the West End Saturday.

Among the dead are a couple struck down by ahit and run driver — later captured — as they were crossing Holt Boulevard in Montclair about 12:37 a.m. and an unidentified man whose car struck a freeway ramp support near the Devore interchange about 10 a.m. as he was headed west on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Kathy Woods, 20, and Daniel Charles Corbin, 36, were struck by a hit and run driver as they attempted to cross Holt in the 5000 block in Montclair. Miss Woods was pronounced dead at the scene and Corbin later died at Montclair Doctors Hospital.

The accident resulted in an alert for the driver throughout the West End and east end of Los Angeles County with officers eventually arresting Wilbur Danny Parsons, 31, of Montclair.

The two victims were struck in the west bound lanes of the street by a car traveling at about 45 miles per hour. About 1:09 a.m., Claremont officer R. L. Brown began chasing a vehicle matching the description of the suspect car. The pursuit down Indian Hill Boulevard eventually came to an end at the intersection of Lehigh and Kingsley Avenues in Montclair where Parson's car struck a curb and blew a tire.

County fair attracting big crowds

The people just keep on coming. Los Angeles County Fair officials report that fair attendance is still running well ahead of last year, and that Saturday was the biggest day yet.

About 120,500 persons had made it through the turnstiles by 6 p.m. Saturday, and officials estimated 145,000 would attend by the time the fair closed that day. Last year's attendance for the same day — the second Saturday of the fair — was 117,995.

Total attendance through Friday was 476,672, about 51,000 more persons that last year.

Traffic was especially heavy Saturday on various roads leading into the Pomona fairgrounds, including White Avenue. More of the same is expected today.

Some minor traffic accidents were reported in the fairgrounds area Saturday.

A special event at the fair today will be the milk drinking contest at 3 p.m. in Judging Ring No. 2. There will also be milking demonstrations in the dairy barns at noon, 2, 4 and 6 p.m.

The free grandstand show today features "Up With People." Show times are at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

A special Indian show featuring Iron Eyes Cody can be seen from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Indian Fair building. There will be a horse show in the carnation ring at 9 a.m., sponsored by the Valley Quarter Horse Association.

Continuous events during the day will be held at the Mexican Village, Plaza of the States area, Home Arts and Junior Fair Building.

Line forms for first Skytrain flight

NEW YORK (AP) — About eight persons queued up in the rain Saturday for a day-and-ahalf wait to buy tickets for the first Skytrain jetliner flight from New York to London.

Tickets weren't scheduled to go on sale at the Queens office of Laker Airways until 4 a.m. Monday, but the would-be passengers held their soggy ground, using umbrellas and cardboard boxes or ducking into a nearby garage or neighborhood diner for shelter.

John Stein, 17, hitchhiked from Denver to New York and grabbed a spot in line to purchase a ticket for a visit to a cousin in London.

Vicky Meyer, 13, said she was waiting to get tickets for herself and her mother, Priscilla Meyer. Mrs. Meyer, who had stepped away from the line "to pick up a couple of sleeping bags," was to cover the flight for the Wall Street Journal, her daughter said.

Mother and daughter planned to spend the night on the wet sidewalk in plastic-swathed sleeping bags.

The first Skytrain flight, organized by self-made British aviation tycoon Freddie Laker, is to arrive in New York from London on Monday evening. The first New York-to-London trip is scheduled to depart Kennedy airport at 11 p.m. that night.

Tickets for the New York-London journey cost $135 for one-way fare. The fare in the other direction is $103.25.

A self-made aviation tycoon who once swept floors and made the tea in an aircraft factory, Laker fought with the big airlines, aviation authorities and the British government to launch a "no-frills," no-reservation service to New York on his Laker Airways.

Israelis holding 25 black American 'settlers'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli authorities said Saturday they were holding and planned to expel 25 black Americans who the Israelis claim are members of a "black Hebrew" sect who intended to settle illegally in the Jewish state.

The group — three men, six women and 16 children — denied the claim and said they are Presbyterians who came to Israel as tourists to visit Christian holy places, the U.S. Embassy here reported.

They were being held in a police lockup near Ben-Gurion Airport after they tore up their U.S. passports and return-flight tickets, U.S. and Israeli officials said.

Black Hebrews are members of a messianic sect of about 250 American blacks, mostly from Chicago and Detroit, who live in the southern Israeli town of Dimona in the Negev desert. They claim to be descended from the original Hebrew people and want the right to live in Israel.

Israeli law allows all Jews to immigrate to Israel, but does not recognize the "black Hebrews" as Jews.

The U.S. Embassy said the 25 Americans were part of a tour group which flew here from New York on Wednesday. U.S officials said the blacks are from several parts of the United States, and several of them say they are Presbyterian ministers or representatives of the Civic League of the Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

In New York, the Rev. R.M. Kinlock, chairman of the Commission against Racism of the Council of Churches in the City of New York, sent a mailgram to President Carter Saturday protesting the incident. A copy of the mailgram was received by The Associated Press in New York.

"A most outrageous situation has taken place at the Tel Aviv, Israel, airport where 25 black U.S. citizens who as tourists are being held at gunpoint against their will and are prevented from entering or leaving the country," the letter said.

"The Commission against Racism feels that with our large Jewish and black population in New York City this act constitutes an explosive situation that needs your immediate attention ... (We) appeal to you to use your offices in behalf of these U.S. citizens."

Blueprint for urban reform: relocate jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a powerful House committee unveiled a blueprint for urban reform Saturday that calls for federal "relocation aid" for jobless Americans who want to move from depressed cities to areas where work is available.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., also called for creating a computerized national job bank and changing the government's current system of dispensing federal aid.

Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs, said a national urban policy could create "born again" cities to replace the dilapidated downtowns and time-worn neighborhoods that scar urban America.

He released his 60-page program at a critical time as a White House task force was putting together the pieces of President Carter's urban strategy.

Reuss presented his program as a blueprint, not in legislative form. He is expected to wait to see the administration's own legislative proposals before offering any of his own.

"Only a multifaceted, across-the-board approach" will save the troubled cities, Reuss declared.

The "relocation aid" would allow a family whose breadwinner was unable to find work in his home community to get a cash grant to move.

"The federal government has properly focused a great deal of effort on the relocation of Cuban and Vietnamese refugees," Reuss said. "It could do as much for our own economic refugees."

Reuss's proposal, although not specific, presumably would make it possible for a poor family in a city like Philadelphia or Detroit to move to a thriving Sun Belt city like Houston where there were job openings.

Such a plan is certain to be controversial with big-city officials in the North who would want money spent to build up their sagging economies rather than to transfer their populations elsewhere.

Reuss cited the urgency of conserving energy as a key reason for renewed interest in revitalizing the cities. He predicted that "rejuvenation of our cities could be the great growth industry of the 1980s."

Reuss also noted, "Families are getting smaller and the proportion of working wives increases: so middle-income citizens will increasingly pour back into the central city neighborhoods. The city, I suggest, is ready to be born again."

His proposed national job bank would match openings with the "skills and interests" of available workers.

He said national service jobs, "like Franklin Roosevelt's Civilian Conservation Corps," should be created for those unable to find jobs in the private sector. A scaled-down public service jobs plan is part of the President's welfare reform proposal.

Reuss said too much federal aid now goes "to communities that do not require assistance, particularly wealthy suburbs."

Walter Holloway, 49, Ontario, was listed in critical condition at Montclair Doctors Hospital Saturday night after the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car stopped for a red light at the intersection of Mission Boulevard and Monte Vista Avenue at about 10:20 a.m. Holloway was the only person reported injured.

A 37-year-old Downey man, Michael Edward Hernandez, may have suffered spinal injuries when the customized motorcycle he was riding went out of control on the west bound onramp to the San Bernardino Freeway in Ontario and he tumbled over a 15-foot embankment. Highway Patrolmen reported that Hernandez' wife — riding on the back of the vehicle — was uninjured. Hernandez was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital following the 7:25 p.m. accident and later transferred to UCLA Medical Center.

A Redlends couple was reported in satisfactory condition at Chino General Hospital after the motorcycle they were riding blew its front tire about 6 p.m. near the intersection of Pine Street and Chino Corona Road.

Becky Wieldings, 17, and Martin Van Deilon, 21, both suffered serious compound fractures with Miss Wieldings also suffering a possible skull fracture. Van Deilon suffered a broken elbow and Miss Wieldings a broken ankle.

U.S.-Russ SALT talks to resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union will resume "intense" negotiations for a new strategic arms limitation agreement next week in hopes of overcoming continuing disagreement in four key areas, the State Department said Saturday.

Happy birthday 'Speedy'

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

"Speedy" Jacobs is a busy man.

He trains horses, hikes, works in gardens, cleans yards, tells stories, visits friends and flirts with girls all the time.

He's bright, articulate, witty and agile. He's in better physical condition than many men half his age.

Michael "Speedy" Jacobs is celebrating his 106th birthday today.

"I usally like to walk about 10 miles a day," he said, as he lounged comfortably on the porch of a friend's Chino home. "I can go 20 miles a day pretty easily if I have to."

"Speedy" has recently returned to Chino from a Victorville ranch, where for the last four years he worked as a full-time ranch hand in charge of 20 horses.

"I feed them, exercise them, doctor them and do various other things," he said.

If there's nothing to do, "Speedy" looks for something. He jogs every morning. He does yardwork and chores for the sick and elderly. He visits with neighbors and talks for hours.

He started out young and during his long life he has seen a lot and done a lot.

"At seven months I would walk without falling over myself and it was hard for folks to catch me," he said. "From then on I've been known as 'Speedy'."

He tells another story, however, about the girls he's constantly running into during his walks who find him cute, leading speculators to believe, perhaps, there might be another reason for his nickname.

"The girls must be pretty hard up if they have to flirt with a man my age," he laughed mischievously.

"Speedy" is still a bit bewildered by his centenarian celebrity status. He has been the guest on numerous television shows, including the Mike Douglas and George Putnam shows.

"It's not my fault I got old," he said.

"Speedy" was born in Pocono, Pa., Sept. 25, 1871. One of his earliest memories is attending the celebration of 1876 of the nation's 100th birthday in Philadelphia.

"I was very young, but I can remember all of the crowds and parades at night, with everyone carrying torches. It was like a sea of fire. People were just having a regular ball!"

In 1876, according to "Speedy," there were only 35 million people in the U.S. in 35 states. U.S. Grant was the President.

One hundred years later, on July 4, 1977, "Speedy" celebrated the nation's 200th birthday in Victorville. He rode in an old buckboard wagon with a 100-year-old gun and an antique saddle. During his lifetime, the U.S. population has grown to nearly 250 million.

"I've seen lots of people come and go," he said. Asked what it is like to have lived 106 years, "Speedy" said, "I'm lucky. I have my health and I still don't hear no bells in the belfry, like a lot of people."

While visiting in Chino, where he has lived off and on for almost 40 years, "Speedy" has been staying with a good friend and former neighbor, Mrs. Bessie Beebe, who herself is in her 80s, but looks much younger.

"Speedy is lucky to be in such good health," Mrs. Beebe said. "Many senior citizens almost half his age have troubles. He doesn't use a cane or anything. It's remarkable!"

Long life seems to run in the Jacobs family. Five of "Speedy's" brothers and sisters are still alive. Two of them have also surpassed the 100-year mark.

Life was not always easy.

"Speedy" worked on his parents' farm in Pennsylvania as a child. At age 9, he went to work in the coal mines. "I separated the slate from the coal," he said. In those days children were forced to work 12 hours a day, six days a week. The pay was 50 cents a day.

"There weren't any laws against that type of thing when we were growing up," he said. "We were brainwashed into believing you had to work and that it was good for you. You didn't have time to think about sitting around doing nothing."

He recalls the trailscouts and mountain men who accompanied the train. "Back in those days, you needed help to find your way around," he said. "Most of the roads were old Indian foot and horse paths.

As the Jacobs family crossed the Great Plains, confrontation between Indians and settlers were still occuring. "We crossed the country right near the close of the Indian Wars," Jacobs said. "We met many friendly Indian tribes during the journey, but none with which there were hostilities.

While in California, the family camped out on a spot which later became the famous mining town of Calico in the desert near Barstow.

"Just think," he said. "We were sitting on a mountain of silver and gold and didn't even know it."

At age 14, "Speedy" returned East. He became a steel worker. Long arduous hours before hot smelting ovens at low wages kept Jacobs busy for several years.

MICHAEL 'SPEEDY' JACOBS

In 1904, he returned to California and went to work as a ranch hand and horse caretaker for Anita Baldwin in Hemet. Mrs. Baldwin was the daughter of California railroad magnate and thoroughbred horse breeder "Lucky" Baldwin.

"Speedy" was charged with caring for Mrs. Baldwin's horses. Later, he said, he took care of horses for Groucho Marx, Barbara Stanwyck, Harry James and Betty Grable.

George Putnam once asked him, he said, to take care of his horses. "Speedy" was 100 years old at the time.

In recent years, he's spent time hiking, caretaking and having fun. He alternates between living and working in Chino and Victorville, where he has been pretty much adopted by a family.

"When I first came here, it was farms and ranches for as far as you could see. It's changed a lot around here," he said.

The changes in U.S. society since the 1800s, however, have not amazed this sensible old man. He thinks man's landing on the moon was a great achievement, but no great surprise.

"Just think, we used to believe the moon was made of green cheese," he laughed. "Now when you realize it's made out of rocks and things — like the desert — it seems pretty funny."

Asked what his secret to staying so young looking was, "Speedy" said he eats natural foods, exercises and doesn't smoke. He says there are other reasons just as important.

Philosophically he explained, "There are no shortcuts to life. Peopeople are sometimes too lazy in life. Either that, or in such a hurry they don't know where they're going or why they're going there.

"I've always taken things as they came. So many people worry about getting somewhere. When you're my age, you realize there's no point in hurrying or worrying about things. There's lots of time.

"My mind is still keen and I don't understand sometimes this 'keeping up with the Jonses' idea. If you try, Mr. Jones will just refinance and be right back ahead of you again."

To Michael "Speedy" Jacobs there is a secret to a long, happy life.

"Hate and jealousy is what eats people up. If you don't have hate in you, you'll be sure to live a long time. I've never met anyone and felt ill feelings towards them. People think they have to top each other. Instead, maybe they should help and care for one another."

Chino admiral reassigned

Rear Adm. Ernest E. Tissot of Chino has been assigned as commander of the Attack Carrier Strike Force for the U.S. Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific Ocean, U.S. Navy officials announced recently.

Tissot, whose mother Mrs. Beulah Tissot resides in Chino, is the former commander of the Fighter Airborne Early Warning Wing of the Pacific Fleet at the Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego.

His new duties will put him in charge of an aircraft-carrier task force with the responsibility of defending U.S. interests in the western Pacific Ocean and keeping shipping lanes in that area of the world open to sea travel.

Tissot will bring a string of impressive credentials to his new post. Since joining the U.S. Navy in 1945, he served as a flyer in both the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. His awards and decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross and numerous other service awards.

He is former commander of the nuclear-powered aircraft-carrier the USS Enterrpise and had served as commander of the Fighter Airborne Early Warning Wing, Pacific Fleet, since June of 1976.

Tissot was promoted to Rear Admiral rank in 1973. He was the third naval aviator in history to make more than one-thousand aircraft carrier landings.

He and his wife, Mildred, have two sons.

Alma A. Nordberg of 250 W. Artesia St., Pomona, died Thursday night in a local convalescent center after a long illness.

Mrs. Nordberg was born March 17, 1892 in Quincy, Ill. She came to Pomona from Quincy in 1943.

Surviving are two daughters, Thelma L. McWilliams and Arlene I. Hooper, both of Chino; a son, Walfred A. of Susanville; a brother, Lawrence Bredenbeck of Rockford, Ill.; a sister, Ida Landwehr of Little Rock, Ark.; eight grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Services will be Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in Pomona Cemetery. Dr. Mason D. Moore, pastor of the Church of Religious Science, will officiate.

Friends may call at Pomona Chapel Monday from 2 to 9 p.m.

Beatrice Fitch

Beatrice I. Fitch of 182 Marywood Ave., Claremont, died Friday morning at her home after a three-month illness.

Mrs. Fitch was born July 21, 1914 in Indahoma, Okla. She came to California from Guthrie, Okla., in 1949 and lived in Riverside before moving to the Pomona area 26 years ago.

Mrs. Fitch was a supervisor with Pacific Telephone Co. for many years. She was a member of Pilgrim Congregational Church in Pomona, the Heliotrope Rebekah Lodge and the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Surviving are her husband, Ronald D.; a daughter, Ruth Caldwell of Nampa, Idaho; a son, Roger of Riverside; two sisters, Irene Wyatt of Alma, Ark.; and Hazel Trumbull of Guthrie, Okla.; two brothers, Fred Smock of Sciatook, Okla., and Herman Gibson of Oklahoma City, Okla.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Monday at 10 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Dr. Benton S. Gaskell, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, will officiate.

Entombment will be in Pomona Mausoleum.

Friends may make memorial contributions to the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary for use in the Sick Baby Fund, 1798 N. Garey Ave., Pomona 91767.

Friends may call at the Pomona Chapel today from noon to 9 p.m.

Mentia Bouchey

Mentia L. Bouchey of 1565 E. Arrow Highway, Upland, died Wednesday night in an Upland convalescent hospital.

Mrs. Bouchey was born Nov. 25, 1904 in Victoria, Tex. She came to California in 1946 from Texas and had lived in Upland 15 years. She was a member of the Church of Christ.

Surviving are her husband, Walter F.; two sons, Gerald C. Blanton of Lincona, N.C., and Boydia Blanton of North Attleboro, Mass.; two daughters, Glenna Kepple of Cottonwood, Ariz., and Barbara Sheerer of Phoenix, Ariz., six stepsons including Eldon L. Bouchey of Pomona; two stepdaughters including Mary A. Wine of Riverside; a brother, L. L. Lewis of Shawnee, Okla.; five sisters, Lucy Greenwood of Chino, Mrs. Jimmy Huey of Mineral Wells, Tex., Mrs. Opal Kelly of Aquilla, Tex., Mrs. Kay Beasley and Mrs. Dixie Price, both of Odessa, Tex.; 49 grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

Services will be Monday at 3 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Mr. Don McCord of the Church of Christ, West Covina, will officiate.

Burial will be in Pomona Cemetery.

Friends may call at Pomona Chapel today from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Monday until service time.

Millard Ovitt

Millard W. Ovitt of Pine Grove, a former Ontario resident, died at his home Thursday.

Mr. Ovitt was born Feb. 13, 1900 in Big Rock, Ill. He lived in Ontario for many years and also in Fountain Valley before moving to Pine Grove. He was a furniture maker. While in Pomona he was a member of Pomona Masonic Lodge 590.

Surviving are his widow, Harriett A.; two daughters, Joan P. Carter of Upland and Jean K. of Pine Grove; a son-in-law, Jim Carter of Upland; and three nephews, Lemoine of North Hollywood, Melvin of Fountain Valley and Clyde of Ontario.

Services will be Monday at 11 a.m. at the Daneri Mortuary chapel in Jackson.

Burial will be in the Pine Grove Cemetery.

Dora Echelmeyer

Dora L. Echelmeyer of 849 N. Gibbs St., Pomona, died Friday morning in the San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland.

Mrs. Echelmeyer was born Dec. 22, 1887 in Missouri. She came to California from Nebraska in 1955 and lived in Long Beach prior to moving to Pomona in 1967.

Mrs. Echelmeyer was a member of the Trinity United Methodist Church, the Women's Group at the church, the American Association of Retired Persons and the Friendship Group. She attended Assistance League craft classes.

Surviving are two sons, T. H. of Upland and Lawrence E. of Seal Beach; a daughter, Catherine Headley of Beatrice, Neb.; a sister, Bessie Herd of Santa Ana; a brother, W. H. McGinnis of Kingman, Kan.; nine grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

Services will be Monday at 11:30 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Dr. John W. Black of the Trinity United Methodist Church will officiate.

Burial will be in Pomona Cemetery.

JOHN STRONG

'Bright Belgium shown'

Pomona Forum of Pomona Adult School presents John Strong's color film "Bright Belgium" Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center Auditorium, 800 S. Garey Ave.

Strong opens up secrets of the kingdom long hidden from view: Flanders Field and its poppies, Bruges and its lace-making factories, Ghent and its rich store of oil paintings, and the royal city of Brussels.

Excursion boats on the River Meuse and hikes through the Ardennes lend action to this film production about a small country visited by many travelers.

Parent Power: new math

Semantic math approach puzzles teachers, frustrates parents

By JOHN DOUGLAS

Fifth in a series

Part of the problem is semantic — the New Math is not new at all. The "set theory" involved has long been familiar to students in advanced math courses. What is new is the idea of trying to teach elementary and high school students the theoretical basis behind the arithmetic and algebra they were traditionally taught. Rather than just memorizing rules (do you remember how to extract a square root?), the idea was to teach children the logic of mathematics, with specific rules and examples following naturally.

Done well, this New Math approach not only makes sense but also offers a child a whole new world of challenging activity rather than boring drills. However, the line between challenge and frustration is a fine one, and there now seems to be ample evidence that far too many students were mainly frustrated by the New Math. Neither teachers nor parents had been adequately prepared for this major shift of emphasis.

What will happen next is unclear. One school of thought is frankly expressed by David Rappaport, professor emeritus of mathematics education, Northeastern Illinois University. Only about 15 percent of school children "have the ability to learn the mathematics that the new programs have developed," he says. Another 25 percent should learn some theory. But "for the 60 percent who are frustrated by the New Math, a return to the study of basic arithmetic skills is in order."

Other experts strongly disagree. They point out that the New Math has taught students one set of skills while most standardized tests continue to examine them on another. Give the New Math another chance, they say, by combining it with more standard arithmetic and by better preparing teachers to present the material in a meaningful way. They argue that as pocket calculators become more common, the need to perform arithmetic will give way to a need to analyze math problems and relate them to the calculator's capabilities.

The Conference Board of Mathematical Sciences, which represents 12 professional mathematical societies, has taken a provocative stand on the calculator issue, stating that by the eighth grade, all students should be provided a calculator and be allowed to use it in all their math work.

In whatever form it has been taught, mathematics has always suffered a fearful reputation, particularly among girls and minority students.

About the best parents can do to make sure their children are learning essential mathematical skills is to see that they get practice in applying these skills to everyday situations. Many parents are reluctant to discuss finances with their children, but there is no better way to make sure children learn how to handle money responsibly and understand the importance of being able to use mathematics. Youngsters can begin by considering how to spend their own allowances. Older children can be trusted with seeing the family budget and learning how bills are handled. If a high school student ever brags he's "had enough math," just hand him a standard income tax form and let him find out for himself.

New hope for Egypt

Underground reservoir may turn desert green

CAIRO (AP) — A recent geological report about a vast fresh water reservoir beneath the Western Desert has raised hopes the barren area can produce new jobs and more food for Egypt's poor and growing population.

But experts who conducted an 18-month survery say that it may take a generation or more to fully develop the newly discovered resource.

In announcing the survey results recently, the semiofficial Al Ahram newspaper described the subterranean reservoir as the largest in the world and said it "has the capacity of revolutionizing the economics of the Western Desert."

"It is good quality water and part of it could be used right away. The greatest limitation is the ready identification of arable lands," said William Warne, an American water expert who advised Egyptian officials conducting the survey.

Warne, 72, of Sacramento, Calif. told The Associated Press plateaus account for a large part of the Western Desert but that low-lying depressions seemed to hold more prospects for development because they contained better soil and were easier to drain.

Warne, a former director of the California Department of Water Resources and a onetime U.S. assistant secretary of the interior, said a great sheet of water-bearing sandstone stretched from the Mediterranean Sea coast some 500 miles southwards to near the Sudanese border.

He said about 2.5 billion acrefeet of water was contained in the sandstone, and a vast unknown quantity below that. By comparison, the Hoover Dam's reservoir has 30 million acre feet which is used to irrigate one million acres of farmland in the United States and Mexico.

The water beneath the desert has accumulated over several thousand years from rain runoff and the seepage of lakes and rivers as far away as central Africa, Warne said.

Al Ahram claimed the reservoir, which extends 500 miles from east to west, is capable of producing at least 181.2 billion gallons of water per year. That would represent about 5 per cent of the annual flow of the Nile River.

Warne said he has recommended the Egyptians start three or four test plots of about 15,000 acres each. He estimated it would cost $1 million a year to provide a complete pumping and irrigation system for each of the test tracts.

He said the water bubbled to the surface in some areas but ranged between 450 and 1,000 feet deep.

Ahmed N. Barkouki, board chairman of Egypt's General Petroleum Co., which conducted the survey, said in an interview that a demonstration project was planned for the Wadi Natrun area about 50 miles northwest of Cairo. He estimated the cost of lifting the water, cultivating the land and providing housing, utilities and roads for a farming settlement at about $15 million to $20 million.

Barkoui said he hoped the test project at Wadi Natrun would begin sometime in 1978.

The limiting factors, he said, "are the soil and the availability of the infrastructure. This land represents two-thirds of Egypt but there are only one or two roads."

"If the projects are capable of paying their own way, they may be attractive for private investment," Barkouki said.

Barkouki said that about 2,500 years ago, at least some of the vast desert area was used for farming. Barkouki said this was proven by the existence of a temple complex built at Kharga Oasis about 500 B.C.

Land reclamation projects in Egypt are under way in Tahrir Province bordering the Western Desert, between Cairo and the Suez Canal, and around Lake Nasser, the huge reservoir behind the Aswan High Dam.

Fuel-line explosions threaten lives

Southern Californians living atop subterranean timebomb

By CYNTHIA KADONAGA
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of Southern Californians unknowingly live atop a vast, aging and largely unregulated network of fuel pipelines that could become a subterranean timebomb. Ten persons have died in explosions stemming from pipeline leaks during the past 14 months.

"They (pipeline accidents) happen at least once a day in Los Angeles County, if not more," said Larry Kaiser, operator of a firm that notifies construction companies of pipeline locations.

Most accidents are not fatal, but some have been holocausts.

Nine persons were killed and 14 injured last year in suburban Venice when a gasoline pipe exploded after it was ruptured by excavation equipment.

On Labor Day, a man was killed and his brother critically injured when their moving van ignited a cloud of natural gas in New Cuyama, in the northeast corner of Santa Barbara County. The leak, still under investigation, occurred in a 26-year-old Atlantic Richfield Co. pipeline from a gas compression plant along a highway.

And last month, a Vietnamese couple touched off a block-long fire in a Lakewood street when they unwittingly drove through what looked like a mudpuddle. Corrosion apparently had caused a leak, which oozed into the puddle. Their engine ignited it, said a spokesman for the pipe's owner and the resulting explosion injured a woman.

External pipe corrosion, the main cause of failures until 1974, resulted in 41 accidents in California during 1976, the National Transportation Safety Board has reported. Since 1974, when pipe design was improved, the main cause of accidents has been construction work above the pipelines. But many older pipes remain in use.

"Most construction companies excavate by sound," said Lincoln Sanders, an engineer in the Los Angeles Department of Public Utilities and Transportation. "They keep digging until they hear a clang, then figure they've reached the pipe." The pipe's protective coating often is nicked, which causes corrosion, Sanders said, but workers often "bury it back up and don't say a thing."

A county law bans such practices, although it does not require checks for compliance or annual tests for leaks. The Western Gas and Oil Association estimates there are 62 oil fields in Los Angeles County, and their production in 1975 was 93 million barrels. But officials said only one of 81 cities in the county — Los Angeles — requires that oil lines be tested.

Federal regulations, issued in 1969, require oil companies to test pipes before installation and every five years thereafter. When a pipe is exposed, the company must test it.

But federal officials say its difficult to enforce the laws, which require penalties of $1,000 in fines and a five-year jail term.

"We've had a hard time enforcing safety regulations because of that penalty," said Jack Overly, the western regional director of the federal Office of Pipeline Safety Operation in Burlingame. "Can you imagine the president of a oil company going to jail?"

The rules also state that "pipeline right-of-way must be selected to avoid, as far as possible, areas containing private dwellings, industrial builings and places of public assembly."

But Overly said federal officials have not yet identified all the lines the government can regulate. As a result, both new and old pipelines still underlie the urban sprawl.

Federal regulations do not require oil companies to register their interstate pipelines, so "we have to do a lot of digging to find them," Bill Whiteman, an engineer for the Office of Pipeline Safety Operation, said in a telephone interview from his Burlingame office. "We know about some and don't know about others."

In California, Arco, Chevron U.S.A., Inc., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell Oil Co., Texaco, Inc., and Union Oil Co. denied that their lines crossed state boundaries and so were not subject to federal regulation, said Ed Cygan of the federal pipeline safety office in Washington, D.C.

The California Public Utilities Commission is investigating the same five companies for possible state regulation, but the state also has had trouble enforcing pipeline safety regulations because many California oil companies deny that their pipelines are "common carriers" dedicated to public use, said PUC attorney Richard Neuman in San Francisco.

Common carriers originally were defined in a 1920 federal act as any pipeline crossing U.S. government land, Neuman said. But the state Supreme Court ruled in 1960 that such pipelines must be declared public utilities before the PUC may regulate them, he added.

Because the oil companies continue to operate as private businesses, the PUC has been powerless, Neuman said.

"California is the only state in the nation that has been unable to enforce the common carrier laws," he said.

Oil companies such as Mobil and Chevron argue that their pipeline systems are relatively safe, pointing out that accidents involving explosions or fires happen rarely.

The major companies have computers that detect pipeline leaks almost immediately, and can shut down the system in a matter of minutes, Mobil and Chevron spokesmen both said.

H.E. Gillispie of Chevron, whose gasoline line ruptured in Venice last June and caused an explosion that killed or injured 23 persons, says the company has done nothing to upgrade safety precautions along its 500-mile Los Angeles County system because construction workers were responsible for that disaster.

"We were safe before June, 1976, and we're safe now," Gillespie said.

To help eliminate construction-related accidents, Los Angeles County approved an ordinance last February that new pipes carrying hazardous substances such as crude oil, petroleum products and natural gas be buried about a foot deeper, and that excavation be conducted more carefully.

There are no penalties for violations of the county's new ordinance because "there have been no problems with noncompliance," said county road commissioner Irvin Mohar. "Generally, the construction industry has complied."

One reason, Mohar said, is that construction companies must pay $500,000 in liability insurance, plus half the cost of materials and labor for any county project.

However, companies working on projects not belonging to the county must post a maximum bond of only $2,000 to pay for replacing pavement, said assistant road commission Donald Dreher.

Mohar said the county is considering adopting a "one-call" system to help eliminate construction-related pipeline accidents. Under the system, a contractor theoretically may dial one telephone number for information on all pipes in a given area.

Orange County has had a voluntary "one-call" system since last September. Kaiser's privately owned Underground Systems Alert differs from 82 others in 34 states because it is not run by a public utility, Kaiser said.

Because membership is voluntary, some major oil companies — Mobil and Union — do not belong, claiming the system is unnecessary, Kaiser said.

"We tell contractors we'll contact our members, but that they'll have to contact any others who might have pipes in the area," Kaiser said. "Nine times out of ten, they don't know who else is there, and half the time they don't even ask.

"If everyone belonged to our system, then it would be a 100 per cent solution to pipeline accidents. Until everyone joins, contractors will just have to guess about where pipes are located, like they have been."

Kaiser said his firm plans to expand into Los Angeles County soon.

Another weakness in Orange County's system and others nationwide is that exact pipe locations often are unknown to construction workers doing the digging, says John Searcy, an NTSB pipeline investigator in Los Angeles.

"I've seen the one-call system in Orange County, Northern California and Oregon," said Searcy. "While it may minimize the chance of accidents occurring, it's useless unless you get word to the man operating the bulldozer at a construction site.

The NTSB reports the number of hazardous pipeline accidents nationwide has declined from 499 in 1968 to 209 last year. However, the number of reports does not accurately reflect the number of accidents that have occurred because the reports cover only the few oil lines under identifiable federal jurisdiction, officials said.

Ward denies seeking post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baxter Ward, a Los Angeles County supervisor, has denied reports he might be interested in succeeding Phillip E. Watson as county assessor.

"I do not have the training, nor the desire to become county asessor," Ward said Thursday in a prepared statement.

9 persons killed already

Families unaware of pipe explosion risks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — People from pastors to retired oil company supervisors say they are unaware that their Fries Avenue homes sit above an eight-inch pipe carrying potentially explosive gasoline.

And many say they aren't concerned about accidents, even though an eight-inch gasoline line in Venice ruptured last year during an excavation and exploded, killing nine persons and injuring 14 others.

Only Rev. Jose Garcia, whose home and 50-member First Methodist Church are located along the Mobil Oil Co. line, is worried. "I did not know about the pipeline, but now that I do, I'm worried," said Garcia.

The pastor said he has three children, aged seven to 20, and described his neighborhood as "mostly Spanish-speaking with lots of children."

The pipeline also passes a public library and the Gulf Avenue elementary school, where 1,225 children attend classes.

Most of Garcia's neighbors, like Frank Landham, said they didn't care about the danger. 'If there is a gasoline pipe in front of my house, what can I do?" asked Landham, 76.

Other, like James Derham, said, "I'm, not afraid of the oil lines. I've lived with them for too many years."

Derham, a retired pipeline supervisor for Texaco, Inc., added that from 1944 to 1966, spills of five to 10 barrels occurred in his company's lines about six times a year without resulting in fires or explosions. The company checked the pipes annually for leaks, he said. "They were pretty careful."

Derham said most oil pipeline accidents were caused by careless excavators who plow into pipes with bulldozers and other equipment.

Although oil companies have torn apart Fries Avenue to lay more pipes at least twice during the past few years, no accidents have occurred, Derham added.

Mobil Oil Corp. spokesman Edward Fulham said his company probably pushes 200,000 barrels of crude oil and 100,000 barrels of petroleum products daily through its 1,000-mile Southern California system.

He said the system of pipes, which extends roughly from Bakersfield to Torrance, is monitored by computer for leaks.

However, he said that an observant neighbor reported a three-barrel spill in August that the elaborate computer failed to detect. That spill was later blamed on pipe corrosion.

Architecural marvel holds mysteries

EDITOR'S NOTE: When so many windows were popping out like kernels of corn that they had to board the place up, a lot of people laughed at the John Hancock Tower. One person who saw no humor in the follies of New England's tallest bulk was the man who designed it. Now he's smiling, Big John is glistening and few are laughing at the architectural marvel that still holds mysteries.

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

BOSTON (AP) — In a city where Beacon Hill matrons once lined their rockers in battle formation to stop workmen changing their brick sidewalks to concrete, architect Henry N. Cobb set about erecting New England's tallest skyscraper.

"Boston," wrote the late John P. Marquand, the town's most sensitive chronicler, "is not only a city but a state of mind."

The sky didn't fall in on Cobb when his shimmering 60-story glass-sheated. John Hancock Tower rose, but just about everything else did — 400-pound window panes fell by the dozens, million-dollar law suits were filed, delays doubled costs and drove off tenants, and his glass dream house was covered with plywood and declared a fire hazard.

Then the building was opened occupied and deemed a masterpiece by critics after fellow architects called him "a whore" for accepting the commission.

"There even was a time when we thought the building might have to be taken down," Cobb said. His incredibly thin, icily elegant great blue-green curtain of glass perfectly reflected the apse of the century-old Trinity Church and the sunset sky over the Charles River basin — just as he had planned it.

Platoons of tourists lined up for the elevators to the top-floor observatory, reminding each other, unwittingly within earshot of the architect, that this was what had been called the "Woodpecker Hilton," "Termite Tower," "World's Tallest Outhouse" and similar allusions to its previous plywood carcass.

Now five yars after the gargantuan reflecting panes began raining down into the street, 10 years after Cobb's plans left the drawing board and a little over a year after the city building commissioner threatened to order the tower vacated, "Big John," as it is now called, has taken its place in everyday Boston life.

Henry Cobb received the Brunner Award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters for "a significant contribution to architecture as an art." His firm, I.M. Pei & Partners, won a design award for the tower from the American Institute of Architects.

Cautiously, critics have come around, hailing Big John as "a cut diamond aglitter in our midst" instead of "the most embarrassing era in architectural history."

Yet nearly a year after the dedication, Henry Cobb's name appears nowhere in the building.

There is too much litigation, too much mystery over who was at fault in the acres of falling glass for anyone to point a finger, even in pride, at the man who built New England's tallest and spared the home team, the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., the ignominy of living another day in the shadow of the 52-story Prudential Center.

Cobb, a spare, slow-talking Yankee, born in nearby Brookline of Beacon Hill parents, ignored the slight and boarded the lobby elevator to the observatory.

The air in Cobb's Boston is certainly warmer today than on a frosty January Sunday five years ago when, in his empty tower, he faced an emergency meeting of Hancock executives and contractors, all in hard hats and all standing because there were no chairs. He told them "a catastrophe of major proportions" had befallen the building. He had come to the conclusion that "a hazard to the public existed, something that never happens in the lifetime of an architect," and the building commissioner was being told.

Over the weekend, 75 mile-per-hour winds had sent dozens of the huge thermal panes hurtling into the streets below. Hundreds more were damaged and in danger of falling. Eventually all 10,344 panes had to be replaced at a cost of $7.3 million.

"In short," Cobb said grimly, "the biggest building in Boston, built by the biggest employer, the company people love to hate, was falling on its butt."

Before he was 30, Cobb was the principle designer of Place Ville Marie, which restored downtown Montreal. A founding partner of the Pei firm, Cobb, now 51, was chief architect for Baltimore's World Trade Center, the new campus at the State University in Fredonia, N.Y., was mainly responsible for urban renewal plans in Boston and Los Angeles.

The Hancock Tower, he said, "was a saga long before the glass began blowing out."

The saga began in 1965 when the Prudential Center eclipsed the 26-story Hancock building just a few blocks away, which had been Boston's tallest since 1949. In the spring of 1966, the Pei firm was commissioned to design an office building of 2 million square feet and taller than Big Pru.

Problems multiplied from the time ground was broken in August, 1968. Soon came complaints that the tower's mass was squishing the muddy land fill of Back Bay and shifting the foundations of other buildings. Cracks appeared in the facade of Trinity Church, and the rector said the historic edifice was tilting.

New England Bell and the gas and electric utilities sued, alleging damage to power cables and underground lines. Next door, the Sheraton Plaza sued for $750,000 in structural damage. Hancock bought the hotel for $6 million and changing its name back to the Copley Plaza.

When windows began popping in 1972, a year after the scheduled opening, everyone sued and counter-sued anyone in sight: the client, the architect, the builder, the glass manufacturer, the glazing contractor.

Cobb said his inolvement by that time was "minimal." He said: "We didn't know what the problem was. We were terrified someone would be killed or injured."

"For me," Cobb said, "the most satisfying thing about the whole experience is that we were able to meet each crisis without destroying the artistic integrity of the building. Hancock could have altered the design to smaller windows, and they might have changed architects, but they didn't. This building is a saga in terms of professional relationships."

The saga goes on. Last month, as four of the new windows gave way, and Hancock created a new job category: window watcher. Equipped with walkie-talkies, the watchers will warn a command post in the building whenever a window begins to tremble so traffic can be diverted and the air vents reversed to reduce pressure on the weakened glass.

And the mystery remains. Why do the windows fall? The question was once put to Robert Hansen, professor of civil engineering at MIT, one of the diagnosticians called into the case.

"The phenomenology is too complicated to give a simple answer to that," he said, shedding about as much light as the old plywood windows.

Scion still living near the end of Madonna's trail

HONORS PIONEER MOTHERS

Amanda Kermott, wife of a traveling Baptist minister, and two of their children, Frank, 6, and Maude, not yet 1, were models for this "Madonna of the Trail" stone statue. Mrs. Marie Bond Kappan of La Verne is the daughter of the babe in the statue, and the granddaughter of the Madonna.

The "Madonna of the Trail" statue on Euclid Avenue at Foothill Boulevard in Upland holds special significance for a La Verne woman.

The baby in the arms of the Madonna grew up to be her mother.

The little boy in the statue is her uncle, and the woman, of course, is her grandmother.

The La Verne woman is Mrs. Marie Bond Kappan, 87, of 2700 N. Magnolia Ave. She is a modest, retiring woman.

Mrs. Kappan said yes, the story about her family is true. She said she has not written any of it down, and is not really comfortable talking about it.

With the help of a friend, Eva Price Garner of La Verne, she told the story, however.

Mrs. Kappan's maternal grandfather, the Rev. William Judson Kermott, was a travelling minister in the mid-1800s. He established Baptist churches around the country, according to Mrs. Garner. He was from Chicago.

According to Mrs. Garner, the young minister and his wife took their two small children on a missionary journey to California, and that was when the "Madonna of the Trail" statue was conceived.

At the time of that journey, Frank Kermott was 6 years old and Maude Scott Kermott was an infant, probably less than a year old, Mrs. Kappan said.

After completing their journey, the family returned to Milwaukee, Wis., where Mr. Kermott founded and became minister of the Milwaukee Garfield Avenue Baptist Church.

The children grew up there. Maude married a man named Bond and they had four sons and a daughter, Marie Bond Kappan, Mrs. Garner explained.

Mrs. Kappan lived in Milwaukee until 10 years ago when she moved to California, she said. She has a son, William Judson Kappan of Thousand Oaks and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Kappan stayed in the Baptist church in Milwaukee but now attends the La Verne Church of the Brethren.

She is an accomplished pianist, has a piano in her home and still plays. "I'm careful about when I play," she said. "I don't want to disturb others."

"The Madonna of the Trail" is one of a chain of 12 monuments across the country honoring pioneer mothers. It is of algonite stone and weighs five tons. It stands on a pedestal among pepper trees in the parkway of Euclid Avenue.

It was erected and dedicated in 1929.

Church campaign aids Rhodesian

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A Cal Poly Pomona student from Rhodesia was reunited with his wife and three children this week and has set up housekeeping at a home provided by the Covenant United Methodist Church in Pomona.

Willis Makombe sat in his new living room across from his wife Regina and recalled that it has been more than two years since he left his family and his country to major in biological sciences at Cal Poly where he is a junior.

Only after a concerted financial campaign by Pastor Jim Roan before his church membership two Sundays ago did arrangements fall into place and make it possible for the Makombes to have a place to stay for the next three years while Makombe is preparing for a teaching credential.

"A week ago I laid it out to the congregation, and they raised more money than was needed," Roan said.

The arrival of Mrs. Makombe and the three children, Tapuwa, 14, a girl; Farai, 12, a boy; and Kudzai, 8, a girl, was delayed 24 hours by the air controllers strike in London.

Both parents came from a Methodist mission station at Nyadiri, where they were teachers. The station, equipped with a school, a hospital, a farm, and a nursery, is 81 miles from Salisbury, the capital.

Pastor Roan took over his duties as minister in January and met Makombe who is a member. In March, Makombe told Roan that he feared for the safety of his family because the war in Rhodesia was "heating up."

"Is there anything we can do? Should Makombe give up his studies?" were questions that were pondered.

It was decided that if Makombe went back to Rhodesia, he would not be allowed to return to the United States, and that it would be better to try to bring his family here.

The administrative board heard Roan's plea for help and voted to raise funds. Several neighboring churches contributed, including the Hemet church which gave $1,000.

Roan explained that our immigration laws prohibit the Makombes from fulltime employment. Makombe therefore works parttime as a dishwasher at Cal Poly, where he has established many friendships.

Makombe said that he first learned about California from Mrs. Evelyn Throckmorton, a missionary from Yucaipa, when she was teaching at the mission station.

He learned about Cal Poly from Professor James Kamusikiri who had returned to his country for research on his Ph.D. degree.

Mrs. Throckmorton agreed to sponsor Makombe at Cal Poly.

Makombe said that he hopes the political situation will be stablized when he is ready to return to Rhodesai.

He spoke of the government censorship of the media in Rhodesia, and said that during the past 15 years he and his wife hoped the situation would clear up.

He said that March 1978 is the target date for the white Rhodesian government to step down.

"The people in my nation speak the truth regardless of government restrictions," he said, then added, "By the way, I am not a politician."

Mrs. Makombe said that she will be a homemaker and mother for "the time being."

Hill's Claremont career is stained—crystals in glass

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Mike Hill's career is stained.

He's proud of it, too.

Hill, who operates Crystals in Glass in Claremont where he fashions stained glass creations and teaches classes in the art, has been commissioned to design and build a 47 by 5-foot stained glass window to be placed in the $1 million expansion of Ontario International Airport.

The piece will be one of the largest such creations in the Southland.

Besides the window, Hill also will fashion a freestanding glass sculpture for an enclosed garden area off the new west wing waiting room.

Completion date for both is scheduled for June, 1978.

Hill is a self-taught artist whose career has spanned everything from machinist to retailing until he entered the field of stained glass three years ago.

Stained glass creations are experiencing a renaissance in the U.S. with at least 85 per cent of artists and artisans living and working in California, Oregon and Washington, Hill said.

Hill credits the abundance of sunlight on the West Coast as one of the reasons for most craftsmen settling in this area. He cited Europe as an example where Spain and France have a wider variety of colors in stained glass creations. England, on the other hand, with its almost constant overcast and somber skies must utilize only lighter glass to allow what light there is through.

Beginning of the stained glass renaissance was in post World War II Germany where artisans joined in rebuilding damaged and destroyed churches. Secularization of the craft also began at that time, with artists from other media entering the field, Hill said.

The movement spread to this country much later and now is completing its first decade of heavy revival, he said.

Artists now have gone far beyond the campy and sometimes tacky Tiffany lamp phase which reached a zenith of popularity in this country in the early 20th Century at the close of the Victorian era, Hill said. Contrary to popular belief, Tiffany lamps were not made by Tiffany, scion of the founder of New York's famed jewelry store, but were commissioned among other artists by him. "He had a lot of money and time and was able to do that," Hill said.

Today, artists are limited only by their imaginations in creating stained glass works of art, the young artist said.

Although his design is not final for the Ontario airport project, Hill said he hopes to create a fluid piece surrealistically depicting flight and movement in keeping with the airport theme.

The huge structure which will be emplaced about 14 feet above the new lobby, will be done in 5 by 5-foot panels in Hill's studio, then transported to the construction site.

The right to retire

In a manifesto published in the current issue of The Humanist magazine, more than 100 leading Americans, including 50 U.S. senators and representatives, declare mandatory retirement to be "morally wrong" and a denial of the fundamental right to earn a living. Retirement, they say, should be a matter of voluntary choice, and they pledge to work toward that goal in all areas of employment.

Well, no doubt forced retirement at some arbitrary age (currently and generally 65 in the private sector, 70 in the government) can be an injustice and a waste in some cases.

But there is something inappropriate about such exceptional elder citizens as historians Will and Ariel Durant or inventor and sage Buckminster Fuller prescribing for all older Americans.

We don't know about congressmen, who can continue to hold office as long as the voters put up with them, but the Durants or Fullers or Dr. Spocks (another signer) will be active and creative in their fields if they live to be 110.

No so for the vast majority of us. Indeed, the trend in manufacturing in recent years has been to earlier and earlier retirement, especially in such mind-stultifying jobs as automobile assembly.

The signers of the document also think it is terrible that the median income of men forced to retire drops from $7,880 annually to $3,380, working "a hardship on both the individual and the American economy."

Well, again there is no doubt that retirement can be a hardship if a person, for whatever the reasons, is not prepared for it.

Even if the compulsory retirement age were raised or eliminated, of course, a worker still would be free to retire at 65 — or earlier, if he could swing it financially.

But we see nothing "voluntary" about it if inflation were to force people to work beyond 65 simply to make ends meet, or to help bail out a mismanaged Social Security system.

This, we believe, also would be morally wrong and the denial of another fundamental right: The right of older Americans to enjoy the fruits of a lifetime's labor at ease and in financial security.

Truth in funerals

From all indications, the government is about to require more candor and more competition in the funeral industry — and that could turn out to be a good thing for the industry as well as for the families it serves.

Certainly the itemized cost of a funeral should be made available, without hesitation, to anyone who requests it.

Nor is there any reason why funeral directors — or lawyers, or doctors, or anyone else — should be forbidden, by law or custom, to advertise the prices they charge or the services they provide.

Two years ago the Federal Trade Commission proposed that such rules of operation be made mandatory. And after taking testimony in six cities, an FTC judge, Jack B. Kahn, has reached a similar conclusion.

Kahn found that some families are paying too much for funerals because they buy services (like expensive caskets) they don't need. Sometimes they simply haven't been told what the less costly alternatives might be.

He also found that state regulatory boards tend to be dominated by the industry itself and that price competition often is frowned on rather than encouraged.

In many cases, we suspect, families buy expensive funerals as much out of pride ("What will the neighbors think?") as out of confusion or bereavement.

It's also fair to say that funeral directors, as a group, are as honest and ethical as people in any other business or profession. For its own protection, though, the public is better off knowing a lot about a product or service than knowing little. And the funeral industry is no exception to the rule.

Think on these things

There's a season to most everything — but there is never a season to loving someone. It has always been thought that love belongs to the young. In nearly every instance aging persons have been given the idea that there is something unusual about their ability to love another person — that only the young have the privilege of expressing their emotions.

Caring belongs to the one who cultivates it. Years and years of cultivation simply make better the relationships of people at any age. The beginning is merely a stage, but as time passes a deeper and more important love emerges and nothing compares with the giving and sharing of those loveliest hours.

Last straw to a ripoff

Dear Editor:

Bingo? Alcoholic beverages? I suppose next we will invite organized gamblers to set up establishments for gambling in Pomona.

I refer to the amending of the bingo ordinance last Monday evening at the Pomona City Council meeting. It was bad enough to bring legalized bingo to our fair city, but to amend the ordinance to include the sale of alcoholic beverages seemed the last straw to a ripoff of the stable taxpayers who do not gamble but are asked to pick up the welfare (and now I suppose it will be the drunken-driver accident rate after the games) tab when the gamblers lose and must seek welfare from the taxpayers to pay for their necessities and those of their families.

I believe Ben Ochoa should be commended for his vote against the bingo ordinance and the other three councilmen should be ashamed of their vote. The Rev. Hiram Sanders of the Pomona Nazarene Church should also be commended for his support of Christian principles and opposing the ordinance.

Yes, I am a Christian and spend much time, effort and money without expecting any financial remuneration in the interest of good government and the welfare of our community. With housing getting out of reach of our young people and taxes so high they are causing many others to lose their homes and gambling being a downgrading of a community, and alcoholic beverages our No. 1 drug problem, it seems the passing of this ordinance is not in line with the oaths of office taken by our council members to protect the citizens from all enemies, domestic and foreign, and alcoholic beverages are one of the worst enemies.

I would hope before the third reading of this ordinance, it will again be revised — or eliminated — in the interest of the welfare of the citizens of Pomona.

Who will replace Brezhnev?

WASHINGTON — Some of the sharpest eyes in the West will be watching Leonid Brezhnev, the indomitable old overlord of the Soviet Union, on October 4. That's the day he is expected to choose a deputy who might eventually step into his shoes.

Officially, the heir apparent will assume the cumbersome title of first deputy chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet. This is a new position created by the new constitution the Presidium will adopt on October 4. The job probably will go to the man next in line to succeed Brezhnev.

The selection, therefore, could determine whether world affairs will become more turbulent or tranquil. For the ruler of all the Russians has the power to rock the world boat.

No one expects Brezhnev to forsake his boat-rocking powers in the immediate future. But he will be 71 in December and he is beset by nagging afflictions. Those who keep an eye on the Kremlin think they detect signs that he may be faltering.

Second in power to Brezhnev appears to be Andrei Kirilenko, who controls Soviet industry. But he is already 71 and, therefore, too old to replace Brezhnev for long. So Kirilenko may be bypassed for a younger leader.

The one who seems to take charge when the old Politburo patriarchs are out of town is 59-year-old Andrei Kulakov. Nominally, he directs Soviet agriculture and keeps a low profile. He is inexperienced in foreign affairs and lacks leadership stature. But in the backrooms of the Kremlin, he has become a power. He might dominate a new collective leadership when the old crowd moves on.

There is an outside possibility that the No. 2 post could go to Kirill Mazurov. He is now second in command to Aleksei Kosygin in the Council of Ministers. But Mazurov has demonstrated the cold bureaucratic skills it takes to get ahead in the Kremlin. He is also a Belorussian, who would be acceptable to the rival Russian and Ukrainian factions in case of a standoff in the Politburo.

It is sheer power, however, that is most respected in the Kremlin. A ruthless younger leader, skilled at intrigue, cannot be overlooked. One who is rising fast is Grigory Romanov, the Leningrad party boss, who is a cunning party in-fighter.

Another possibility is Vladimir Shcherbitsky, the Ukraine party boss, who is not visibly dynamic but has close ties to Brezhnev. Still another junior official who bears watching is Vladimir Dolgikh, who has a reputation for speaking his mind and getting away with it.

Of course, no one outside the Kremlin really knows which leaders will emerge as the old men of the Politburo fade from power.

CONCORDE QUESTION: The Concorde may be the world's noisiest airliner, but its engine roar is a lullaby compared to the political uproar it has raised on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps the loudest objections have come from Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., who is fighting to keep the Concorde from landing at more U.S. airports. He not only has raised a public howl but has also made some private moves against the Concorde.

In a confidential letter to Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, Scheuer expressed "grave personal doubts" over the federal testing of the Concorde's noise levels. He submitted 82 blunt questions for Adams' transportation experts to answer.

Scheuer, for example, demanded to know why the Concorde made more noise than a Boeing 707 three miles from the landing strip but suddenly became more quiet than a 707 one mile away. He suggested the Concorde pilots "have been cutting their engines as they fly over" the noise testing points.

At first the complex noise monitoring tests were conducted by students from Virginia Community College. "What were their qualifications for performing these tests?" asked Scheuer.

He contended the Concorde noise levels are higher than the government will tolerate in factories. "In industry," Scheuer pointed out, "no worker is permitted to be subjected to any duration of noise above 115 decibels." But through May 1977, the noise from overflying Concordes "exceeded that limit on at least 22 occasions."

All in all, the anti-Concorde congressmen are making a lot of noise about noise.

HIGH PRICES: Behind the price rise at the supermarket has been a booming business in the commodities market. Speculators trade in futures; that is, they hedge against future prices of such products as sugar and coffee. The speculators gamble that prices will go up or down.

Their trading, in turn, helps to cause prices to go up or down. During the past year, brokers exchanged an incredible $1 trillion worth of commodity contracts. This was a 100 percent increase over the trading just three years ago.

Insiders tell us futures trading definitely helped cause coffee prices, for example, to triple. Yet no one in Washington is paying much attention to the commodity futures market.

The East-West standoff

First Lady Rosalynn Carter said something the other day that I wish she'd left unsaid.

A reporter asked her, "Do you feel that you could be President?"

Mrs. Carter replied, "No, I don't want the responsibility for the world."

That is precisely the preoccupation that tripped up Richard Nixon!

His proclamations of worldwide human rights for everyone are being construed in Russia and elsewhere as meddling in internal affairs of other nations, and those nations are rightly resentful.

Most of us are wearying of electing Presidents of the United States — only to have them then imagine themselves to be "the President of the world."

Most of us would prefer a tough-minded, pragmatic, efficient administration of the affairs of our own nation — to make of our White House a lighthouse, instead of a battle station.

Presently, there is an East-West standoff in military matters which promises us time for homefront chores.

A five-month top-level Security Council study confirms that the United States is on a par with Russia militarily — and that economically and politically we are well out front.

Russia has been hollering like everything about our recent tests of the neutron bomb because it is just such "clubs in the closet" which preserve our "par."

That's all right. Shouting has become part of the bargaining process stateside and worldwide.

But this most recent and most comprehensive study of global power now on its way to the President's desk reveals that the rate of Soviet military buildup in strategic arms, in naval deployment and in strength along the Chinese border and in Central Europe has slowed. And whatever their increased strength, it has been offset by our own increasing military sufficiency.

This should and hopefully will ease pressures on the Carter Administration for rapid increases in military spending.

Though this is not our nation's greatest extravagance — welfare is — the military nonetheless has been a spiraling expense what with the soaring costs of sophisticated weaponry. But objective judgment is we now have enough eggs in that basket.

Old hands around the Pentagon won't like this. They are circulating a story which says you must not be surprised — what with all the military budget cuts — if somebody in a blue suit knocks on your door and tries to sell you Air Force cookies.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

By the evening of the fifth day, God had created the heavens and the earth and everything to be found thereabouts except man. Then on the sixth day He made His big mistake. He decided to remedy that oversight. So He created Adam. — One sometimes wonders why He didn't quit at the end of that fifth day while He was ahead.

A creative mistake in his own right, once man realized his full potential he started taking over and creating mistakes on his own. One classic example should suffice. Since 1893 three thousand makes of automobiles have come and gone.

But here in America we have become adept at making certain our mistakes are properly disposed of. You'll find their ashes and decomposing remnants in incinerators and landfills throughout the length and breadth of this nation. Furthermore, to accomplish this disposal task in the neatest and most efficient way possible, five billion trash bags were used by Americans last year.

However, give man credit. Some of his creations really do stand the test of time. Bottles of rare old wines, for instance. Seldom does a real wine connoisseur ever drink their contents. He simply brings them out from time to time to be displayed and bragged about before envious friends.

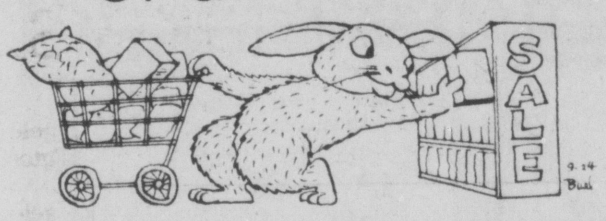
Dr. Miller

Rabbit fond of all foods



DEAR DR. MILLER: Mushmouth, my rabbit, is fond of odd munchies. He likes popcorn, bread, crackers, bran flakes and cheese. He also likes normal rabbit food. Can any of his favorites cause him problems? — Y.B.

DEAR Y.B.: Mushmouth may make out very well. None of his off-beat snacks are particularly hazardous to his health, IF consumed in moderation.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Here's what happened. My wife, when she got back to the car, found the dog almost unconscious in the back seat and she rushed him into the hospital. They diagnosed it as heat exhaustion and worked with him but he died during the night. I loved that dog. My wife did, too, but not enough, it seems.

She claims she is not responsible because she had left the windows partially open for air. Should I forgive her? — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: Yes, you should — not because what she did was right — it obviously wasn't — but because she did not know what she was doing. It is a sad thing that many people do not realize how quickly the interior temperature in a car can climb, not only from the heat of the heating sun, but the heat caused by the dog itself. Even with all the car windows completely open, the temperature inside may be unbearable. On a warm day, there is no way one can be sure a dog left in a parked car will not be endangered.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Three times now, my Siamese cats have been given cortisone for skin diseases. They started sneezing a week later. None of these cats was exposed to other cats with any sniffles, sneezes or respiratory diseases.

Is there such a thing as being allergic to cortisone? Otherwise, why would the cats start this sneezing and eye-tearing like this? — K.M.

DEAR K.M.: Cats, or any other species, may have unfavorable reactions from the use of cortisone-family drugs. The upper respiratory syndrome described would not be typical of cortisone effects. Rather, these symptoms are more likely due to reactivation of a latent feline viral rhinotraecheitis virus (FVR) as a result of giving the cortisone-family drugs. A great many cats which have had rhinotraecheitis then carry the disease in a latent form without symptoms until or unless some form of stress reactivates the virus. The cortisone drugs have been found a very effective means of (accidentally) reactivating the rhinotraecheitis infection in cats.

For Monday, Sept. 26, 1977
Your Birthday, Sept. 26, 1977

The chances for success in your chosen field look extremely promising this coming year. Be prepared, though, to contribute a lot of perspiration, work and even overtime to attain it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Associate only with those who can enhance your reputation today. If you travel with questionable company, you'll be counted as one of them. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're popular and well-received today, but you must accept kudos graciously, or you may irritate another enough to conspire against you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Persons with whom you have established solid bonds will bend over backward to help you today. Not so with others outside your circle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Bargaining for something major? Don't wait too long to wrap the deal up. Trying to grind out more could blow everything.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You love to champion the underdog. That's a noble instinct. Today, however, remember who signs the checks before backing anybody against your boss.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It would be better not to borrow anything today. If you must, handle it with all the tender, loving care you can muster.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Should you have important matters to attend to, take care of them early. Delay is not to your advantage and could even prove costly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be more interested in having fun today than in keeping your nose to the grindstone. When it's too late, you may realize the folly of your ways.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions affecting your finances and career are quite favorable today, with two exceptions: Don't gamble, and avoid confrontation with the boss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Involved in a project with another? Stick to your script. A serious rift could result if you change it without consulting your cohort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Show appreciation to those who have put forth 100 percent to do what you've asked of them. Grant any requests they may have today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is the day to look gift horses in the mouth. The donor may be trying to use your gratitude to set you up for something sleazy.

Ann Landers

Both sides of Zodiac story

Dear Ann Landers: Maybe you don't put much stock in the Zodiac, but I can tell you the woman who wrote and said a Scorpio should never marry a Sagittarius knew what she was talking about.

My mother and father were that mix and I grew up in the middle of a battlefield. My earliest childhood memories are of the two of them yelling, throwing dishes and breaking up the furniture. When the moon was full they had such knock-down, drag-out fights the neighbors had to call the police.

I'm now 18 and have been meeting some neat guys at college. The first question I ask is, "When is your birthday? Anybody born between November 22 and December 21 is off-limits for me. I'm a Scorpio who believes — An Ounce Of Prevention Is Worth A Pound Of Cure

Dear Ounce. Thanks for the testimony. Here's another one:

Dear Ann Landers: I'm glad nobody told me 32 years ago that a Scorpio shouldn't marry a Sagitarrius. Had I bought the story I would have missed out on a very good and happy life.

The sign you are born under doesn't mean a thing. What counts is whether or not you love one another enough to work at making a go of it. I'm signing my letter — November 9 and December 9

Dear Nov. and Dec.: I'm not about to get in the middle of anything so soon after telling Bertha she should iron her old man's shorts so I'll just say thank you both for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your articles are read by millions of people I hope you will print this letter and help eliminate a lot of frustration, anger and anxiety.

Not many folks can afford to have a telephone in every room of their home, yet every day thousands of people will ring three or four times and hang up. The party who has made the call is disappointed because he assumes the person he is trying to reach is not at home. The party who hears the phone, runs to answer it and lifts up the receiver just in time to hear the click-off becomes frustrated and irritated.

I often receive business calls at home so I have installed five telephones in the house and one outside because I enjoy gardening. Yet, over and over my phone will ring four or five times and by the time I pick up the receiver the caller has hung up. What really makes me mad is when people say, "I tried to phone you three times last week but you're never home."

Everyone who makes a phone call should wait for at least ten rings before he hangs up. Maybe if they see it in your column it will get through their thick skulls. — Bob T. In Georgia

Dear Bob: To put it another way, ten rings takes approximately 60 seconds. Anyone who doesn't have the patience to wait one minute for someone to answer the phone must not want to talk to him very much.

CONFIDENTIAL to Nosy In Newark: (1) Yes. (2) Absolutely. (3) It depends on the physical condition of the people involved. (4) None of your business.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

A better metric measurement

Wouldn't you know it? Sixty-seven million kids running around and I give birth to one who speaks Metric like a native Met.

I heard him yesterday in the kitchen talking about how we're going to have to up the milk to another couple of 3.79 liters a week.

"Bite your tongue!" I said angrily. "This is an English-speaking house."

"Mom!" he said, "you'd better get used to metric. It won't be long before your cookbooks, canned goods, gas pumps, barometers — everything will be in metric."

"Look, I did not come this far in life to bring home a size 63 dress."

"Do you remember what you did to us when we were little and had difficulty remembering things?"

"I put crib notes on white Life Savers?"

"You made little rhymes and games out of it. Like 30 days hath November, April, June, and September, February hath 28 alone and all the rest have 31."

"So, make your point."

"So, I'm going to help you with metrics the same way. Now, repeat after me:

"226.8 grams hath 8 ounces,
".453 kilograms is a pound,
"One foot has .3 meters,

Except for grams, liters, kilometers and hectares which are different."

I looked at him a full two minutes before speaking. "Did I ever tell you how the chicken felt when she discovered she had been sitting on a light bulb for nine months?"

"If that's too hard, how about, 'If Peter Piper picked a hectoliter of pickled peppers . . . '"

"Look, you aren't listening," I said. "If I told you once, I told you a million times, I am an orthodox Fahrenheit person who refuses to convert to Celsius. I will not listen to any more. Consider the topic closed!"

"I don't suppose you're interested in knowing that someday Miss America will measure 90-50-87.5."

"Maybe I've been too hasty. It sounds like the metric system has some merit."

Ways of combatting acne

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 15 and am very concerned about my face. I don't have acne but I do get whiteheads and many blackheads on my nose. I am fairly good looking for a guy but I don't think that my face is going to help me by breaking out. I am concerned and you are my last try.

Every morning after my shower I splash my face with as hot water as I can stand at least three times. Then I lather with a beauty cream soap and wash my face, then rinse with warm water followed by cold water. Then I use a medicated acne cleanser and finally apply acne cream to cover up the spots. I do this again before I go to bed.

I don't eat chocolate or french fries. I try to stay away from all fried or greasy foods. I would also like to know if worry causes pimples?

DEAR READER - No one likes to have blackheads or whiteheads or pimples. Incidentally, we call all of these acne so you do have acne. Acne that is associated with inflammation that leads to scarring can usually be prevented these days.

You may do better to use a different soap. Some commercial soaps include oils to moisturize the skin and prevent drying. In the presence of acne the problem is one of too much oil and not enough drying.

Wash your face regularly twice a day with a mild soap but avoid the beauty cleanser type soaps. Also leave off any of the lotions. I am sending you the Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you a better idea of what to do and equally important, what not to do about acne. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. As that issue explains, the old idea that foods cause acne is no longer believed. Carefully matched studies of individuals eating a variety of foods have proved that foods are not the cause of acne. That specifically includes chocolate. I think you are better off for other reasons to avoid sweet and greasy foods but it is not a factor in your blackheads or whiteheads.

You simply have overactive sebaceous glands that produce the oily sebum over your face and also over the scalp area. When one of these gets plugged with the fatty material the plug becomes either a blackhead or a whitehead. You can't simply wash these off as the plug is usually just below the surface of the skin. Nevertheless, steaming the skin with a warm wash cloth often makes it easier to expel the contents but you must be careful not to injure the skin by squeezing as most people are inclined to do.

When the fatty material breaks down, as a result of bacteria that live within the skin pore the resulting free fatty acids are irritating to the skin and cause the redness.

If you cannot control your skin problems with simple measures I would certainly recommend that you see a dermatologist. Using modern methods a dermatologist can usually control a case of acne to the point that no permanent scarring will occur and that is worth a lot for the rest of your life.

Yes, worry can cause an outcropping of acne but the most common cause is simply the maturing part of life when boys or girls start producing more sex hormones. The hormones activate the sebaceous glands and the problem begins.

Opening lead — J♠

Here is a hand to try out on your friends, but if you do try it out, don't laugh at those who miss the correct line of play. It is the sort of hand that looks so automatic that almost anyone from the best player in the world to the worst player in the world will land in the soup.

South wins the spade lead and will attack clubs right away. If he goes after diamonds he will wind up with just three diamonds, three spades and two hearts.

Therefore, he has to lead a club at trick two and here is where the right club must be led. South must lead the queen of clubs.

If clubs are going to break 2-2 or 3-1 it doesn't matter which club South leads. If West has all, it doesn't make any difference, but there is East with all four. If South leads a low club East takes his ace right away and plays a second spade. Now South won't be able to run clubs and won't have time to establish diamonds.

If South leads the queen of clubs and East takes his ace, South wins the return, ducks a club next and scores four clubs, three spades and two hearts. If East ducks, South goes right after diamonds.

The bidding by our opponents has been notrump — three notrump.

We lead the four of hearts! We aren't sure that this is the right lead, but just that we think it is the one most likely to cause trouble for declarer.

Vests preferred by fun-lovers

Note the men's vest continues to make a strong comeback. The men who wear vests tend to be known for a sense of humor. But it wasn't always so. When vests were on the way out around the start of World War II, the wearers of same were usually identified as serious citizens unresponsive to quick wit. Likewise, the sober businessmen who endured suspenders. And those dour souls who carried umbrellas. If our Chief Prognosticator is right, you can expect suspenders and umbrellas to make comebacks, too, like vests, among the more humorous.

PAPERWORK

Q. "What percentage of the paperwork filed in the typical office is ever seen again by anybody?"

A. Less than 5 per cent, if the statistics of a decade ago are still valid. No recent studies prove the point. But somewhat elderly reports also indicate that less than 1 per cent of that paperwork is ever seen again three days after it's filed.

Q. "Isn't the reproduction cycle of the coconut palm identical to that of the human female?"

A. Not quite. The palm is capable of bearing offspring at 8 years, usually does so at 13, continues until 60 or thereabouts, then survives to 80 or 90.

Q. "How many people in this country now are being kept alive on organs donated by relatives and other living dogooders?"

A. About 20,000. And that doesn't cover the 40,000 staying alive with organs from cadavers.

Q. "What animal in the wild makes the loudest noise?"

A. The lion, I'm told. Some say its roar can be heard for 10 miles.

NERVOUS?

Why take offense if somebody describes you as "nervous?" In the big book at hand, the first definition of nervous is "sinewy, strong." The second, "marked by strength of thought, feeling or style." The third, having to do with "neurons." The fourth, having to do with "nerves." True, you get to "jumpy" in the fifth definition. But if you can go through the first four to prove you're sinewy and strong in thought, feeling and style, what's it matter if you're also a little jumpy?"

Counseling Corner

Facing life brings growth

By R. CLIFF WATERS
Marriage and Family Counselor

The last time I saw Danny, he looked a lot different than the first time I saw him. When I first met Danny, he was the kind of person you'd hardly notice. He was a slight-built young man with a complexion like sandstone — a sort of bumbling fellow who always seemed to be backing away and apologizing for something. He was, in fact, a graduate student nearing the end of his studies. At 25 he was as intellectually sharp as he was socially awkward. It was not surprising that he was quiet and passive; he had never moved out of his parents' home and was subject to continuing parental advice and scrutiny.

Danny had begun to be anxious about his future and the fact that he would have to get a job soon. He was anxious enough to consult a counselor for help. In the therapist's office, this unhappy young man began the difficult task of pecking away at the shell in which he had been transported through life thus far. Danny began to identify for himself exactly what had happened and had not happened during his life. He sensed his own capitulation to parental domination, a major factor with which he had never dealt. He began to feel the pain that had built up inside himself during all these years. It was hard for him to talk about this pain and about his parents; it is hard for everyone. But he knew he had to begin. He worked hard to make a life of his own.

It would be nice to say that Danny moved quickly through therapy, making new friends and influencing people as he set his course towards a happily-ever-after life. This was not so. It is hardly ever so for anyone who opens himself anew to self-examination and growth. For Danny, there were pains and disappointments far deeper than any he had known during the sheltered years of his life. What was different was the new way he had of responding to these difficulties, the more constructive reactions that made these events into sources of continued development.

Danny came a long way in the months in which he had combined the experience of therapy with his first frontal assault on life. He is far from where he wants to be emotionally, even now. But Danny, the last time I saw him, was doing battle with life and finding much more of himself in the process. He is an example, in a way, for everyone. He chose to face and deal with his life. He is growing and there are problems lying in wait for him. But nobody can take his growth away from him.

View from inside looking out

By GARY PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

TONOPAH, Nev. (AP) — Mikeal Murphy writes a weekly column for several rural Nevada newspapers from his office in a downtown bar — a column as colorful as this well known mining town.

Some call it wisdom from a bottle.

Murphy, 54, is a bearded, hard-drinking, hard-living, funloving Irishman who likes living in Nevada and writing a weekly — "Murph Says" — column for papers like the Fallon Eagle-Standard, the Reese River Reville, the Tonopah Times-Bonanza and the Eureka Sentinel. The total circulation of these newspapers amounts to about 6,000.

The columns, long and rambling, offer a light look at Nevada's residents and transients, often from the inside of a bar out.

"I'm a good alcoholic and I write about what I see inside the bars in this state. You'd be surprised about all that you can learn in these places," said Murphy.

Murphy is a miner first, for economic reasons, and a writer second, because that's what he wants to do but can't afford to.

"I write my best stuff while I'm drinking. I like to live and work in a saloon. I was raised in a saloon and these are all my people. It's where I hear all my stories. Granted it's not always the truth, it's filled with some Murphyisms, but it represents a part of life," he said.

To find Murphy in Tonopah, once a roaring mining town, the town where Howard Hughes married Jean Peters in the late 1950s, one needs only to keep walking into bars on the west side of the main street until Murph pops up.

He lives above the Past Time Bar, but meanders to the Rex Club at times, not to mention the Ace Club. If things get too slow there, he might cross the street and visit the historic Mizpah Hotel.

Murphy has lived in Nevada many years, hunting and picking mining claims across the state. When he wasn't doing that, he was tending bar in Austin, another famous Nevada mining town. He's married, but separated.

If anyone personifies the rural Nevada attitude about life and politics, Murphy does. He is quick to nail President Carter in his column on anything that seems to violate the canons of maximum freedom, to which Murphy subscribes.

He wants to make sure he and his peers are free to wander the hills or come into town and get drunk when they want — that's freedom.'

And he holds the No. 1 membership card in the Sazarak Liars' Club in Austin.

His favorite story?

"It's about a local rancher, Chet Meyers. He was fishing one day when he felt a snake nudge his leg. He looked down and saw that snake had a frog in his mouth. He took the frog and used it for bait, and paid the snake with a drink of rum. Well, he couldn't handle all the frogs he caught that day," said Murphy.

His current project?

"I've been asked to write a 'Drinking Man's Guide to Tonopah', and that could take a few days," he said.

Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania's second-largest city with a population of 520,117 (2,401,245 in a four-county metropolitan area), is the third largest headquarters city in the United States in addition to being a leading industrial center. One-fifth of the nation's steelmaking capacity is concentrated in the metropolitan area as well as the world's largest manufacturers of aluminum, steel rolls, rolling mill machinery, air brakes, plate and window glass and safety equipment.

Crouch concert slated

Andrae Crouch and The Disciples, Grammy Award-winners as top gospel group of the year, will present a concert at the Anaheim Convention Center at 8 p.m. Oct. 3.

The group has been on six world tours and released nine albums and continues to hold a number one position on gospel music charts. The group is active in civic affairs throughout the country. Concert tours take it throughout the world where auditoriums are invariably packed to capacity.

The program is under the sponsorship of Gospel Concerts, a non-profit organization.

On exhibit will be Kachina dolls crafted by the Hopi of Arizona and New Mexico, Navajo blankets, rare Santa Domingo and Santa Clara pottery, and baskets, large to miniature in size, woven by members of a wide variety of Indian tribes: the Pima, Western Apache, Washoo, Hupa, the Havasupai and Cahuilla.

This is the 18th edition of Chatt's semi-annual event, the longest-playing public trade show in the West devoted to showing genuine American Indian arts and crafts.

Also on display will be examples of silver Concha belts; Navajo and Zuni silver and turquoise jewelry; an extensive collection of Remington and Russell prints reproduced on Canvas; as well as Indian beadwork, buckskin and woven clothing; ancient tribal weapons and ritual artifacts.

Fred Sweetwater, the champion Oklahoma Indian dancer will be back to supervise an Indian Pow Wow which runs from opening to closing (Oct. 15-16).

Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children 6-12; under six free. Show hours are noon to 9 p.m., Oct. 14; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Oct. 15, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 16. Great Western Exhibit Center is located at 2120 S. Eastern Ave., Commerce (at the Atlantic Boulevard exit of Santa Ana Freeway.)

'Claremont Clay Spectrum'

Ceramics show at Griswold's

Eight local artists will show ceramics in "The Claremont Clay Spectrum" at Griswold's Art Gallery, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards, Claremont, through October.

Taking part will be John Blough, John Fassbinder, David Furman, Dale Gaynor, David King, Harrison McIntosh, Linda Rosenus and Paul Soldner. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

A teacher at Mt. San Antonio College, Blough is known for his well-designed functional pottery. In this show he will depart from this and concern himself with clay surface areas and the presentation of a visual, tactile surface with variations of color and surface texture.

Fassbinder's pottery is notable for its sensitive color and exquisite design. His affinity for painting and drawing has added a distinctive elegance to ceramics that are both utilitarian and esthetically beautiful. He received a B.A. from the University of Washington and an M.F.A. from the Claremont Graduate School, where he subsequently became assistant professor of art.

Furman is currently assistant professor of art at Pitzer College and the Claremont Graduate School. His list of exhibitions includes the deYoung Memorial Museum, San Francisco; the Whitney Museum and Museum of Contemporary Crafts, New York City; the Chicago Art Institute, and the Los Angeles County Art Museum. He had three one-man shows at the David Stuart Galleries, Los Angeles. Furman holds a B.A. from the University of Oregon and an M.F.A. from the University of Washington.

Miss Gaynor holds a B.A. from Pomona College and an M.A. from Cal State Fullerton. Her main concern is with a new image for an age-old material, adobe. Her forms have been described as "portable landscapes" constructed of stabilized earth, natural fibers, metal, wood, paper, glass and living mosses. She has conducted many workshops and, in 1978, will be lecturing on "Adobe as Sculpture" at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Born in Honolulu, Hawaii, King received a B.A. from Pomona College and an M.F.A. from the Claremont Graduate School. He is known for his large wheel-thrown porcelain or stoneware pieces. He has exhibited throughout California and has received numerous awards and fellowships including the Harsh and Braken fellowships in 1975 and 1976.

The refined sophistication of McIntosh's ceramics has been internationally recognized for many years. Constantly striving to maintain the delicate balance of form and decoration, he presents a totality of color, texture and design in each finished piece. He has had one-man exhibits throughout the United States and is included in more than 15 major museum collections.

The work of Miss Rosenus follows two directions: sculptural — large, raku-fired sculpture assembled from wheel-thrown parts that have been distorted and, functional — generally porcelain with the white surface serving as a ground for two-dimensional ideas. She holds an M.F.A. from Claremont Graduate School and has studied extensively with Soldner.

Soldner has an M.A. from the University of Colorado at Boulder and an M.F.A. from Otis Art Institute. He has received 34 national and international awards, had 86 one-man shows and given almost 200 demonstration/lectures. Soldner has been instrumental in the development of contemporary "raku" techniques and was influential in the revival of salt glazing and various means of decorating pottery.

Griswold's gallery has 20 sustaining artists and a changing program of shows on a monthly schedule. The Center encompasses a 2,500-square-foot fine arts gallery, seven individual studios, ceramics gallery and a 2,500-square-foot ceramics workshop.

ON HER TOES — Pretty Marianna Tcherkassky will perform with Stars of the American Ballet in programs at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 20 and 22 and at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 23. Also starring are Fernando Bujones, Suzanne Farrell and Peter Martins. Tickets are on sale at all Mutual agencies.

Piano recital set at Pomona

Glory Fisher, Pomona College class of 1940, and Eleanor Miller will present a recital of music for two pianos and piano four-hands in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

The program features music by Clementi, Rachmaninoff, and Ravel, as well as music less often heard: Aria and Toccata by the American Norman Dello Joio, "Omaggio" by Lawrence Moss, "The Cry" by Wallingford Riegger and Variations on a Theme by Paganini by the Polish composer Witold Lutoslawski.

The two pianists have been partners since their student days at Juilliard School of Music, and both are residents of Santa Barbara. They have toured colleges and organizations throughout California.

They recently returned from a tour of Romania and Egypt under sponsorship of the Cultural Arts Presentations Program of the U.S. State Department, where they played programs of American music.

Mrs. Fisher is on the staff at UC Santa Barbara, and is pianist for the Santa Barbara Symphony. Mrs. Miller has taught at Indiana University, where she appeared frequently as soloist and in chamber music concerts, and is now on the faculty at Westmont College.

Their teachers at Juilliard were Olga Samaroff and Alexander Siloti. Mrs. Fisher studied with Daryl Dayton while she attended Pomona College, when her name was Glory Zahradnik.

Dance program slated

The two-member Mixed Motion Dance Company of Los Angeles will present a lecture/demonstration at Chino High School at 1 p.m. Oct. 3. Admission is free.

The company consists of Martha Partridge and Donna Sternberg, dancer/musicians. They are currently touring under the auspices of the California Arts Council. The Council has awarded them a Special Projects Grant to present a variety of dance events throughout Southern California.

The Mixed Motion Dance Company's performance repetoire offers the audience a wide range of dance pieces including live music composed by Miss Partridge.

The class will meet in the auditorium for a one-hour discussion with instructor Roger McFarland, instructional media specialist at Mt. San Antonio College, then view a full-length film at 7:30 p.m.

Films and dates of showing are:

"Lord Jim," Sept. 26; "Winterset," Oct. 24; "Jane Eyre," Nov. 14; "Raisin in the Sun," Nov. 28; "Wuthering Heights," Dec. 5; "From Here to Eternity," Jan. 9; "All the King's Men," March 6; "Ship of Fools," March 13; "Murder in the Cathedral," April 10 and "Long Day's Journey Into Night," April 24. The first six films listed will be covered in the class sessions.

The public is invited to attend the films free of charge. Enrollment in the course is not necessary.

Hawaii campus

Brigham Young University has a permanent campus in Hawaii at Laie, on the island of Oahu. One thousand students are enrolled and represent nearly 25 cultures throughout Asia and Polynesia.

LEONARD PENNARIO

Pianist to give recital

Pianist Leonard Pennario, internationally known as a solo artist and guest performer with major orchestras, will present a recital in the Creative Arts Building at Cal State San Bernardino at 8 p.m. Oct. 14. Tickets are $10.

A reception following the concert will be hosted by the Arrowhead Allied Arts Council.

In the years of his adult professional career, Pennario has performed in the world's major recital halls, with the great orchestras and in a long list of best-selling records.

After Pennario's appearance as soloist with the London Philharmonic, the London Times wrote: "He is an extraordinarily refined artist with fingers as agile and a mind as subtle as those of the very greatest pianists memory can recall."

MSAC plans paper show

Expressive uses of paper in experimental drawings, graphics and other two and three dimensional art will be featured in the Mt. San Antonio College Gallery's first art exhibition of the season.

Opening with a reception Tuesday evening at 7:30, "Paper as Media" will continue to Oct. 28. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, evenings 6:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays. Special tours of the exhibit may also be arranged through gallery director Michael Preble.

Noted Santa Monica artist Richard Royce, one of the artists represented in the show, will demonstrate his paper casting techniques in a slide presentation Thursday Sept. 29 at 1 p.m. in the gallery.

The exhibition and demonstration are open to the public free of charge.

Engaged in a desperate battle

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — Much has been written on the ravages of hard and soft drugs throughout French society, and recently especially in public schools and universities.

But little attention has been given to reports on the IVth National Congress Against Alcoholism which gathered together close to 500 doctors, psychologists, sociologists, demographers, economists and social workers as well as Alcoholics Anonymous members, all engaged in fighting a desperate battle.

Speakers inevitably underlined the fact that the "alcoholic Frenchman" is not a myth. Records show that two million citizens (some say three million) drink from 25 to 30 quarts of pure alcohol per year. With disastrous effects on the family, work and social responsibility. A drug addict seldom causes such widespread damage to others as do all the cases of cirrhosis of the liver, D.T.'s, accidents at work causing disability and finally death, all being the price of what ethnologist Maurice Robert calls "the popular religion of wine and alcohol." The fact is that drinking, in France, is equivalent to a rite. It is a symbol of pleasure and communication between friends, the celebration of all happy events and commemorations. But it is only in the last 50 years that alcohol, as distinguished from wine, has degenerated into a daily habit.

Many in the anti-alcoholic fight in France wondered whether they ever would be able to awaken public opinion against drunkenness. Past efforts, which started after World War I, seemed not to have made much progress. What to do against such inertia? Frighten, even more so-than in the past, the men and women bent on self-destruction (reports revealed that women topers had increased by 20 per cent). The majority are all blissfully unconscious that they are rushing headlong to meet their doom before they are made aware that their health is irremediably damaged.

The congress also stressed the fact that a great gulf exists, paradoxically, between the realization of having reached the dangerous crossroad and the urge to stop drinking.

Thus the adult Frenchman beats all the world's records of alcoholic consumption with his 30 quarts a year. Twice more than a German, three times more than a Briton or an American and four times more than a Dane or a Swede.

Figures are eloquent: 17,500 citizens died of cirrhosis of the liver last year while 50,000 deaths resulted directly from acute alcoholism. Purchases of alcoholic drinks totalled 35 billion francs ($7 billion) per year — the same sum as went into the nation's public and private hospitals. Alcoholism represents 10 billion francs ($2 billion) per year in health insurance. Moreover, it is responsible for 9 per cent of masculine hospital patients, 8 per cent of women. Thirty per cent of patients hospitalized suffer from the side effects of alcoholism. From one to two out of 10 working accidents are due to alcohol. Tests applied to 20 per cent of automobile drivers involved in road accidents revealed a high percentage of alcohol.

Even more depressing for the fighting of this great scourge is that acute alcoholism, which at the beginning of the century was more or less confined to the blue collar class, now has invaded the middle and upper classes with the adoption of the cocktail hour before lunch or dinner or both, a matter of social status. Then there are the women at home, lonely or bored, who little by little become confirmed alcoholics. The number of these is difficult to evaluate. This type of alcoholism may be more discreet but the long range effects are the same.

Politically, the alcohol lobby is extremely powerful. Twenty years ago when Premier Pierre Mendes-France, a teetotaller, denounced the winegrowers' and distributors' interests and took his seat at the National Assembly with a glass of milk, he realized he was risking his political future by asking the government to pass a law forbidding the opening of new cafes and bistros all over France. There are some 374,000 of these and no law governing how much a citizen is allowed to drink. Neither is there any law governing the number of hours a cafe may operate.

It is, however, forbidden to open a new bistro in the vicinity of a school or factory, nor is it allowed to sell the goodwill of any already established.

"Specialists know all the facets of the alcohol problem — from alcohol-evasion, alcohol folklore, alcohol-habit to alcohol-refuge," points out Madeleine Franck in the popular evening paper France-Soir. She stresses that special efforts should be directed to curbing the recrudescence of alcoholism in teen-agers.

Hungary seeks to cut back suicides

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — During the course of an average day, about a dozen Hungarians commit suicide and at least five times that number attempt to take their own lives, according to the government newspaper Magyar Hirlap.

In Budapest alone, said the newspaper, that meant 853 suicides in a single year, making the suicide rate in Hungary's capital city higher than in any other part of the country.

Of the 50 "registered causes of death," the newspaper added, suicide ranks sixth. But among persons between the ages of 15 and 24, it is the primary cause.

While conceding that Hungary has a suicide problem, the article indicated that it was magnified in international statistics because the country is legally bound to report all cases.

In some countries, the newspaper pointed out, postmortems are only possible if the family agrees, "so 'drug poisoning' or an 'accidental car crash' can become euphemisms for actual suicide."

But, said the article calling for broader programs aimed at predicting and preventing suicide, "all in all, the high number of suicides is a disquieting social phenomenon in Hungary, and the figure has kept mounting for years."

Health establishments, the police, families of potential suicides, colleagues at work, should all combine their efforts to fight the menace, the newspaper urged.

"Cry for Help" is a Hungarian counseling service which is said to have been successful in preventing suicide by 11 per cent of those who telephoned.

LAUNCHING A WINNER

Oklahoma kicker Uwe von Schamann kicks a field goal past the efforts of Ohio State's Kelton Dansler (32), David Adkins (94) and Eddie Beamon (67) to win the game for Sooners 29-28 Saturday at Columbus. Bud Hebert (33) watches the kick. See story, page 19.

Trojans breeze

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The final score was USC 51, TCU 0. But the game itself wasn't that close.

The Trojans probably have tougher practices than Saturday afternoon's lop-sided win over outmanned Texas Christian.

Number four tailback Rod Connors, a junior, was the game's leading rusher with 124 yards in 13 carries although he didn't see action until the second half.

Connors and number two tailback, Dwight Ford each topped the century mark. Ford had 117 yards in nine carries including touchdown jaunts of 70 and nine yards.

Troy rolled up 642 yards to TCU's 252 and outgained the Horned Frogs 151-4 in the first quarter. With third and fourth string quarterbacks Rob Preston and Walt Ransome at the controls in the fourth quarter, USC gained 118 yards.

As Johnny Carson would ask, "how . . . good are the Trojans?"

"I believe they're as good a team as I've seen in quite some time," said TCH coach F.A. Dry. "They've got depth and speed and they throw well enough to keep the defense off balance.

"They also have good quickness on defense. I don't know if they will lose a game. That's how good they were today."

It's a good thing USC has its usual depth. Linebacker Mario Celotto injured a knee and could be lost for the season. Fullback Mosi Tatupu and offensive tackle Otis Page suffered strained knees.

Understandably, Robinson was somewhat more restrained when he discussed his team.

"We're moving along . . . we're doing well," he admitted. "But we've got a long way to go. We're close to where we were last year at this time . . . maybe a little better. But all our tests are certainly still ahead of us."

Asked about a number one rating since Michigan won by only seven points, Robinson replied, "I don't really know and I honestly don't care. I have other problems . . . like the injury thing."

Harris, who started because first stringer Steve Bayuk was injured in practice, was sacked five times for a total loss of 42 yards and intercepted twice before giving way to senior Jimmy Dan Elzner in the fourth quarter.

Frank Jordan, getting his first chance at place kicking for Troy, was a major success. The 5-9, 182-pound junior, soccer-style kicker from San Francisco, booted three field goals to tie a USC record held by Ron Ayala and Chris Limahelu.

Troy got on the board 2:08 after the kickoff when Jordan booted a 49-yard field goal capping a drive set up by Ford's 32-yard kickoff return.

Next came a 28-yarder then a 24-yard touchdown run by Charles White who finished with 81 yards on 14 carries.

TCU got as far as the USC 23 late in the first half, but had a field goal attempt blocked. But SC, with sophomore Paul McDonald at QB, drove to TCU's 14 where McDonald's touchdown pass to sophomore fullback Ricky Johnson was nullified by a holding penalty.

Jordan then booted a 45-yard field goal to finish the first half scoring with Southern Cal ahead, 23-0. At the half, Troy had 323 yards to TCU's 96 and it obviously was all over for the Texans.

The victory was the 14th straight for Troy over two seasons and was TCU's 14th straight loss over two years. Both are the longest streaks in major college football.

USC, 3-0, hosts Washington State, 2-1, Friday night.

Gophers upset Bruins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Fullback Jeff Thompson scored two touchdowns and Paul Rogind kicked two field goals to lead Minnesota to a 27-to-13 upset victory over 18th-ranked UCLA Saturday.

Thompson, who finished with 68 yards in 18 carries, scored on runs of five and one yard. Rogind hit for 47 and 30 yards to build the Gopher lead to 20-7.

Minnesota, 2-1, led 10-to-7 at the half.

The second half began in a downpour, which contributed to the bad center snap which set the stage for Minnesota's second touchdown.

UCLA was forced to punt on its first series and the snap from center skidded off the ground and bounced off punter Matt McFarland's legs.

Rogind made it 20-7 on his 30-yard kick with just over 12 minutes left in the game. Five seconds later, Minnesota scored again. UCLA's James Owens mishandled Rogind's kickoff and was ruled out of bounds at the three.

On the next play, quarterback Rick Bashore fumbled and Gopher tackle Steve Midboe recovered in the end zone to give Minnesota a 20-point lead.

Freeman McNeil scored UCLA's second touchdown on a one-yard plunge with less than two minutes to play. The Bruins, now 1-2, had marched 63 yards in eight plays.

Minnesota whipped the Bruins 21-3 in the 1962 Rose Bowl, the only other time the teams have met.

Minnesota moved 80 yards in 12 plays on its opening drive and scored when Thompson banged over left tackle from the five. Thompson gained 24 yards in four carries in the drive and flanker Steve Breault picked up 27 on three reverse plays.

Midboe recovered a UCLA fumble at the Bruin 32 on the following series. The Gophers moved to the six-yard-line, but linebacker Jerry Robinson intercepted a pass by Wendell Avery at the five and sprinted 95 yards on the left sideline for a touchdown.

Minnesota took a 10-7 lead with only seven seconds remaining in the half on a 47-yard field goal by Rogind. The Gophers had moved 41 yards in nine plays before a quarterback sack stalled their drive, throwing them back from the Bruin 17 to the 30.

Vikings struggle

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Fran Tarkenton hit running back Chuck Foreman with a 31-yard third-quarter touchdown pass to give the Minnesota Vikings a 93 come-from-behind victory over the still-struggling Tampa Bay Buccaneers Saturday night.

The game, the only one in the National Football League Saturday, was played before a crowd of 66,272 partisan fans who came out to support the 0-16 second-year Bucs.

With Tampa ahead 3-2 after a lackluster first half, Tarkenton engineered three key plays to come up with the game's only touchdown. The 37-year-old Tarkenton scrambled to get off a 28-yard pass to wide receiver Sammie White and another eight-yard toss to running back Sam Johnson to keep the 53-yard drive alive in the third quarter.

Minnesota's other two points came on a first-half safety, while an 18-yard second-quarter field goal accounted for Tampa's only score of the game.

The victory gave the Vikings, defending champs of the National Football Conference, a 1-1 record after a 16-10 opening loss to Dallas in overtime last week.

The Bucs are 0-2 this year after losing 13-3 to Philadelphia a week ago.

Tarkenton, a 17-year pro, completed 25 of 38 passes for 223 yards while Tampa's rookie quarterback Randy Hedberg completed four of 14 for 51 yards.

Tarkenton was intercepted a second time when Tampa linebacker Dewey Selmon stepped in front of a pass at the Tampa 32 in the fourth quarter.

Veteran quarterback Gary Huff, recovering from a leg injury, played the last two minutes for Tampa.

Tampa came from behind to take a 3-2 lead at halftime.

With 1:57 left in the second period, the Bucs' brand new place kicker, Allan Leavitt, booted an 18-yard field goal to put Tampa in front. Leavitt was acquired from the Atlanta Falcons this week.

The Bucs made it to Minnesota's one-yard line in 18 plays, but the Vikings' defense stiffened, stopping Hedberg on a one-yard sneak and forcing Tampa to settle for the three-point field goal.

'Pack misses top rusher

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Claremont High, playing without its chief offensive weapon, suffered a 14-3 loss to Glendora at Citrus College Saturday night.

Running back Grant Warhurst, who rushed for over 188 yards, including a 98-yard touchdown, in the Wolfpack's opener against Bonita last week, injured his knee in practice this week and will be out "quite a while," according to coach Esper Keiser.

Without Warhurst, Claremont was unable to generate any attack. The 'Pack finished the game with 74 yards in total offense.

But Claremont's big and physical defensive unit was able to contain Glendora's Tartans all evening, and kept the 'Pack in the game until the Sierra League school scored its second touchdown with 6:59 left to play.

Glendora's first score was something of a fluke. On third-down-and-eight at Claremont's 16, Tartan quarterback Kevin Sampson directed a pass of about eight or nine yards toward John Mack. A Claremont defender broke up the play by tipping the ball into the air, but it fell into the grasp of Glendora's Chris Roberts as he lunged across the goal line.

That TD and Frank Israel's extra-point kick gave Glendora a 7-0 lead after Claremont's Doug Jollymour had booted a 33-yard field goal in the first quarter.

Claremont recovered another fumbled kick later and Scott Kegans intercepted a Sampson pass in the 'Pack's end zone, but Claremont quarterback Mike Pirolo was intercepted three times to even out the turnovers. Glendora linebacker Mike Bublin grabbed two of Pirolo's aerials, leading to one score, and safety Ken Tillie picked off another at the Tartan four-yard line, ending Claremont's most serious TD threat.

Jeff Smith led Claremont rushers with 41 yards on 14 carries and Fred Flye, Warhurst's replacement added 30 yards before going out with an ankle injury in the third quarter. Pirolo was caught behind the scrimmage line five times for a total loss of 45 yards, giving Claremont a net of just 42 yards on the ground.

Glendora (1-1) amassed 206 offensive yards, 163 on the ground and 43 through the air. Tartan running backs Dan Reedy and Jeff Mowdy rushed for 59 and 51 yards, respectively.

Sampson completed five of 14 passes and ran for 37 yards, including an eight-yard fourth-quarter touchdown.

It was the second victory in two years for Glendora coach Bryan Shaw over Claremont's Keiser. Shaw was a 'Pack running back in the '60s when Keiser was the offensive line coach.

The Wolfpack (1-1) will open San Antonio League play against Ganesha (1-1) Friday at Citrus College.

Burt Hooton stops Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Burt Hooton fired a two-hitter and Los Angeles scored the only run of the game on a bases-loaded walk to Lee Lacy in the sixth inning as the Dodgers edged the Houston Astros 1-0 Saturday night.

Hooton, 11-7, walked only two and struck out five in chalking up his second shutout of the season. He surrendered a second-inning double to Bob Watson and a fifth-inning single to Ed Herrmann while facing only 29 batters in posting his sixth complete game of the season.

Dusty Baker's two-out, sixth-inning double and consecutive walks to Ron Cey and Steve Garvey loaded the bases. Floyd Bannister, 7-9, then walked Lacy to force in Baker as the Dodgers snapped a two-game losing streak.

The Astros missed a scoring opportunity in the second inning when Jose Cruz was thrown out attempting to score from first base on Watson's double to the left-centerfield wall.

Hooton settled down to retire 16 of the next 17 Houston batters to face him as the Dodgers defeated Houston for only the sixth time in 13 contests.

The victory was the Dodgers 93rd of the season, surpassing their entire 1976 total.

Ed Herrmann, who singled in the fifth, was erased on Art Howe's inning-ending double play.

OPEN-FIELD TACKLE

La Verne College halfback Brad Frick (42) is brought down by Whittier defenseman Saturday afternoon in game between Leopards and Poets at La Verne. Things went this way all day for Leos, who were beaten by Whittier 19-3 in their season opener. See story, page 19.

Orioles, Red Sox win 'must' games

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox both crept a bit closer to the first-place New York Yankees in the American League East Division race Saturday.

While the Yankees were rained out in Toronto, Jim Palmer won his sixth consecutive game with a seven-hitter as the Orioles defeated Cleveland 4-1. Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray slammed successive solo homers in the ninth inning to give Palmer his 19th victory against 11 defeats.

Boston topped Detroit 6-2 as Fred Lynn, Carl Yastrzemski and Ted Cox homered, Cox hitting his first major league home run. Bill Campbell picked up his 29th save by pitching the final 11-3 innings in relief of winner Mike Paxton, 10-5.

Dave Goltz won his 19th game of the year with a sevenhitter as Minnesota topped Milwaukee 4-3 and Texas beat Oakland 3-1 as Doyle Alexander threw a six-hitter.

In the National League, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, 23-9, the winningest pitcher in the majors, shutout Montreal 10, reducing the Phils' magic number for clinching the NL East to two. Garry Maddox' single scored Richie Hebner with the only run.

Pittsburgh beat Chicago 7-3 as Al Oliver smashed a two-run homer and Pirates rallied for four runs in the sixth inning. The St. Louis Cardinals game at New York was rained out.

Royals edge Angels, 4-3

ANAHEIM (AP) — Cookie Rojas singled home Bob Heise to break a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and Willie Wilson drove in the game-winner with a single in the sixth as the Kansas City defeated California 4-3 Saturday for the their sixth straight victory.

The Royals went ahead on Joe Zdeb's single, John Wathan's double and Rojas' single off loser Balor Moore, 0-2. They added an insurance run the following inning when Heise was safe on an error, U.L. Washington sacrificed and Wilson singled to score Heise.

Kansas City starter Mark Littell, 8-4, went the seven innings to pick up the victory.

Rams, Eagles both have something to prove

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Combine Dick Vermeil and Ron Jaworski and you have a Philadelphia Eagles coach and a quarterback aiming to beat the Los Angeles Rams for whom they used to labor.

The National Football League clubs battle today in the Coliseum and Coach Chuck Knox and quarterback Joe Namath also have something to prove.

Philadelphia was the only preseason victim of the Rams, 20-3, as the defending NFC West champs went 1-5. Then Los Angeles was upset by Atlanta 17-6 in the opening NFL regular season game.

Jaworski, who felt he was overlooked by the Rams, completed 14 of 24 passes for 147 yards a week ago as the Eagles opened their regular season by beating Tampa Bay 13-3.

Vermeil was a assistant on the Knox staff in 1973 before becoming head coach at UCLA and then the head man with the Eagles after the Uclans won the Rose Bowl.

Jaworski didn't sign with the Rams last season, started a couple of times before being injured and then sat on the bench. He became a free agent and the Eagles signed him.

So Vermeil and his quarterback each know the Rams' system, as did Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett, a Los Angeles assistant through last season.

Asked if he thought opponents were reading his mind, Knox retorted, "Bennett didn't do anything that wasn't expected. What he did do was control the clock."

Los Angeles fans are becoming uptight. They are used to winning seasons after four divisional championships under Knox, who now says this campaign is the toughest challenge since he arrived.

The challenge has included trouble signing some veteran players, a continuing quarterback controversy and charges that owner Carroll Rosenbloom was pulling the strings normally yanked by the coach.

Knox said he is responsible for making Namath, a 34-year-old veteran of 12 seasons with the New York Jets, the man directing the offense.

"I thought he played well," said Knox of Namath's showing in the upset by Atlanta. "He stayed in the pocket. We didn't do well on pass protection."

That wasn't the only place where Knox thought his team fell down

"Having talent and using it are to different things," he said. "If we play like we did against Atlanta, we're in deep trouble. We need to play with more intensity. We're not a good football team right now."

Knox went back to fundamentals with his club in practice this week trying to iron out the problems.

Vermeil was happy that his club won its first season opener since 1967, even though it was against a club that has yet to win a game in NFL regular competition.

The Eagles' defense, led by linebackers Bill Bergey and John Bunting, limited Tampa Bay to only 118 total offensive yards and eight first downs.

"I thought our defense played superbly," the second-year coach commented. A year ago the Eagles were 0-6 in the preseason and ended 4-10 in the regular campaign.

The Rams were 6-0 and then 10-3-1 for the division title.

Atlanta's defense limited Los Angeles to only 59 yards rushing, while Namath hit 15 of 30 passes for 141 yards and the club's only touchdown.

One plus for the Rams will be the return of offensive tackle Doug France, who underwent surgery after a preseason injury. He'll play, but Knox hasn't said how much.

In the preseason game between the Rams and Eagles on Aug. 13, Jaworski completed only two of 11 passes for 25 yards. However, he won the starting job from another ex-Rams quarterback, Roman Gabriel, and is in charge, as his showing against Tampa Bay indicated

USD stops 'Hens

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Pomona Pitzer's band showed a great deal more pep than did its football team in Saturday night's unveiling of the 1977 edition of the "Fighting" Sagehens.

With eight minutes to play in the game, Walt Ambord's squad lived up to its title when an altercation broke loose and penalties resulted.

But other than that brief scuffle, the Sagehens showed few signs of life on the field, as the University of San Diego blanked Pomona-Pitzer, 34-0, at Pomona College.

With only a total of 36 players listed on the Sagehens' roster, their main problem is that many players have to double up on both offense and defense.

"I felt that we stayed with them in the first half," said Ambord, who is beginning his 15th year as the 'Hens coach. "When USD left its regulars in, and even its fresh guys off the bench in the second half, and my guys were going both ways, well, that was too much."

Kevin Pete started at quarterback for Pomona-Pitzer, but he couldn't get the club rolling and was replaced by Lansdell. Lyle completed 12 of 24 passes for 112 yards, but he had two interceptions.

The Sagehen rushing attack (?) saw six players carry for 24 attempts and a negative three yards.

USD's Toreros, in contrast, had 468 total offensive yards, with 357 of those coming via the ground.

Joffre Chess gained 123 yards on seven carries, while Nils Ericson had 106 on 15 totes.

The Toreros (1-2) used four quarterbacks, with starter George Calandri leading the way with four completions in seven attempts for 48 yards.

Calandri scored the first touchdown on a two-yard run in the first quarter. Barefooted booter Tim Rowan added the first of his four for the night.

With 1:40 to go in the half, Mark Garibaldi scored a TD on a five-yard burst.

About one minute later, USD scored again on a punt return of 47 yards by John Manson.

Bruce Jans snared a seven-yard touchdown toss from QB Allen Greenspan to make it 28-0. Chess ended the point-making on a 76-yard scamper early in the fourth quarter. The PAT kick failed by Kevin Briscoe.

Panthers pounce on another foe

Chaffey College scored 22 points in the second quarter en route to a 43-14 rout of host Mira Costa while Mt. San Antonio College dropped a 17-7 decision to host Glendale in junior college action Saturday night.

Local products Gary Carr (Upland High) and Marcus Jennings (Ontario High) combined to rush past Mira Costa scoring two touchdowns each.

Carr scored on runs of seven and two yards while romping for 90 yards on 11 carries. Jennings rushed 13 times for 80 yards with TD runs of nine and four yards.

The other Chaffey score came in the fourth quarter on Paul Lindsey's five-yard run to sew up the Panthers third win in as many tries.

MSAC was down 10-0 into the third quarter when Mountie Butch Stocking scored with 4:42 left. Jim Amus kicked the conversion.

Don Lugo falters in varsity debut

Don Lugo's varsity high school debut was a sad one Saturday, as host Orange Lutheran beat the 'Q's' 35-14.

Webb School and La Verne Lutheran did not fair well either in action Saturday. Webb bowed to Big Bear 27-6 and La Verne dropped an 18-6 decision to Serrano.

Don Lugo received touchdowns from Steve Moore and Carlos Sanchez, but it was not enough as Orange scored five TDs. Lugo quarterback Bob Malins hit 12 of 22 passes for 174 yards but was intercepted three times.

Lugo, which had its 22-game winning streak snapped, also lost two of its top players in the game. Fullback Moore suffered a mild concussion while halfback Manuel Villalobos sustained rib injuries.

Webb was thoroughly shut down by Big Bear in the Gauls' 1977 opener. Webb had only 117 yards in total offense compared to the Bears' 349.

Howard Lockie and quarterback Terry Bensinger teamed up for the lone Gaul score. Wayne Jones scored twice for Big Bear and Larry Russo rushed 15 times for 122 yards to pace the winners.

Lutheran scored only on a fourth-quarter run by Dave Walz in its loss to Serrano. Fullback John Walsh paced Serrano with 120 yards on 24 carries and three touchdowns. Lutheran is now 0-2 in the year.

Quote

"I don't like him even though he is champion of the world. He was cursing my mother from the first round. I tried to curse him back, but the referee wouldn't let me talk." — Edwin Viruet, after he lost a unanimous 15-round decision to World Boxing Association champion Roberto Duran.

Racing Association presents Arabians

In addition to the Golden State Derby, which will be held for the fourth time, there will be the Golden West Arabian Breeders' Cup and a mile and three-quarter endurance race.

Seven horses are entered in the Golden State Derby which is for three-year-olds. All are from California.

The Golden West Breeders' Cup is for four-year-olds and up. The entry fee is $500 and the purse $4,500. Among the seven entrants are horses from Michigan and Pennsylvania. A local entry is owned by Pamela Goodwin of Chino.

The endurance race is being held in association with the American Endurance Ride Conference. Nine horses will run three laps around the mile and three-quarter track. Since endurance horses are not gate-trained, no starting gate will be used for this race.

Admission to the grandstand is free. The first race is scheduled for 1 p.m. Queen Kim Jabara will present trophies to the winners.

College roundup

Sooners edge Buckeyes

By Associated Press

College football giants Ohio State and Oklahoma met for the first time Saturday in a stirring battle filled with comebacks, turnovers and heartstopping plays.

Fortunately for the Sooners, the last comeback and the final heartstopping play belonged to them and the last turnover belonged to the Buckeyes, so Oklahoma went home to Norman with a 29-28 triumph on Uwe von Schamann's 41-yard field goal with three seconds left.

The Sooners, ranked third, and No. 4 Ohio State took the spotlight away from top-ranked Michigan, which beat Navy 14-7 in what Coach Bo Schembechler admitted was a lackluster performance by the Wolverines.

The remainder of the Top Ten had a successful day as No. 2 Southern California whipped Texas Christian 51-0, fifthranked Penn State put in a strong bid for Eastern superiority with a 27-9 triumph over Maryland, No. 8 Colorado trounced New Mexico 42-7 and 10th-ranked Alabama rebounded from last week's upset loss to Mississippi with a 24-12 decision over Vanderbilt. No. 9 Texas was idle.

Another important game paired the only two unbeaten teams in the Southeastern Conference, with 13th-ranked Florida outlasting No. 12 Mississippi State 24-22. The rest of the second 10 had mixed success as 11th rated Notre Dame scored 17 points in the fourth quarter to outscore Purdue 31-24, No. 14 Nebraska whipped Baylor 31-10, 15th-ranked Washington State lost to Kansas 14-12, No. 16 Arkansas manhandled Tulsa 37-3, 17th-ranked West Virginia lost to Kentucky 28-13, No. 18 UCLA fell to Minnesota 27-13 and 20th-rated Brigham Young crushed Utah State 65-6 as Gifford Nielsen threw six touchdown passes.

College football is a uniquely American game, but it was Von Schamann — a West Germanborn, soccer-style kicker — who gave Oklahoma its slim edge over Ohio State in the game seen on television by most of the country.

Oklahoma opened a 20-0 lead early in the second quarter behind the quarterbacking of Thomas Lott, but things fell apart for the Sooners after Lott was injured in the second period and the Buckeyes had a 28-20 lead as the game neared its end.

An Ohio State turnover led to an Elvis Peacock touchdown with 1:29 to play, cutting the lead to 28-26, but the Buckeyes turned back the two-point conversion attempt, seemingly locking the victory.

But Oklahoma, which had six turnovers to help Ohio State come back, turned the tables by recovering an on-sides kick, driving to the State 24 and letting Von Schamann kick his field goal.

"It wasn't a flawless game, but it had more tension, more drama, than any game I have ever been associated with," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said.

The Buckeyes' fiery coach, Woody Hayes, who vented his anger by hurling equipment on the sidelines in the final seconds and slapped an Oklahoma student manager on the shoulder as he left the field, wasn't thrilled by the excitement.

"I'd rather have it dull and win," he said. "I thought we had it won and then we didn't. We practice against an offside kickoff damn near every day and we worked on it three days this week."

Michigan tailback Harlan Huckleby scored two secondquarter touchdowns on 13 and 22-yard runs and the Wolverines made that stand up although Navy tallied in the third period on a 34-yard pass from Bob Leszczyzynski to Sandy Jones.

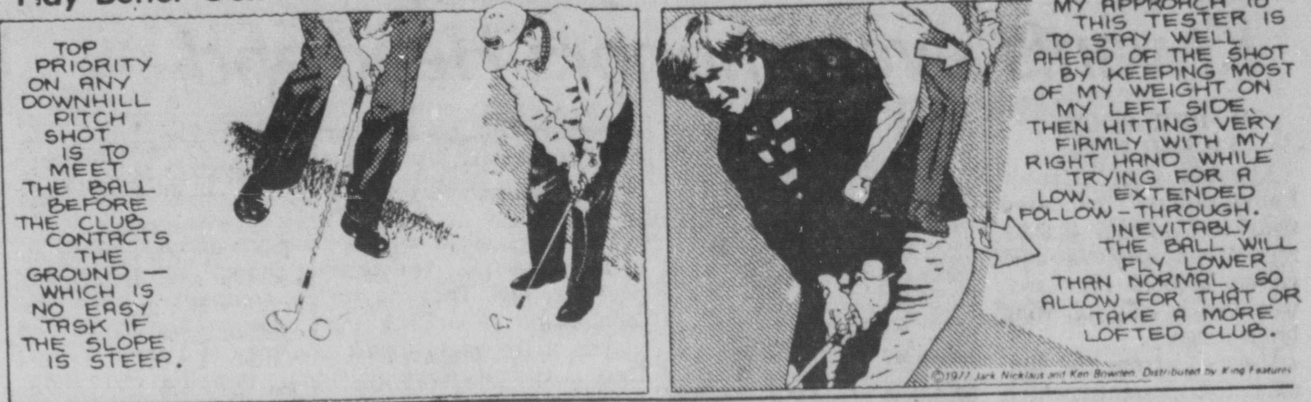
"We're just not playing very well," moaned Schembechler. "At both ends of the field we are not playing very well."

Chuck Fusina completed 19 of 29 passes for 286 yards and two touchdowns as Penn State broke open a 3-3 tie in the third quarter on a 58-yard TD pass from Fusina to Jimmy Cefalo.

Jeff Knapple ran for two touchdowns and passed for another as Colorado easily beat New Mexico. Tony Nathan's one-yard touchdown dive in the second quarter broke a 3-3 tie and Roger Chapman booted three field goals for Alabama.

Purdue led Notre Dame 24-14 at halftime behind the passing of freshman Mark Herrman, who finished with 351 yards through the air. But sub quarterback Joe Montana directed three scoring drives in the fourth quarter to save the Irish.

Play Better Golf–with JACK NICKLAUS



TOP PRIORITY ON ANY DOWNHILL PITCH SHOT IS TO MEET THE BALL BEFORE THE CLUB CONTACTS THE GROUND — WHICH IS NO EASY TASK IF THE SLOPE IS STEEP.
MY APPROACH TO THIS TESTER IS TO STAY WELL AHEAD OF THE SHOT BY KEEPING MOST OF MY WEIGHT ON MY LEFT SIDE, THEN HITTING VERY FIRMLY WITH MY RIGHT HAND WHILE TRYING FOR A LOW, EXTENDED FOLLOW-THROUGH. INEVITABLY THE BALL WILL FLY LOWER THAN NORMAL, SO ALLOW FOR THAT OR TAKE A MORE LOFTED CLUB.

Leos' offense sputters

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

Prior to his team's season opener against Whittier Saturday, La Verne football coach Roland Ortmayer said the Leopards' biggest problem might be replacing last year's quarterback, Randy Brown.

Using a two-quarterback system, the weakness seemed apparent as the Leos succumbed to a stingy Poet defense and ball-control offense Saturday, 19-3.

The win served as partial revenge for Whittier, who dropped two 1976 decisions to La Verne.

The Leos attempted to use their biggest offensive weapons in Brad Frick and Ben Morrow, as they elected to keep it on the ground through much of the first half. But Whittier completely shut off the running attack and, when La Verne began going to the air, the Poets applied deadly pressure.

Thus, Whittier managed to shut out the Leos until, with four seconds showing on the second quarter clock, placekicker Andy Ford capped a 50-yard march with a 27-yard field goal.

However, the kick sent La Verne into intermission trailing 7-3 as the Poets had gotten on the scoreboard with 47 seconds remaining in the half.

With 2:31 left, Whittier abandoned its running game in favor of the pass. Starting on their own 47-yard line, the Poets received 10-yard and 20-yard completions from quarterback Chris Terrazas to move to the La Verne 20.

Then, on first down, Terrazas found Raymond Chavez in the end zone for a 7-0 Poet advantage.

Actually, Whittier came within two yards of scoring in the first period. But Steve Hines ended the Poet 52-yard march on a sour note when he stopped Terrazas on a fourth-down quarterback keep.

Whittier increased its lead to 13-3 and later to the final margin when Bob Warren and Joe Kahler ran for scores. The former capped a 58-yard march with an 18-yard burst around right end and Kahler plunged over from the two five minutes later.

Frick led La Verne's rushers, picking up 52 yards on 17 carries, while Terrazas paced the Poet offense by completing 14 of 21 for 118 yards and one touchdown.

On a positive note for La Verne, however, was the fact that the game was not recorded as a conference contest.

L.A. favored for Olympics

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A spartan Los Angeles and a more flamboyant New York both expressed confidence Saturday that they would be chosen to stage the 1984 Summer Olympic Games.

Each city will make a final 60-minute presentation today before the 65-member U.S. Olympic Committee executive board votes immediately on whom the American representative will be.

The USOC selection is virtually assured of staging the Games because no other city in the world has made a bid. The International Olympic Commitee will make its choice next May in Athens.

"We will have given it our best effort," said John C. Argue, president of the Southern California Committee for the Olympic Games. "We are confident Los Angeles will get the bid."

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley heads the delegation. He will be the leadoff speaker in the Sunday presentation, which will include a 20-minute audio-visual show which Argue described as "polished and professional."

In the competition, there has been criticism of the Los Angeles bid because it consisted primarily of mimeographed fact sheets while New York's was a slick, expensively printed, fullcolor brochure detailing its proposal. Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame head the New York delegation which will follow the Los Angeles presentation.

In another contrast in styles, most of the Los Angeles delegation arrived Friday, although Bradley did not reach here until Saturday evening, and stayed at a hotel in downtown Colorado Springs.

Two members of the New York group arrived Friday but most of the delegation, including Carey and Beame, arrived in mid-afternoon Saturday and were booked into a plush resort hotel, site of the final presentation meeting.

Both groups lunched with the USOC executive board and representatives of 32 Olympic sports governing bodies and were scheduled to attend brief protocol sessions with the executive board Saturday evening.

Argue said the bid by Los Angeles, which lost out to Moscow four years ago in the final competition for the 1980 Summer Games, would be essentially the same as the one made to the USOC site selection commitee in August.

There were reports earlier this week, since denied, that the USOC had attempted to put pressure on Los Angeles to improve its bid by hinting New York, once considered just an also-ran in the competition, had been coming on strong.

In response to questions raised by the selection committee, Los Angeles said it still maintained that it could stage the Summer Games at a cost of $183.5 million without any taxpayer money, but would be willing to build a covered swimming stadium and an Olympic Village to house the athletes if federal money became available.

Sports briefs

Sherm Lollar dies

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Sherman Lollar, a former major league baseball catcher, died Saturday of cancer. He was 53.

Lollar, who went by the nickname "Sherm," played about 20 years in the major leagues, finishing his career in 1963 after 10 years with the Chicago White Sox.

He received the Golden Glove award as the outstanding fielder among major league catchers in 1957, and was the American League's top fielding catcher the next two seasons.

Austin keeps lead

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Debbie Austin sank a 2½-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Saturday and maintained a one-stroke lead after three rounds of a $100,000 women's professional golf tournament.

Miss Austin finished with a three-under-par 70 on the Round Hill Country Club Course, giving her a three-round total of 210 and a one-shot lead over Jane Blalock.

Big win for Cauthen

CHICAGO (AP) — Sauce Boat, ridden by Steve Cauthen, pulled away from 44-1 shot Gonquin to win the $232,775 Arlington-Washington Futurity by two lengths Saturday at Arlington Park.

The victory, worth $130,665, was the richest of Cauthen's career.

Leonard KOs foe

Hill ties Crenshaw

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Hill sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole and tied defending champion Ben Crenshaw for the third-round lead in the wind-whipped $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open golf tournament.

Hill, winless on the tour since 1972, came from three shots behind in the last three holes. He got an assist when Crenshaw shot a double-bogey five on the par-3 16th.

Orantes advances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain and fourth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami advanced to the men's singles semifinals of the $100,000 Southern California Open Tennis Championships Saturday.

Orantes eliminated unseeded Tom Leonard of Laguna Niguel, Calif., 6-3, 6-7, 6-3 while Dibbs defeated Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-4, 6-4 in quarter-final matches.

St. Mary's holds on to down Stags, 16-6

MORAGA — Claremont-Mudd came up a bit short of an upset in its season football opener Saturday, as host St. Mary's prevailed 16-6.

A St. Mary's touchdown in the final minute iced the win. The Gauls held a slim 10-6 lead until that score.

Jimmy Reed, a senior tailback, had a big day for the Stags in the defeat. Reed rushed 27 times for a net of 136 yards.

However, Stag quarterback Don Chester could hit on only four of 13 passes for 28 yards. In contrast, Gaul QB Terry Cottle hit on 14 of 22 for 156 yards and one touchdown.

On the game, St. Mary's outgained C-M 275-269 in total offense. St. Mary's is now 1-2 on the season.

Next action for the Stags will be Saturday when they will host Cal Lutheran in a 1:30 p.m. contest.

FB officials class slated

The Empire Officials Association will be holding training sessions for anyone interested in officiating junior high flag football this season.

Meetings will be held Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 608 at La Puerta Junior High in Claremont.

Prospective officials must attend one of the meetings to meet with league officials, go over rules and receive assignments. The games will be played Wednesday afternoons beginning Sept. 28.

Dues will be $6 per official. Each official will receive $9.50 per game. For further information, call Duane Slocum at 987-7435.

Ebiner sets MSAC mark

MSAC defeated Cerritos 15-44 but lost to defending champ Grossmont 21-40. The Griffins captured 12 of the top 15 places in the meet.

Ebiner led all the way as he recorded a time of 19:48. Jim Austin of Grossmont was second. Next Mountie finisher after Ebiner was Billy Jones, who was sixth. Barry Boettcher, battling a cold, was 12th.

MSAC will try to rebound Friday when it travels to San Diego Mesa for a dual meet, to start at 3:30 p.m.

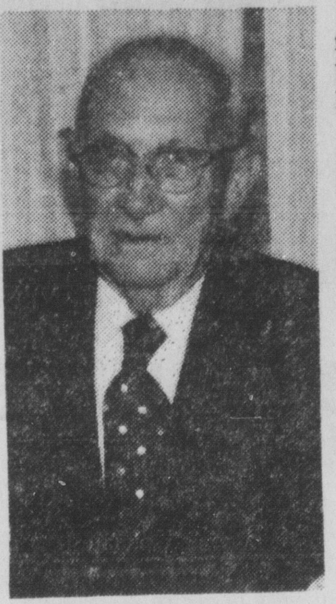
Kiwanis event honors Headland

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Kiwanians of Greater Pomona have dedicated their 20th annual tournament Wednesday to an avid golfer, Robert Headland, who died in July following brain surgery.



ROBERT HEADLAND

Proceeds from the popular tournament, which will be held at Western Hills C.C., will go to the Circle K scholarship fund established in Headland's memory.

Gordon Taylor, present Kiwanis Club president and tournament director, reports that Headland was "a man who loved to play golf and was very active in civic and Kiwanis events." Headland was a past president of the Greater Pomona Club and served as Lt. Gov. of Division 15 which encompasses some 13 clubs.

"The tournament started as a between clubs day," says Taylor, "but it's now a fun tournament for Kiwanis members, their guests, and everyone who'd like to play."

Entry fee for both golf and the dinner is $22; golf alone is $14 and dinner tickets are $12.

A new AMC Pacer for a hole in one on No. 14 will be given away, and the regular tournament will be followed by a pitching contest with prizes to be awarded.

Taylor says that prizes and trophies will be awarded for top finishers in low gross and net categories with three flights available for the anticipated field of 144 players.

Persons wishing more information about entering can contact Taylor at either 623-5251 (business) or 626-2690 (home). Tee-off time for the shotgun tourney is 12:30 p.m.

A total of 678 die-hard golfers have been accepted for the PGA fall qualifying school, Deane Beman, tour commissioner, has announced.

Sectional qualifying rounds will be held at 25 sites across the country between now and Oct. 4.

Jack Witham of Claremont and San Dimas Canyon will be among the Southlanders competing on Oct. 3-4 at Saticoy C.C. in Saticoy.

Survivors of the sectional qualifying rounds will advance to regional qualifying, which will be played at 72 holes each on Oct. 18-21.

The regional eliminations will produce a field of 144 players who will compete over four rounds in the PGA School at Pinehurst, N.C., starting Nov. 9.

Jack Witham these days is sharpening his game for a busy week during early October. Witham , who is hitting the ball longer and straighter than ever, will play Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 3-4 at Saticoy in the PGA Qualifying. He'll take Wednesday off "just to practice," then he'll be competing in the Queen Mary Long Beach tournament from Thursday through Sunday.

Whew! Good luck, Jack.

A reminder to those who like to watch a little golf. Billy Barty's Little People International Celebrity Tournament will be held today at Azusa Greens golf course. Joe Bingo, the area comedian, will act as general for the event. Proceeds go to the Billy Barty Foundation, which aids research into the cause and cures of dwarfism.

Smallest golfer there today will be Pat Bilon, a 2-foot-10 inch mighty fine player from Youngstown, Ohio.

Bob Richards of Los Angeles fired a second-round 66 and a 36-hole total of 137 to capture low gross honors in the annual property-owner tournament at Silver Lakes Resort golf course.

Low net went to Jack Draper of San Bernardino with a score of 131. A total of $5,000 in prizes was given away.

Next tournament for the National Association is Thursday, Oct. 6 at San Juan Hills. Contact Jerry Sharman at 496-0065 for more information.

Southern Cal PGA members will play their big tournament of the year beginning on Wednesday, Oct. 19 when they tee up at Huntington-Seacliff C.C. in the PGA Championship.

The purse for the 53rd Championship is $12,500.

Joe Taylor, of the PB's advertising department, has been named tournament director for the annual Inland Empire Championship event next Sunday at Rancho California C.C.

The tournament will attract players from clubs in the Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego, and Arizona regions.

I would be remiss if I did not add my congratulations for the astounding summer golf performance of Upland's Gerry Simoni.

Simoni beat the best amateurs in Southern California at Bermuda Dunes last weekend by shooting a 3-day, 8-under par 208 on a tough golf course. Then early last week he beat all the club champions by firing a 69.

Earlier in the year he qualified for the U.S. Open and won two matches.

Simoni is a junior at San Diego and he doesn't plan to turn pro for two more years. Even though he plays like a fine touring pro right now. Course again, he's only 20 years old.

Raiders, Steelers resume 'war'

It is, in the general scheme of things, just another football game ... the latest in a string of most unbelieveable football games.

Almost since the day the Oakland Raiders joined the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Football League—and the Steelers joined the Raiders in the American Conference, the venom has flowed freely each time they have joined battle.

Today's game at Three Rivers Stadium, between teams which scored similar shutouts in their National Football league openers, figures to be no different.

Or as Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler put it more succinctly: "We hate them. They hate us."

Pittsburgh fans were chanting "We want Oakland! We want Oakland!" during the Steelers' 27-0 victory over San Francisco last Monday night— and certainly the Raiders were looking forward to another showdown against the Steelers after blanking San Diego 24-0.

In today's other games it's Philadelphia at Los Angeles, Chicago at St. Louis, Atlanta at Washington, Seattle at Cincinnati, Baltimore vs. the New York Jets at Giants Stadium, Houston at Green Bay, New Orleans at Detroit, the New York Giants at Dallas, San Diego at Kansas City, Buffalo at Denver and Miami at San Francisco. On Monday night, New England visits Cleveland.

The Oakland-Pittsburgh rivalry began in earnest in the 1972 playoff game (the two teams have met in the playoffs every year since that one) when Franco Harris picked a deflected pass off his kneecaps and turned the last-minute "immaculate reception" into a game-turning 60-yard touchdown play.

Things began picking up the next year, when the Steelers charged the Raiders with greasing their uniforms and the Raiders responded by accusing Pittsburgh of trying to sneak assistant coaches into the Oakland press box in order to scout the Raiders.

In the snow-bound 1975 playoff in Pittsburgh, the Raiders said the Steelers had allowed the field to freeze to stifle Ken Stabler's passing.

In that game, Steelers receiver Lynn Swann received a concussion—his first. He got another one last year when Oakland defensive back George Atkinson clobbered him. That led to Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll's comment about a "criminal element" in the NFL, and Atkinson's unsuccessful $2 million slander suit against Noll. And that trial led to Pittsburgh cornerback Mel Blount's $5 million lawsuit against his own coach for being lumped in with that so-called criminal element during Noll's courtroom testimony.

The Bears, sharing first place in the National Conference's Central Division, send rushing leader Walter Payton (160 yards and two touchdowns vs. Detroit last week) against the usually high-powered Cardinals. St. Louis was blanked by Denver, due in part to four missed field goals by place-kicker Jim Bakken.

The Falcons, who weren't supposed to win last Sunday, face the Redskins, who weren't supposed to lose.

"We better be ready to play and have our feet on the ground," Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said. "The Redskins are going to be ready to play after losing last week. Everybody writes them off each year, but they always find a way to win."

And Coach George Allen, who has never lost to Atlanta in 11 games with the Redskins and Rams, says he believes the Falcons are a tougher team than the Giants which beat Washington 20-17. "Anybody who can handle Los Angeles like that I consider to be a good team.

As the treadmill turns like a merry-go-round

Economic rank and file are asking where it all leads to

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As the treadmill turns, members of the economic rank and file are asking where it all leads or whether, like a merry-go-round, we have merely painted up the machinery and introduced a few ups and downs.

We have introduced indexing into our wage-price negotiations, and Social Security benefits too, the better that workers and retirees can meet the rising cost of living. Thus when prices rise, so do incomes.

While admiring this, we also wonder why it is that inflation persists, when it is all but obvious that to some degree we are perpetuating the catchup sequence, in which higher incomes contribute to higher prices and...

An attempt is made to improve the lot of the worker lowest on the scale of skills by raising the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour, with further increases to come. It is bound to reduce the difficulties of some workers.

But for how long? Personnel executives already are saying they will have to raise the wages of more skilled workers in order to maintain the relationship. That leads to inflation, which is devastating for those on the bottom rung.

At the same time as we are considering increases in the minimum wage, we also are attempting to cut down on the jobless rate, which remains stuck in the area of 7 per cent of the civilian labor force.

It is almost unnecessary to point out that unemployment is worst among those who have the least skills, and who are thus in the minimum wage category. Does a higher minimum wage improve their chances for being hired?

Again, as we moralize over the unemployment problem we support a school system that is demonstrably deficient in preparing youngsters for the labor market, and which continues to turn out teachers who can never hope to find teaching jobs.

In the stock market we have indexing too, although of another sort. It's the current cult. Instead of trying to beat the popular averages and indexes, an institutional portfolio manager seeks only to keep pace with them. This is now considered success, and a fee is charged for it.

Does indexing explain why the stock market, at least as indicated by the popular market averages, has been going nowhere? It would seem so. In the past, at any rate, the stock market rose or fell on taking rather than avoiding risk.

No basic industry has been on a more persistent treadmill than steel, unless it is railroads. In fact, as steelmen tell it, they have had their feet planted on different treadmills going in opposite directions.

They are being forced to expend hundreds of millions of dollars on pollution control. They have been asked to compete with steel imports subsidized by foreign governments.

Simultaneously they have been pressured by the federal government to limit price increases they say are needed to modernize and make their plants more competitive. Unable to do so, they lay off workers. Stigmatized, they are less able to raise money in the stock market in order to update their plants.

The examples are endless, though admittedly not all are clearcut. Some critics of steel, for example, maintain the industry has management deficiencies. And it has never been declared by the highest authority that all problems could or should be met in ways that satisfy all parties.

But sometimes you can't blame Americans for wondering where it all leads and why we can't seem to do much about it. You can't help but lament that patchwork solutions must suffice instead of weaving new pieces of cloth.

Differences show up

Are there differences between males and females other than anatomical ones? Test your views on this subject.

1. Because men tend not to gossip, both men and women would rather share their secrets with a man.
True () False ()

2. Women tend to be more thoughtful than men.
True () False ()

3. Women are born with an understanding of parenting, but males have to be taught.
True () False ()

4. Studies indicate that men tend to be more imaginative and more original.
True () False ()

5. Men and women tend to see themselves as being very different from each other.
True () False ()

6. Men like to, and do, bluff more than women.
True () False ()

7. Men tend to be more confident about all their abilities than women are.
True () False ()

8. Differences between men and women are increasing despite the sexual revolution and the freer life-styles.
True () False ()

ANSWERS:

1. FALSE. While it's true that men tend to be more secretive, studies have shown that women are confided in by both sexes to a far greater extent than men are. Men, women and children, all confide secrets they wouldn't share with anyone else to women.

2. FALSE. Of course, this is an indivudual matter, but studies indicate that women are just as self-centered as men, if not more so. A person's thoughtfulness is more related to training, education and family background than to gender.

3. FALSE. This is a myth. Parenting doesn't come naturally to either sex. Both learn from observation. If they have witnessed good and loving parents, they will be more apt to pass this on to their own children. Men can be just as nurturing as women and often make better parents.

4. FALSE. Tests by scientists at California State Polytenic College show that women have more active imaginations and are better at coming up with new, original ideas. They're also better able to communicate these ideas if given the opportunity. They're apt to censor themselves, however, because of a lack of confidence and a feeling of inadequacy.

5. TRUE. Researchers at the University of Nebraska report that women tend to see themselves as having more warmth, tenderness and more of a sense of satisfaction than men. They also felt they were more excitable and insecure. Men described themselves as more assertive, practical and adventurous than women.

6.TRUE. When a man is unsure of himself, he's much more apt to bluff than a woman. When unsure of their judgment, women tend to say nothing, or to be more conservative. When a woman feels certain she's right, however, she'll back her judgment more fearlessly than a man.

7. TRUE. In case anyone had any doubts, the male ego remains a reality. Women are still inclined to underrate everything about themselves, except their personal appearance, while men are likely to have an exaggerated opinion of their importance.

8. FALSE. Differences between men and women are rapidly disappearing and, according to Dr. Fred Brown, head of the Mt. Sinai Hospital psychology department, there have been radical changes among younger men and women.

ANTIQUE DISPLAY — Patt Hughes of Pomona and Mrs. Myrna Arnold look over some of the antiques Mrs. Hughes will exhibit at the Glendora Women's Club annual show scheduled Saturday and Sunday at the Glendora clubhouse from noon until 6 p.m.

Native Daughters will meet

Families and friends of members of Rancho San Jose Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will enjoy a potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the Assistance League clubhouse, 693 N. Palomares St., Pomona.

Members will provide table service and their favorite dishes, according to Mrs. Walter Kawa and Mrs. Paul Strickland, cochairmen.

David Pearce, medical social worker and director of social service for Pomona Valley Community Hospital, will discuss "What's That You Say?"

Tray a shawl

On an Indian Summer afternoon, wear a summery dress, but don't cover it with your old raincoat. Try a challis shawl instead.

Convert cufflink

Convert a pair of men's "silk knot" cuff links into earrings. Cut off the knots and glue them onto a pair of pierced, clip-on or screw-on earring backs.

Antique show, sale in Glendora planned

The eighth annual antique show and sale will be presented by the Glendora Women's Club at their clubhouse, 424 N. Glendora Ave., Glendora, Oct. 1. Show hours are from noon to 10 p.m., and Oct. 2, from noon to 6 p.m.

Twenty-three antique shops from throughout Southern California will be presenting an interesting collection of antique jewelry, art, quilts, primitives, toys, marine items, art glass, cut glass, pressed glass, china, silver and some pieces in Tiffany and Limoges. Some shops will be specializing in spoons, clocks, furniture and phonographs.

"Ownership of antiques as a pleasure and as an investment has continued to rise in popularity. Most of us enjoy the feeling of continuity and nostalgia in acquiring something from ourheritage," according to Mrs. Dan Arnold, show chairman.

Home-cooked foods from the Glendora Woman's Club Country Kitchen will be available during the show.

Persons traveling the San Bernardino and 210 freeways to this event are advised to take the Grand Avenue turnoff and go north to Foothill Boulevard, turn east on Foothill to Glendora Avenue, then north four blocks to the clubhouse.

Bazaar set Saturday by church

The Ladies' Aid of La Verne Church of the Brethren will present its annual bazaar Oct. 1 in Fellowship Hall of the church, 2425 E St., La Verne.

Sale hours will be 2 to 7 p.m. and a swiss steak dinner will be served from 5 until 7 p.m. Reservations for the dinner should be made by Monday by calling 593-1585, 593-5856 or 593-3078. Snacks of homemade pie and coffee will be available during the afternoon.

Sale items will include handmade comforters, baby quilts, aprons, pastries, breads, greeting cards and boutique items.

Medical aid group plans annual dinner

Francis L. Dale, newly appointed publisher of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, will be the speaker at a dinner Oct. 7 sponsored by the American Bureau for Medical Aid for Free China.

The dinner will be held at The Castaway, Burbank. Mr. Dale's topic will be "Communism: The Bubonic Plague of the Modern World." Mrs. Dale will be honored at the same time.

Guests of honor, together with their wives, will be Gen. James H. Doolittle, former Ambassador Everett F. Drumright, Consul Gen. Ping-nan Chang, the Honorable Stanway N. W. Cheng, Dr. B. A. Garside, William H. Ivers, Gen. L. C. Craigie, Robert W. Prescott, Dr. William Francis Quinn, Gen. Charles Wesley Schott, Gen. Charles B. Stone III, Samuel W. Yorty and Maj. Howard M. Kessler.

The dinner will commemorate the 40th anniversary of ABMAC's medical service to the Chinese. Last year ABMAC completed a mobile cancer detection unit for the rural areas of Taiwan. The current project is the training of a young Chinese doctor in nuclear medicine.

ABMAC is a completely volunteer group, non-political, non-sectarian and strictly humanitarian.

At the dinner a special tribute will be paid to General Doolittle and to Dr. William Francis Quinn.

Areme club sets luncheon

The Areme Club will resume activities after the summer recess when the group meets at noon Wednesday for a luncheon at the Heritage House restaurant in Pomona.

Following the luncheon and business meeting the group will play bridge during the afternoon.

Women with active membership in the Order of the Eastern Star are invited to contact Mrs. A. W. Randall, 629-3734.

Ms. Fortune.

But most everyone knows it's good savings, not good fortune, that bring the things you want.

And a really good way to save is with U.S. Savings Bonds.

Bonds are steady, secure interest earners.

And if you join the Payroll Savings Plan at work, or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you save, you can be buying Bonds regularly. Automatically. (And for little more than the change rolling around in the bottom of your purse.)

So, sign up today. While you may never be known as Lady Luck, U.S. Savings Bonds could make you Ms. Fortune.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

For financial aid through drought

Farmer's image puts him in good 'stead' with bankers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The farmer's image as a trustworthy, hardworking plodder who honors his debts has put him in good stead with California banks which must finance him through the drought.

Despite projections which show California farmers will lose about $800 million this year because of the drought, banks vow they will continue to approve a high volume of large agricultural loans.

"We'll continue to finance them as long as the drought goes on," said Bill Gentle, vice president of Security Pacific in Fresno. "We know the rains will come back and in the meantime, we have to eat."

Ralph Davis, manager of the Agricultural Department at Wells Fargo here, said farmers "are a very resourceful people who have demonstrated over the years a tremendous ability to adapt."

Bank of America also is giving farmers the benefit of the doubt. "Our view is that we will attempt to work with individual borrowers and make the best of it," said economist Dick Courtney.

"If a farmer has a plan we think is viable we'll go as far as we can with him."

Each stressed, however, that the pledge to agriculture is a general policy and that their bank makes loan decisions on the merits of particular cases.

All three banks said the drought has not affected the number of loan applications. But the amounts farmers are seeking are much higher, they added.

At Security Pacific, which makes more than 1,000 agricultural loans a year, the amount borrowed is up an average of 40 per cent, Gentle said.

"They range from $10,000 for a small farmer raising 20 acres of Thompson seedless grapes to $10 million for large diversified farmers in the Imperial Valley or corporate operations on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley," he said.

Davis said the size of loans at Wells Fargo increased about 15 per cent this year, as opposed to an average of about 10 per cent in each of the past few years.

"The drought means that more farmers are buying pumps, motors, sprinklers and irrigation equipment," he said. "In the past they have borrowed conservatively and established good credit, so now many are asking for larger amounts and getting what they need."

Many of the loans are going to cattle ranchers, according to Davis, and economists at other banks and at the state Department of Food and Agriculture.

They estimated that about half of the loss to agriculture — anywhere from $400 million to $500 million — will be absorbed by cattle ranchers this year. Receipts are expected to fall almost four per cent to about $2.8 billion.

Production costs have risen because of the drought, and nationwide cattle prices continue depressed. But the Bank of America said that by next year the industry is likely to strengthen as feed costs ease and steer prices rise.

Besides cattle and calves, receipts will decline for poultry and eggs and all grains and field crops except cotton. Cash receipts will rise for dairy products, vegetables, fruits and nuts, the bank said.

Poultry and eggs are expected to yield about $600 million, down about three per cent from last year, and field crop cash receipts will plunge 19 per cent to $2.1 billion, estimates show.

Cotton acreage, on the other hand, totals 1.35 million acres in 1977, a 19 per cent increase over last year and the largest planting since 1953.

This rise was attributed to a tight supply worldwide and a strong demand, boosting Fresno's cotton price to 80 cents a pound in March, as opposed to 57 per cent a year earlier.

Cash receipts for vegetables will increase almost 15 per cent to $1.8 billion because of favorable market prices and a large crop of processing tomatoes — this year's major vegetable crop.

Although the drought has cut the 1977 yield of fruits and nuts, production as well as gross receipts will exceed last year's levels. Grapes will contribute most to the expected 28 per cent rise in cash receipts, with white wine grapes most heavily in demand.

These projections show what many observers have said throughout the course of the drought — that California agriculture can survive 1977. But bank economists agree that if 1978 is equally dry, farmers are in serious trouble.

"We'll try to keep farmers in business as long as it is feasible," Gentle said. "But if the drought is as bad next year as it is this year, the marginal farmers are really going to suffer."

With exhaust gases from fuel

Scientist proposes using greenhouses to clean air

BERKELEY, Calif. (BW) — Growing crops in enormous greenhouses with exhaust gases from fossil fuel-burning factories and power plants is what a Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory scientist is proposing to reduce air pollution and produce additional energy.

James Bassham, a biochemist at LBL's chemical biodynamics facility, suggests in a recent article in Science magazine that giant greenhouses, situated in unused desert areas, could produce high-protein, high-energy crops such as alfalfa, beets or sugar cane which could be used as food or burned as fuel.

Because these "covered energy farms" would be enclosed in an airtight seal, Bassham contends they might recycle water and use factory-produced carbon dioxide pollutants to stimulate crop growth.

Bassham's unique idea originated from one of his studies, funded by the Energy Research & Development Administration, that found that higher-than-normal levels of carbon dioxide could stimulate a plant's growth rate and increase its tolerance to sulfur dioxide, a pollutant that plants remove from the atmosphere.

But constructing a greenhouse that covers enough cropland to make such an energy farm practical, yet preserves, prevents leakage of carbon dioxide and water vapor, is a problem that makes costly, conventional glass and wood greenhouses unthinkable.

Bassham's solution is to cover large areas of cropland with "tents" of transparent plastic manufactured from sugars found in the plants themselves.

Hundreds of feet high and miles across, Bassham's tents would be supported not by stakes or poles, but by rising air heated by desert temperatures — pushing its top and sides outward like an inflated balloon.

Such tents would, during the day, be constantly supplied with warm gases of carbon dioxide emitted from factory smoke stacks. At night, when lower temperatures contract these gases, the dome of the tent would partially collapse — pressing down on the air inside to maintain a constant pressure to warm the crops.

This cooling also would cause water vapor developed by plant evaporation and respiration to condense within the tent, creating a constant recycling of water. For that reason, says Bassham, tent farms with enough flexibility to resist strong winds would be ideally suited for desert environments where lack of water and constant evaporation make conventional farming methods impractical.

It also would reduce pollution and recycle materials presently wasted in conventional energy-producing processes, he adds. Pumping carbon dioxide and sulfur dioxide pollutants produced in combustion back into the greenhouse allows plants to convert them into food.

Returning the ashes of burnt plant material to the soil also replenishes all the nutrients except nitrogen, thus excluding the need for many costly fertilizers.

The process appears promising. And inflated, plastic covered greenhouses have already proved successful in the United States and other countries. But such energy farms would require methods and materials so advanced that it may be some time before Bassham's ideas are actually put to use.

Yet, starting out with valuable crops — papaya or flowers, for example — on a smaller scale may provide enough of an economic incentive to develop covered energy farms in a stepwise fashion, Bassham adds.

Business lost friend when Lance resigned

NEW YORK (AP) — The loss of Bert Lance as a budget director with easy access to the Oval Office is deeply disturbing to business leaders suspicious of the Democratic administration.

"I'm tremendously disappointed because he was in a key spot to do more for the business community and the Carter administration than anybody else," J.B. Fuqua, president of the Atlanta-based Fuqua Industries Inc. and a 20-year friend of Lance, said after the budget director resigned.

"I think the business community lost its best friend in the administration."

It was Lance, a longtime friend of Jimmy Carter, who planned to balance the federal budget by 1981 and hold down the minimum wage — two issues dear to most business leaders.

Walter Hoadley, chief economist of the Bank of America, said in San Francisco that business leaders have been warily observing the Carter administration since the inauguration.

"The private sector has been watching the administration and waiting to see what kinds of programs there would be to stimulate the economy, since Democrats are allegedly not friends of

Fear investigation of personal affairs

Good many business executives reluctant to serve Washington

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Long before the Bert Lance affair, a good many business executives were reluctant to serve in Washington. More precisely, they were reluctant to undergo the investigation of their personal affairs.

The fear was at least twofold: They felt the legitimate maneuvering that brought them success in the business world would be made to appear villainous, and they also feared exposure of indiscretions.

But there is at least one other reason, as expressed by Prof. Eugene Jennings, an authority on corporate management who acts as personal adviser, mainly in career counseling, to chairmen and president of blue chip companies.

Said Jennings: "They say it is preposterous that they, whose careers were shaped under the rules of planning, organization and efficiency, should lend their talent to a behemoth of opposite qualities."

As with any group, businessmen if polled aren't likely to speak with one voice, and that might apply especially to bankers, who earlier expressed shock that people might believe overdrafts were a way of doing business.

Inferences of that sort could erode investor confidence, which is the underpinning of the banking system, while also focusing the investigative eye on all banking practices, something the industry desires as little as it does a recession.

Despite the reluctance of business people to serve, there remains some personnel interchange between private and public sectors. This very week, 49 private sector executives began work in government, and 13 government employes in business, as part of the President's executive interchange program.

This is the eighth interchange in the program, whose goal is to improve rapport and cooperation between business and government. The program already has involved nearly 400 middle management executives from government, industry and education.

Still, he maintains, fear inveitably plays a role. "Few chief exeuctives could pass the test put upon Bert Lance," he said in an interview three weeks ago. Everyone has skeletons, he said, and too many people in Washington want to let them out of the closet.

Disappointment, and sometimes anger, was evident in the statements of some businessmen when asked to comment on the day Lance resigned. Some of them had expressed earlier the feeling that whatever faults he had, Lance still was linked in purpose with business goals, especially that of a balanced budget.

It is understandable that some business people like the style and flair of Lance, a "can do" type, a man of purpose and goals who seemed to consume challenges that stood between him and opportunities.

And, like others, they feel that post-Watergate ethics represent an ideal that might be impossible to attain: A perfection in human beings who by their nature are prone to failure.

Some business people point out also that the same ideal of perfection is sought in the technological products of industry, in automobile production, for example, when anything approaching perfection would be unaffordable.

To accomplish its objectives, the program arranges for the private and public sectors to swap executives for one year. Each learns something about the other, and sometimes careers are advanced as well.

Joe Linneman, for example, has won three promotions since completing his interchange assignment as controller for an electronics firm four years ago. He works in the Office of Management and Budget.

Companies which have executives in Washington this year include American Telephone, Equitable Life, General Motors, Sun Co., Pennzoil, Ernst and Ernst (auditors), Xerox, General Electric, IBM and Merrill Lynch.

Jay F. Morris, executive director, states "the program is grooming a cadre of potential leaders for cabinet and senior level appoints of future years."

But even far short of that, he says, "everybody wins."

Sometimes.

Longs Drug earnings up

Longs Drug Stores, Inc., a retail drug chain operating 103 stores in California, Hawaii, and Alaska, announced a 10 per cent increase in earnings and a 15 per cent increase in sales for its second quarter ended July 31.

Unaudited earnings for the quarter were $4,764,000 or 45 cents per share against $4,346,000 or 41 cents for the comparable period in 1976. Earnings for the six months ended July 31, were $8,825,000 or 83 cents per share against $8,157,000 or 77 cents for the like 1976 period.

Unaudited net sales for the quarter ended July 31, increased to $130,092,000 from $113,316,000 for the same period in 1976, a 15 per cent increase. Net sales for the six months were $254,297,000 arainst $221,219,000 for the previous year's comparable period, a 15 per cent increase.

"Everyone on our small staff is over 40, but Blue Shield still gave us what we believe is the best plan at the lowest cost. We're very satisfied."

"When we started this office of information and referral in 1974, we looked for a health coverage plan that we felt would be right for us. There are only 8 of us, and we're all over 40, so we didn't think we'd get by without paying a lot of money.

"Blue Shield surprised us by giving us what we wanted at a price we could afford. Since then we've had opportunity to use our coverage and we've been satisfied — we've found them to be fast and thorough, and we don't spend much time filling out forms. That means we have more time to run our program, helping senior citizens." Olga Cole, director of a community service organization, Santa Cruz, California.

SHIRT FOR BERT — Former Director of the Office of Management and Budget Bert Lance found support in his home of Calhoun, Ga.

Business lost a friend—

business,'' Hoadley said. He said Lance's access to Carter had been comforting.

''Now the question is: What will the President do to reestablish or reaffirm the relationship in such a way that business feels someone is close to the President who can interpret the private sector?''

Alan Greenspan, a one-time top economic adviser to then-President Gerald Ford and now president of a New York economic consulting firm, said: ''I think that the Lance affair is tragic for him and for the American people. It removes from government an individual who successfully carried the views of the business community to the President.''

Also troubling some business leaders was the effect the investigation of Lance would have on other business people considering government service.

''The whole Lance affair is personally very sad for me, especially when you look well beyond Lance's personal banking habits,'' said William E. Simon, former treasury secretary in the Nixon and Ford administrations and currently a New York consultant.

TWA schedules

Record traffic 'levels' reached

NEW YORK (BW) — Trans World Airlines Inc. flew more scheduled revenue passenger miles in August than any month in its history.

This marks the second straight month TWA has reached record traffic levels.

System scheduled revenue passenger miles in August increased 9.6 per cent compared to August 1976. Domestic revenue passenger miles were up 9.4 per cent and international revenue passenger miles were up 9.8 per cent during the month.

In the first eight months system scheduled revenue passenger miles rose 4.9 per cent — up 3.4 per cent domestically and up 8.3 per cent internationally compared to the like period in 1976.

TWA said its domestic traffic in Auguest grew at a faster rate than the industry because of the stimulus of new promotional fares, while international traffic continued on its year-long upward trend.

TWA operated 7.3 per cent more system scheduled available seat miles in August over August of last year — up 5 per cent domestically and up 12.2 per cent on international routes. In the first eight months system scheduled available seat miles were 5.3 per cent above those in the like period of 1976.

During August TWA's system passenger load factor rose to 64.3 per cent, which was an increase of 1.3 percentage points over August of last year.

Scheduled cargo revenue ton miles declined 2 per cent systemwide — up 1 per cent domestically and down 7.1 per cent internationally in August from the previous August. In the first eight months system scheduled cargo revenue ton miles declined 5.6 per cent from last year's comparable period.

Cucamonga laboratory purchases Oregon firm

Data Design Laboratories in Cucamonga has acquired all of the stock of Custom Systems Associates, Inc. in a cash transaction, said Thomas C. Beiseker, president.

Located in Portland, Ore., the company will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Data-Design Laboratories. James L. Fling will continue in his capacity as president.

Custom Systems Associates, Inc. operates in three key product areas. The Ritch Division designs and manufactures electronic beverage dispensing equipment consisting of portion control and accounting devises for fast food and restaurant installations. Customers include major fast food chains.

The bio-physics division designs and manufactures medical electronics equipment for patient care and monitoring. Major teaching hospitals and universities are among its customers.

LEWIS HOMES—SAN DIMAS, meeting the diverse location needs of many Southern Californians

Real estate

Hub to many places

San Dimas community ideal 'close-in' location

To large numbers of home buyers, close-in location means nearness to many places.

Such need was expressed by the buyer of a home in San Dimas. He explained that his job is in Orange County, his fondness for sports draws him to the Anaheim Stadium and the Coliseum and his wife can't resist pre-concert dining at the Hollywood Bowl.

The Lewis Homes-San Dimas community fulfills the divergent location needs of Southern Californians by getting them off to a head start wherever their various interests lead them, said Roger G. Lewis, vice-president and director of construction for Lewis Homes.

The single-family residences are nearing completion, with sales now in progress. The homes feature a variety of architectural motifs with cedar shake or wood-shingle roofs.

Refrigerated air-conditioning, ceramic tile entries, wood-burning fireplaces and cultured marble pullman tops are noted in the various residences.

Buyers choose from three- or four-bedroom plans with two baths, family rooms and two or three-car garages. Some plans are designed with walk-in wardrobe closets, inside laundry rooms and kitchen breakfast bars.

Purchase price is said to be another factor attracting buyers, the price ranging from $61,000 to $74,000.

The community centers at Allen Avenue, just east of San Dimas Avenue. It is reached by taking Orange Freeway (57) north to Route 10 Freeway, continuing north on 210 to its junction with Foothill Freeway. From there turn east on Foothill Freeway 30 to San Dimas Avenue, south ¼ mile to Allen Avenue and left to sales information center.

From the San Bernardino Freeway, the route is north on Route 10 Freeway to Foothill Freeway 30, east on Foothill Freeway to San Dimas Avenue, south ¼ mile to Allen Avenue and left to the Lewis Homes sales information center.

Orangewood Estates

Montclair 'sales' now under way

Previous sales are under way at Orangewood Estates, a new Westfield Development Company Inc., community of 72 single-family homes in Montclair, announced James Rodgers, owner and president of the Irvine-based building and development firm.

Priced from a low $57,900, the one and two-story homes offer three and four-bedroom, two and 2½ bath arrangements with from 1,402 to 1,828 square feet of living space on estate-size lots.

Sloped ceilings, wood-burning fireplaces with gas lines for log lighteres and family rooms with sliding glass doors for indoor/outdoor living are featured in the homes' living areas.

Color-coordinated kitchens are fully-equipped including gas range with continuous cleaning eye-level double oven, multicycle dishwasher, disposal, ceramic tile countertops, double sink, furniture finish ash cabinetry, luminous ceilings, large pantry, and, in most plans, exterior pass-through kitchen window.

Quality construction features include concrete driveways and walks, copper water lines, preparation for central air conditioning, front and rear exterior lighting, underground untilities, smoke detector, weather-stripping on exterior doors, and pre-wiring for telephone and television outlets.

Other features including electric door chimes, custom hardware, decorative lighting fixtures, quality wall-to-wall carpeting or vinyl asbestos flooring throughout, spacious linen closets, two-car garage and front yard landscaping with trees and plants and sprinkler system complete the package of values you will receive in Orangewood Estates.

The 100-shop Montclair Plaza Shopping Center and schools from elementary to post graduate university level are all close to the new community. Nearby recreation facilities include several public and private golf courses, tennis clubs, riding stables and Mt. Baldy Recreation Area.

The onsite sales office, open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., is manned by Stuart Realty of Tustin, exclusive sales agent.

To reach Orangewood Estates, take the Pomona Freeway to the Ramona Avenue exit, go north on Ramona to Howard Street and turn left on Howard. Or from the San Bernardino Freeway, take the Ramona exit south to Howard and right to Orangewood Estates.

Loans

Major Federally regulated mortgage lenders now have to disclose publicly where they make their mortgage loans.

Real estate briefs

Jorgensen to head delegations

Earl Jorgensen, Franchise Director at Herbert Hawkins Realtors, will head his Company's delegation to the 1977 California Association of Realtors Convention in San Diego, October 5-8.

Among others attending the event at the Town & Country Hotel will be Herbert Hawkins, President; Janet Hawkins, Marketing Director; Jim Papararo, General Sales Manager and many managers and sales associates from the firm's 100 offices throughout Southern California who take an active interest in CAR.

Playing host to their associates will be Bob Andrus, Hawkin's San Diego Regional Manager, and Gail Andrus, manager of the Claremont Mesa office.

While attending seminars and convention events, they will also staff a large, professionally constructed booth designed to acquaint CAR members with the many unique Herbert Hawkins programs and promotional campaigns.

The Company's massive advertising program, often seen in this newspaper, has been an award-winner at past conventions and another large display has been entered in this year's competition.

Realtors seminar clinic planned

A seminar clinic sponsored by the Ontario, Upland and Chino Board of Realtors is set for 7 to 10 p.m., Sept. 29, at Chaffey College.

Entitled Real Estate Roundup, the clinic will be in the college cafeteria and there will be no admission fee. The session will be open to the public, with seven topics up for discussion.

Topics and discussion leaders will be Business and Estate Planning, John Coles and David Briggs; Real Estate Exchanges, Wayne Levitt and Micky Muni; Real Estate Syndication, Wayne Landis; Creative Financing, Larry Ades, and Escrow Problems, Gladys Weiss.

Prof. Gilbert Extale of the Business Division faculty here is coordinating the program with the board.

Extale said that Business and Estate Planning will be new to the agenda of this fourth annual clinic. He reported that here the discussion leaders will explore the tax pitfalls of investment planners and the liquidation of estate assets that may confront executors, administrators and heirs.

Southland home sales rated

The South accounted for more than a third of all sales of single-family homes in the United States in 1976, according to the National Association of Realtors. A total of 1.1 million resale transactions were recorded in the region.

Real Estate investment explored

Two programs in the field of real estate investment will be offered by UCLA Extension this fall in the San Gabriel area.

"Basic Real Estate Investing" will meet on Wednesdays, October 5 to November 9, 7 to 10 p.m., at the Glen A. Wilson High School, 16455 E. Wedgeworth Drive, Hacienda Heights. Instructor Maurice Iddings is a realtor and tax attorney.

"Home Buyers Clinic: Buying Residential and Small Income Property" is scheduled for Nov. 5, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Holiday Room, Holiday Inn, 3223 E. Garvey Avenue, West Covina. The instructor is Richard L. Noyes, president, Audited Investment Properties.

Move it with rent a truck

Thinking of moving? Driver magazine has some tips for do-it-yourself movers. Before renting the truck, figure out how much you have to move. Note if you have lots of books, appliances and canned goods. Truck rental companies can give you a good idea of the size truck you'll need from the information you provide. Comparison shop and don't forget to ask about hand trucks, boxes and furniture pads.

1976 home prices listed

In 1976, 40.2 per cent of existing single-family homes sold in the United States sold for prices in the $30,000 to $49,999 range, according to the National Association of Realtors. A total of 31.6 per cent were sold at prices under $30,000; 17.9 per cent commanded prices between $50,000-$69,999; and 10.3 per cent were sold for $70,000 or more.

Never on Sunday

Legislation in 1845 ordered elections in the United States to take place during the first week of November because "harvesting is over then and winter has not yet made the roads impossible." Tuesday was designated instead of Monday because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Landlord homes studied at UCLA

How to go about buying, selling, remodeling, and landlording — or landladying — homes in today's market will be examined at UCLA Extension this fall in four Saturday programs beginning in October.

"Selling Your Home in a Seller's Market" will focus on pre-selling strategy and an understanding of the kinds of sale mechanics that can increase the seller's net proceeds. The seminar will meet Saturday, October 1, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences Building.

"Remodeling Your Home: Getting the Best For Less," a seminar exploring how to make remodeling work in terms of cost effectiveness and added value, is scheduled for Saturday, October 25, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences Building, UCLA.

"Home Buyers Clinic: Residential and Small Income Property" will chart a path for the non-professional investor to buy right and avoid surprises, and will meet Saturday, October 22, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 1200 Rolfe Hall, UCLA.

"Landlording for Do-It-Yourself Landlords and Landladies" will present the technical and human side of managing apartments, together with a recipe for more profits with less effort and a clear conscience. The seminar will meet Saturday, December 3, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences, UCLA.

For fee and enrollment information call (213) 825-7305.

Housing boom spreading across nation; hot spots listed

The housing boom is getting spread around. The rest of the country is catching up to California.

In a list of major markets which will have record single-family production this year, the Midwest, South, Mountain region and Pacific Northwest are represented as well as California.

Of the half-dozen hottest single-family markets on a per-capita basis, only two now are from California.

This patter bodes well for a second half of housing activity even stronger than the first and for a 1977 total of 2 million starts or better.

And there is enough backlog of demand to support an equally good year in 1978, though a shortage of lots and a lack of water loom as future problems in some markets.

These are findings of Advance Mortgage Corporation's current quarterly survey, "U.S. Housing Markets," which compares housing trends in 17 major markets and the U.S. Advance Mortgage is a subsidiary of Citicorp.

ALL HOT

"The boom is no longer as lopsided regionally as last year or even this spring," says Advance Mortgage president Robert J. Mylod.

"The once-feverish demand in California has been subdued to merely very strong. At the same time, single-family demand is still rising in most of the other markets we survey, especially in the Midwest and Mountain regions. It is in balance with sales at a high level in the Southern markets.

"Not just in California but in a dozen major markets from Washington, D.C. to Seattle, good tracts in moderate price ranges sell out in three months or less, often before models can be roofed in or literature printed.

"It is indicative of this year's regional balance that Los Angeles-Orange County, which has a deserved reputation as a hot market, ranks at the bottom in single-family markets not generally thought of as booming, such as Atlanta and Minneapolis-St. Paul, are twice as hot as L.A.-Orange."

The hottest single-family markets in the first half were, in order of rank: Riverside-San Bernardino, Phoenix, Houston, Denver, San Diego and Seattle.

Markets that should set new single-family records this year include this group plus Minneapolis-St. Paul.

U.S. single-family starts rose from an annual rate of 1,394,000 in the first quarter to 1,450,000 in the second. "U.S. Housing Markets" projects a rate of at least 1,500,000 over the next two quarters.

A pickup in apartment starts, especially in the federally-subsidized sector, is expected to raise the second half rate of total starts to 2 million-plus, compared to the 1,905,000 of the first half.

DOWN TO REAL DEMAND

"The leveling off in California," Mylod points out, "does not reflect any great change in basic demand. Homes over $100,000 now require harder selling, but there are still camp-outs, lotteries and auctions at many new tracts in the lower price ranges. The significant difference is that much — not all — of the speculative component has been squeezed out of the market.

"This has been largely the achievement of the state's lending institutions, with strong leadership from the San Francisco Home Loan Bank. They began last spring to impose higher down payments and interest rates — premiums up to 1 per cent — to identifiable non-occupant buyers.

"This is the first time, to our knowledge, that lenders have confronted a dangerous market situation before it turned into the forseeable bust. Speculation however dies out hard and there is still room for concern."

BALANCE AMONG SECTORS

This year's market is also moving into a better balance between sectors, the Advance survey notes. Some 30 per cent of the second half starts should be multifamily, the highest ratio since 1974, through still far short of the 38 per cent average of the past decade.

Condos are selling well again, even in resale. (Except in Philadelphia and Atlanta; their inventories are several years away from cleanup.) Inventories in several markets are close to zero. Conversions are resuming on a massive scale — Houston projects 13,000 this year. Almost every market has some new projects and in Chicago, Texas and California the numbers are significant.

NOW, REHAB

Rehab is becoming a significant sector in many markets. It is the only bright sector in Bostom where Skid Row blocks of 100-year-old housing are being turned into $60,000 units. Even more significant is the trend in New York where space no longer viable for commercial use is being converted to housing, often to more exciting units than are available in standard apartments. There are so many conversions of loft buildings that once-depressed market is visibly tightening.

THE BIG GAINERS

There have been especially strong upturns this year in the Dallas apartment market, running double last year's first half, and in all sectors of the Phoenix market, which will approximately double last year's totals. The Phoenix trend appears to be only beginning. Offerings of individual lots, in which buyers must commit to build within one or two years, are sold out in an afternoon.

Only a couple of major markets are building at rates that appear to be unsustainable. In Houston, multifamily permits increased to an annual rate of 40,000 in the second quarter, compared to an absorption rate of 20,000. San Diego is one California market which has not leveled off. Moratoriums covering some 25 per cent of its buildable land continue to heat it up.

LOT FAMINE

"The major concerns in next year's market and in what remains of this year's," says Mylod, "relate not to demand but to shortages and costs.

"Lots are scarce and increasingly expensive in all but a few markets. Some have appreciated 25 per cent in a year. In the larger markets few good lots are available under $18,000, almost compelling a $70,000 home. In Chicago, single-family lots command the same prices as multifamily land.

"Only Denver and San Diego have restrictions which affect the supply of buildable land. The explanation, rather, is that land developers could not forsee the current sales pace and that environmental requirements, especially severe in California, have lengthened the lead time for new development to as much as 18 months, even two years.

"It is not likely that even next year many starts will be lost for a lack of lots. (Except, probably, in San Diego and Denver.) But the supply of lots will be bid up, adding one more cost pressure to an already too costly product."

The one bright note in the lot supply picture comes from the Washington, D.C. market. Sewer moratoriums which covered the Maryland half of that market for the past five years were lifted in July.

One byproduct of the lot shortage is that smaller builders in many areas are being forced out of the market or forced into development risks they can ill afford. Increasingly, developers are turning builders also, if they are not already, and holding their lots for their own use.

The most important ingredient, mortgage money, should remain in ample supply next year, says Mylod, though rates will probably be somewhat higher.

Real estate loan volume takes jump in August

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Financial Federation Inc., Los Angeles-based holding company for 11 California savings and loan associations, reported that real estate loan volume in August was 45 per cent higher than in the like month of 1976.

For the first eight months of 1977, loan volume surpassed the previous year by 46 per cent.

The company's total new loan volume in August was $55.1 million, compared to $37.9 million a year ago. For the first eight months, total loans of $427.5 million set a record for any similar period. This compares with $292.7 million for the first eight months of 1976.

"During the first eight months of this year, total savings deposits increased $156 million, a 21 per cent gain over last year's record for the same period of $128.4 million," he said. "As of Aug. 31, total deposits were $1.724 billion, compared to $1.489 billion a year ago.

"With a total loan portfolio balance of $1.755 billion at the end of August, it is clear that we are more than achieving our goal of converting all savings dollars that come into our institutions into home loans. This is the historic role of a savings and loan organization, and we are pleased that our company is able to demonstrate the uniqueness of our industry among financial institutions."

State opens new office in real estate crackdown

LOS ANGELES — As part of its stepped up enforcement program against unscrupulous and dishonest real estate licensees, the California Department of Real Estate officially opened a new branch office in Santa Ana recently to provide service directly for Orange and Riverside County residents.

"The new office (located in Room 324 of the State Building, 28 Civic Center Plaza) will mean increased consumer protection and better enforcement through closer community contact with consumers and licensees," Real Estate Director David H. Fox stated. "While many licensees are honest and do a good job, there are some who cheat innocent victims in real estate transactions through misleading and fradulent practices."

Fox noted that the Department annually receives over 14,000 public inquiries and more than 1,000 complaints concerning real estate transaction and licensee activities from Orange and Riverside County residents.

William H. Wall, Chief Deputy Commissioner in charge of the Santa Ana office, explained that "Orange and Riverside Counties comprise one of the state's fastest growing areas with over 1½ million residents and more than 60,000 real estate licensees." Wall urged anyone aware of possible dishonest or fraudulent activities by licensees to immediately contact his office so appropriate investigatory and disciplinary actions may be taken.

In addition to examining license applicants and policing the professional conduct of brokers and salespersons, the DRE also approves newly subdivided property for public sale, issues comprehensive public reports on the new property detailing vital consumer information, and conducts numerous statewide consumer education programs.

Fox encouraged individuals, prior to buying or selling a house or raw land, to stop by the office and pick up available informational consumer education brochures.

The new Santa Ana location joins existing DRE offices in San Diego, Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco and Sacramento.

Moves lawn to new town over higher water rates

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — When city officials here imposed higher water rates to cut down water usage during the dry summer months, Jim Sloggett found a way to keep his lawn green. He moved it to a different town.

When the council last month boosted the water rates, Sloggett figured out his bill for keeping the grass green would go from $15 to $43.

So he got a sod cutter, removed his lawn and transplanted it to land he rented in the nearby towns of Clifton and Orchard, where cheaper water rates will keep his bill at about $15.

It was not known whether he had any plans to return the lawn to Grand Junction this fall.

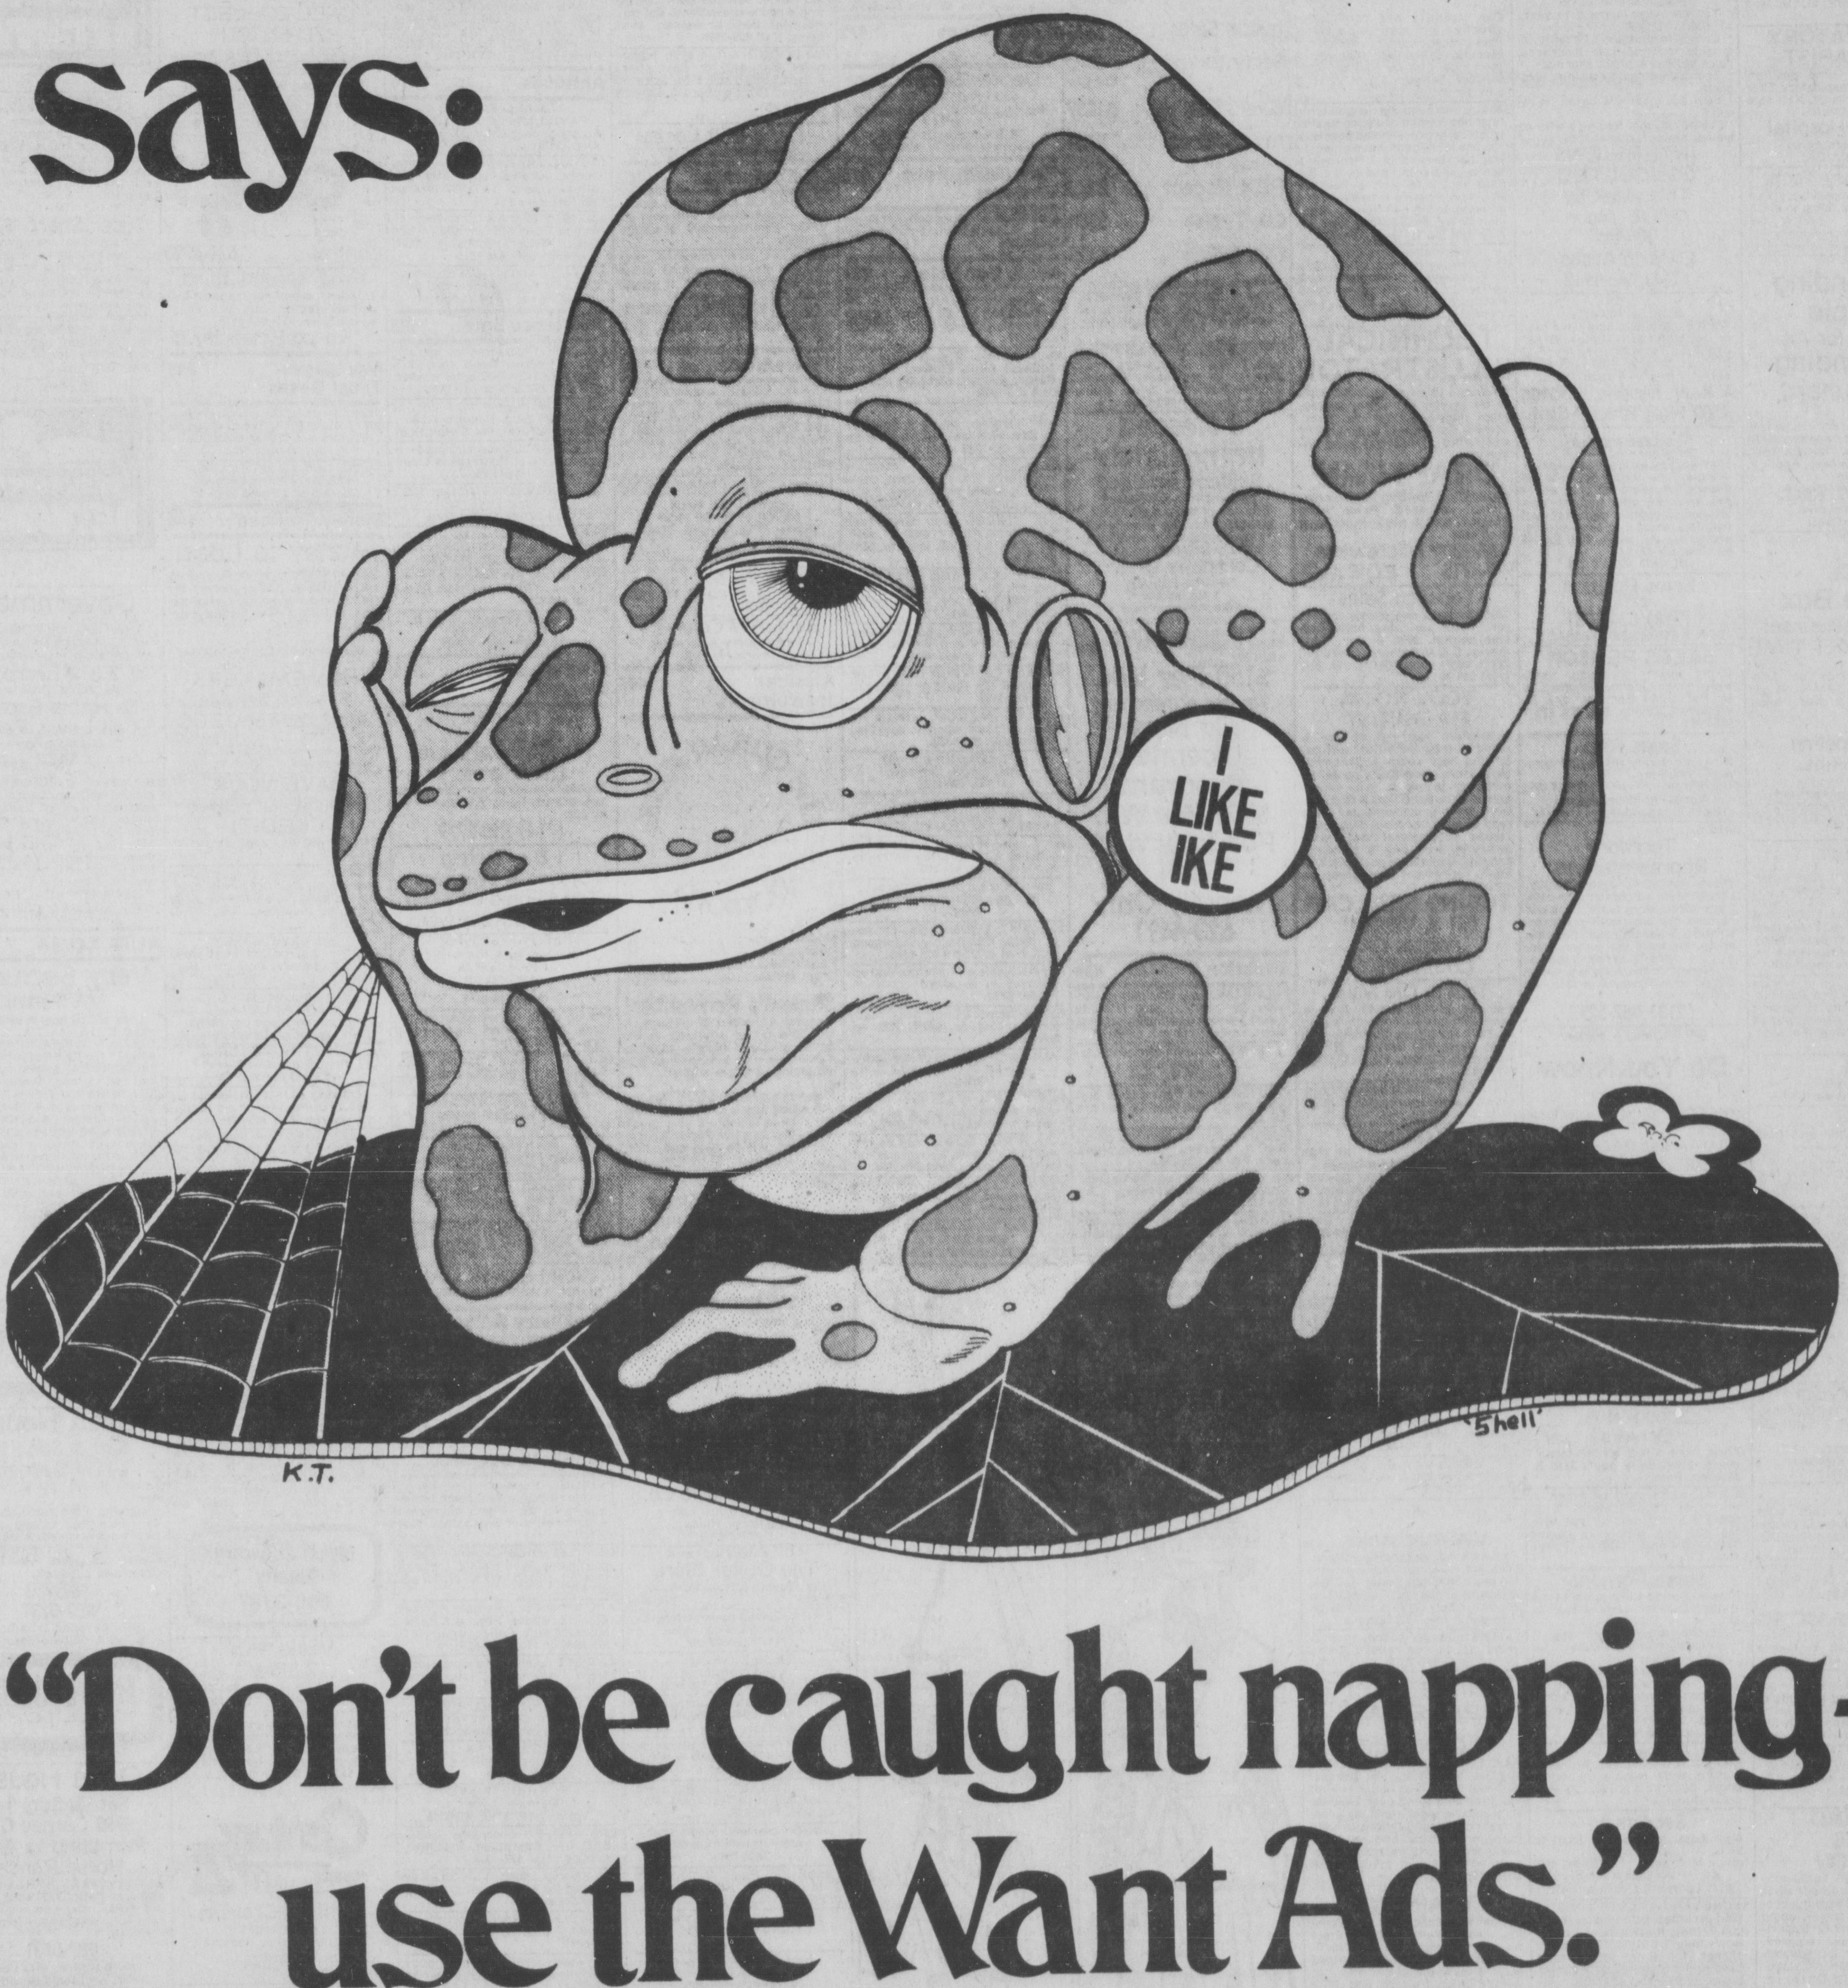
Rip Van Ribbit says:



"Don't be caught napping- use the Want Ads."

"I shouldn't have taken that second sleeping pill," croaked Rip Van Ribbit as he opened one bleary eye. "I'd better hop over to Lily's pad for a cup of coffee and catch up on what's new."

Halfway across the pond he ran into his old friend, Phil O'Dendron. "Hi Ya, Phil," he rasped. "How's Rhoda? You look terrible. Been sick or somethin'?"

"Rip!" exclaimed Phil. "Where in the bulrushes have you been hiding? And what's with the 'I Like Ike' button?"

"Just overslept," said Rip. "You oughta do something about those wrinkles."

"You sound kinda hoarse, Rip."

"Probably got a person in my throat. Have you seen Lily White?"

"Boy, you HAVE been out of it. Lily moved to the Everglades. Had a big house-cleaning and sold a lot of stuff in the Want Ads. Real estate fella got her a great price on her house and she also found a good reliable car for the trip. You know, in spite of all the changes, those Want Ads still do the same old great job."

"What changes?" croaked Rip.

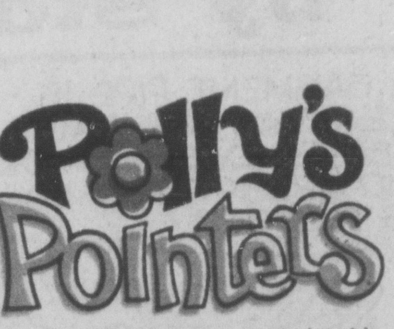
Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Each night I put in the oven the plates, cups and saucers that will be used for breakfast. The pilot light keeps them warm. The bacon and eggs retain their heat much longer when placed on a plate taken from a warm oven. — LUCILE.



© 1977 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — Last year when I moved my son hung my pictures on small steel sewing needles. When removed, they do not leave a visible hole. The needles are strong enough to hold most pictures. — MRS. H.E.S.

●

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When I have trouble opening one of those pill bottles that says "Push down and turn," I tap it smartly around the top with the handle of a knife and then let hot water run on the lid and around it for a few seconds and then it will open easily. — MAE.
POLLY'S NOTE: Take care to hold bottle so that no water can seep in to spoil the medication.

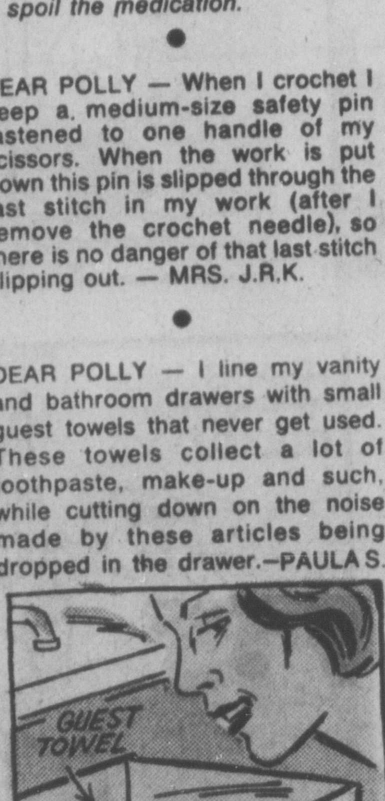
DEAR POLLY — When I crochet I keep a medium-size safety pin fastened to one handle of my scissors. When the work is put down this pin is slipped through the last stitch in my work (after I remove the crochet needle), so there is no danger of that last stitch slipping out. — MRS. J.R.K.

●

DEAR POLLY — I line my vanity and bathroom drawers with small guest towels that never get used. These towels collect a lot of toothpaste, make-up and such, while cutting down on the noise made by these articles being dropped in the drawer.—PAULA S.



GUEST TOWEL
E.H.

DEAR POLLY — When a dog has puppies a plain old box can get very messy. Try using a young child's plastic swimming pool with newspapers covering the bottom. This makes it easy to clean up puppy messes and makes a perfect, leakproof bed (indoors or out). There is enough room for a large litter and the mother, too. — MARTHA.

9-25
CHILD'S PLASTIC SWIMMING POOL

●

DEAR POLLY — It is a great help when doing outside painting to use an aluminum ladder with round hollow pipes for the rungs. You can put a broom handle through the hole in a ladder rung and then put the bail of the paint bucket on this handle. As your painting progresses, move the handle down or up to a more convenient rung. — LETHO.

●

DEAR POLLY — When I want to take a picture of a baby I give the youngster a piece of gummed plastic tape, and snap away as the baby tries to remove the tape from his fingers. — MRS. C.H.B.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:
CATHERINE SANDBERG OF LOGAN, UT, ASKS:
"WHY DO EARTHWORMS COME OUT AFTER A RAIN?"
IT ISN'T FULLY UNDERSTOOD WHY EARTHWORMS SOMETIME CRAWL ABOUT ON THE SURFACE OF THE GROUND AFTER A RAIN. BUT SCIENTISTS THINK THAT IT IS PROBABLY BECAUSE THE RAIN WATER FLOODS THEIR BURROWS, AND THEY MUST COME TO THE SURFACE TO AVOID BEING DROWNED. EARTHWORMS CANNOT LIVE LONG IN SUNLIGHT, AND ONCE IN THE OPEN THEY BECOME WEAK AND USUALLY DIE.

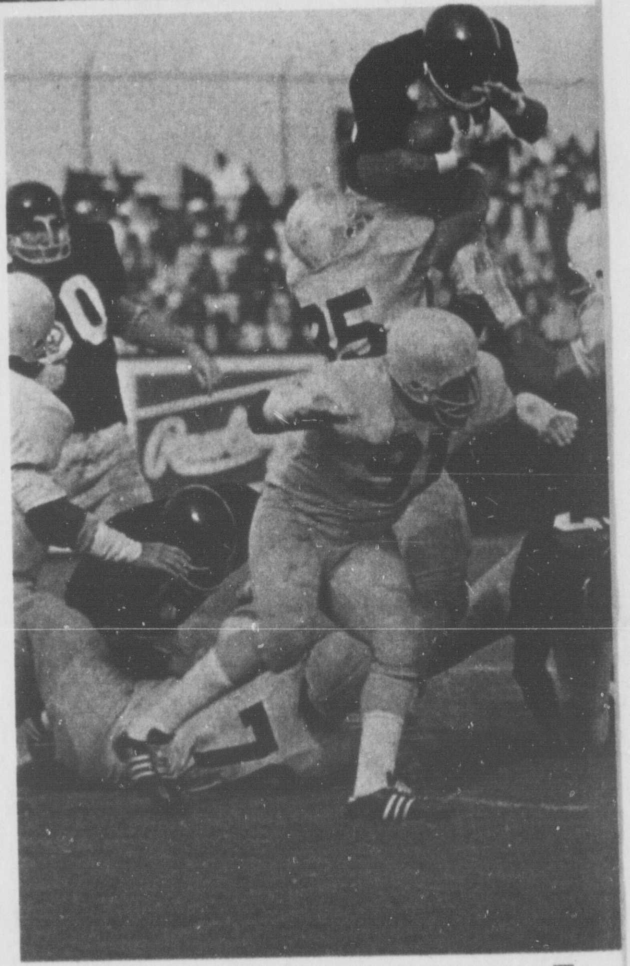
When the parents of a young woman learn there is no chance for their daughter to recover from her comatose condition, they determine to remove her destiny from the hands of medical science and place it in the hands of God—encountering unexpected medical and legal opposition along the way—in the NBC World Premiere Movie "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan," Monday at 9PM. Based on the headline-making case of a young New Jersey woman who lapsed into a coma at age 21, the drama stars Brian Keith, Piper Laurie, David Huffman, Stephanie Zimbalist, David Spielberg, Biff McGuire, Louise Latham and Bryon Morrow.

Burt Reynolds, who was slated for a football career with the Baltimore Colts until a knee injury ended those plans, stars as a jailed ex-superstar quarterback who mobilizes his fellow convicts for a gridiron battle against their oppressive prison guards in "The Longest Yard," the ABC Sunday Night Movie at 9PM. Also starring are Eddie Albert as a sly and sinister prison warden, and Ed Lauter as a mean guard captain. Michael Conrad portrays a fellow inmate and veteran footballer who assists Reynolds with his team, and Jim Hampton is a lovable con whose resourceful good nature proves to be his tragic downfall.



Alan Alda stars as Caryl Chessman, California's notorious "red light bandit," who spent 12 years on death row before being executed. The story is retold in "Kill Me If You Can," a fact-based movie on NBC, Sunday at 9PM. Chessman was arrested and charged with robbery, rape and murder in the late 40s. He was accused of simulating a police car by covering his car's spotlight with red cellophane and approaching victims parked on lovers lanes. Chessman studied law in prison and became an expert lawyer, which was helpful in his battle to avoid the gas chamber. Talia Shire co-stars as attorney Rosalie Asher, who aided Chessman in his long ordeal. After eight stays of execution, he lost his final appeal.

Fred, the unflappable cockatoo, who plays Tony Baretta's roommate in ABC's Baretta, recently was awarded the Grand Patsy (for best animal or fowl actor) for the second consecutive year.

When a visitor to the Baretta set asked him about his reaction to the honor, Fred's response was atypical silence. His interpreter, series star Robert Blake, explained: "That means I ain't got no squawk."

For most of the last five years actress Barbara Parkins has been living in England. Now, however, she is spending most of her time in Hollywood working in television productions. In "Young Joe, The Forgotten Kennedy," a motion picture being filmed for ABC, she co-stars with Peter Strauss. "I left Hollywood because everything in both films and television was so bad," she admitted. "Just recently, though, there has been a change. I have done three television productions in a row and they have all been excellent. I think the tide is turning."

COVER CLOSE-UP

NEW TERRITORY

The popular "I'd rather be sailing" bumper sticker would have been appropriate for Australian-born actor Rod Taylor had NBC not decided to put Taylor on the fall schedule this season as the star of The Oregon Trail, TV's first new Western series in some years. "I had just bought a boat and was planning to go sailing for an extended period and try my new toy," Taylor said, his head shaking with incredulity. "But NBC wanted me to do the series, so here I am, riding horses, breathing in the dust and basking in the hot sun.

"But I'm a gambler and I really believe in this TV project. Our series is a sophisticated show featuring authentic history to the backdrop of beautiful scenery," Taylor added.

Taylor, a popular television star (Hong Kong and The Bearcats) and motion picture star ("The Birds," "Hotel," and "Sunday in New York"), portrays Evan Thorpe who reluctantly but successfully takes on the difficult task of wagon master of NBC's The Oregon Trail on Wednesday (9-10PM).

Taylor, in real life colorful, outspoken and respected by his peers, has played western heroes before, but none such as Evan Thorpe.

"He's gentle, he cannot read and write, he's moral and insists on prayers in the evening." Taylor said. "I think that's contrapuntal to the Rod Taylor who can ride and shoot and fight. I think that's useful, frankly.

"If he were a straight-out, big, tough boss of the trail, it would be a bore. I think he's far removed from John Wayne. He's a stumbling, bumbling, shy man who, when the chips are down, will save your life," the actor added.

With his three motherless children—17-year-old Andy, played by Andrew Stevens (son of Stella Stevens); 12-year-old William portrayed by Tony Becker; and 10-year-old Rachel, acted by Gina Marie Smika—Evan Thorpe, a widower, moves from his Illinois farm hoping to better himself and his family in the new territory of Oregon.

The series, set in the mid-19th century, when Oregon fever raged across the eastern United States, also stars Darleen Carr as wagon train teacher Margaret Devlin, an independent young woman who is attracted to the strong, courageous character of Evan Thorpe; and Charles Napier as the wagon train's scout and guide, taciturn mountain man Luther Sprague.

The weekly series dramatizes the epic journey from Independence, Mo. to the Willamette Valley in Oregon, as the pioneers struggle against the elements to reach what they pray will be the promised land.

The efforts of NBC and Universal Studios have combined to make this expensive television project authentic and realistic with the entire filming taking place in Flagstaff, Ariz.

"We settled on Flagstaff because it approximates the actual barren wasteland that the pioneers encountered on the way to Oregon," according to creator and executive producer Michael Gleason. "The Flagstaff area is gorgeous with its beautiful plains, streams, lakes, rivers, deserts and mountains. The scenery will be as varied and lush as in any television series you'll see."

"However, the scenic background is only the backdrop to this series," Gleason cautioned. "The people is what this series is about. Evan Thorpe and his family are the microcosm of the people who represent the emigrant spirit—the pioneer spirit that settled the country. All this is embodied in Evan and his family and that's what our series dramatizes."

Each week's episode depicts the wagon train's arduous journey across the unknown wasteland while dramatizing the Thorpe family's relationships with the other members of the pioneer train struggling through emotional upheavals brought on by the inhuman difficulties on the trail.

The Oregon Trail offers a series of dramas unique in television: family drama with all the warmth, love, conflict and humor played in a world of high adventure, grueling hardships and the gravest jeopardy. Romance one day is brought up against the extreme jeopardy of natural disaster the next. Children's play must give way to extraordinary efforts to survive—and the children resume their play.

Andrew Stevens, son of actress Stella Stevens, has his first series role as Rod Taylor's son.

Tony Becker and Gina Marie Smika portray the younger son and daughter

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D.-Wis.)

What is being done to interest young men in the space program? —D.B., Lima, Ohio

● NASA has reopened the training program for astronauts, and there is great interest in it. But the question should be: how do we get more young women interested in the space program? NASA has been woefully inadequate in attracting and training women and minorities. It has promised to do better, but only time will tell.

FOR BILLIE JEAN KING

● When the child shows inclination. It all depends on the child. If a 2-year-old drags a tennis racquet around the house because his parents play or because he wants to emulate what he saw on TV, that's the time. Same thing with a 10-year-old. You must not push, however. You can get the child interested by showing him what goes on at the courts, but putting a racquet in his hand doesn't mean he'll take to it as a duck takes to water. Desire must come from the child, not the parent.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of Family Secrets

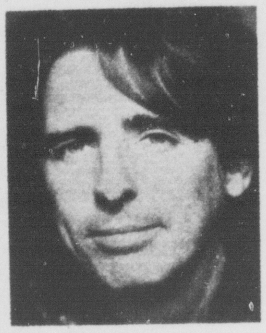
Do you have any special idiosyncrasies when you write — such as sitting in a certain way at a special desk? —S.S., Little Rock, Ark.

● No. Probably because when I started, I knew a writer who had to wear a special old sweater for inspiration when she worked. I got put off by that. She also was a lousy writer, and I haven't heard of her for years. Maybe she washed the sweater.



FOR ALICE COOPER, rock singer

● Ever since I was a kid I've been around snakes, so handling them is no problem. I trained my crew on how to care for Angel (my new snake), especially when we're traveling. Although they can all attend to Angel, there's one person exclusively assigned to Snake Duties. Snakes aren't as frightening as they appear to be — once you get to know them.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

Do you think it's wrong for an older woman to go out with a younger man? —Scott Rogers, Rye, N.Y.

● Absolutely! If she does, she must bear in mind the awful possibility that she might not be able to dance as long as he can.

FOR ROBYN SMITH, jockey

Is it true you try to discourage other women from becoming jockeys? —Violet Pavelec, Waterloo, Iowa

● To the contrary, I encourage women to try and do anything in life they want to. I just warn them of the hard work involved and the fact that they must not give up when they get discouraged — which happens to all of us once in a while.

FOR PEGGY WILLIAMS, first woman graduate of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Clown College

What got you interested in the circus, and how did you become a clown? —S.R., Torrance, Calif.

● After I graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in special education, I wanted to communicate with my students in a unique way. Pantomime seemed to be the answer — it is visual and imaginative. I had great success with this method. Then I noticed an ad for the Clown College in a Florida newspaper. Although 5,000 people applied, to my astonishment, I was one of the 50 accepted. That was seven years ago.

FOR IRMA BACHARACH, mother of composer Burt

What's your favorite story about Burt? —A.G., Alexandria, Va.

● When he was 7, we were in a restaurant, and I was drilling him on etiquette and good manners. Just as our entrée was served, I saw a friend approaching from the other end of the room. I said to Burt, "When this lady comes and talks to us, Daddy will stand up and you must, too." Burt stood up — but continued eating (I'd forgotten to say he should stop eating while he stood) and managed the incredible feat of eating spaghetti and shaking hands at the same time.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

● Bennett claims it's because he works 45 weeks a year and sings songs that don't become dated. ("At my age," says the 51-year-old performer, "I can't be 'with it.'") He doesn't get bored on stage and continues to be influenced by his early mentors — Astaire, Sinatra, Crosby, Ella Fitzgerald, Peggy Lee. He attributes his success to the fact that he records good songs, not cheap ones: "In this age of the ripoff, some feel the public will buy and listen to anything. I don't agree."

Where do you get all your ideas from? How did you learn to draw so well? —L.S., Walnut Creek, Calif.

● I have no idea where my ideas come from — except for the fact that those ideas, or images, as I'd rather call them, are always there and were always there. They are fragments of feelings — flashes of pictures — that have lived with me from earliest childhood. Occasionally, one of those fragments will blossom and bloom into a finished work. None of my ideas are new. They are my oldest friends — and even enemies.

PRO AND CON

Should The Government Subsidize Olympic Athletes?

PRO Kenny Moore, 1968, 1972 Olympic marathoner

Yes. When East Germany, a nation the size of Ohio, wins more Olympic medals than the U.S., it means it has given its athletes better coaching and medical help plus more time to train. To be a world-class gymnast, wrestler, rower, fencer, swimmer or weightlifter requires so much single-minded effort that it is extremely difficult to hold down a job and train properly. It's not fair to the athlete or his employer to try. Now that colleges are supporting Olympic sports less and less, because of decreased revenues, it becomes the responsibility of Congress to develop a program of assistance for potential Olympic athletes.

CON E. Newbold Black IV, 2nd vice president, U.S. Olympic Committee

No. Direct subsidy by Federal, state or municipal governments could lead to unnecessary pressures on the administrators and athletes involved. Where the government can assist the athlete is: 1) In funding more and better facilities and in making available, at no charge to the athlete, greater access to existing facilities. There is only one bobsled run in Lake Placid, for example. There is only one refrigerated 400-meter track for speed-skating. 2) Reduced or free air transportation to training sites or competitions. 3) Additional tax relief for an athlete's training expenses in the form of tax deductions or tax credits based on private contributions.

PATTY WILSON'S

MAGNIFICENT MARATHON

They told her not to start...they told her not to go on. Her foot was fractured and a seizure threatened her. But still she ran the 1,300 miles.

"I haven't been stopped...I never will," said Patty after setting a world record.

By Sheila Cragg

It used to be that when young Patty Wilson ran, her arms and legs flailed like a rag doll's. She was an awkward child, uncoordinated, without the grace of an athlete. Why, she couldn't even throw a ball.

Perhaps not a tragedy; many children are clumsy, their muscles undeveloped, their needs uncertain. But Patty felt her ineptness more deeply than other children might: she came from a family of athletes, a concentrated world of bowling, basketball, handball, tennis — and competition. Her older brother, Richard, played baseball, and her younger sister, Sandy — Sam they call her — enjoyed softball.

"I felt left out," Patty says, "I took dancing and thought that would help. They talked sports, and I didn't understand the world they were talking about."

Timidly at first, Patty began to run a mile with her father, Jim, who was always by her side. Watching. Their runs were mild and innocent, the least of challenges for a child lacking athletic ability. But there was one more dark element in a race over obstacles: Patty had a dreaded and misunderstood disease. She was epileptic. Her disease and the way people fear the victim became parts of the fabric of Patty's later marathon triumph.

Her first modest achievement came when she ran from her home in La Palma, Calif., to her grandparents' home in Los Angeles. Patty was 13; the distance was 30 miles. In her mind were thoughts of Pete Strudwick, a marathoner she'd met just before she began the run. There was something in Pete that found itself alive in Patty — a fierce determination to overcome an obstacle. Pete, the marathoner, runs on stumps because he has no feet.

In 1975 she and her dad ran the 100 miles from La Palma to San Diego. When a newspaper publicized the event, the trek became even more of a challenge for Patty, and her determination became an unshatterable purpose.

But a first moment of truth was to befall Patty. In that same year, as a freshman in high school, she joined the all-guys cross-country team. During her first meet, Patty had her first psychomotor seizure while running. It was 90-degree weather and smoggy. A quarter-mile out, Patty began running like a mechanical tin soldier. Her arms and legs marched up and down.

Jim and her mother, Dotty, were standing on the sidelines. They didn't know what to do. They couldn't — or wouldn't — run among the competitors and grab her. To their disbelief, Patty finished the race. She was standing. But she was unconscious.

Jim and Dotty cooled her down with water and asked her questions: "What is your name? Do you know who I am? Where do you live? Are you a girl?" There was no response. Nearly an hour later, Patty regained consciousness. But she didn't remember anything about the race.

Each time an epileptic has a seizure a part of life is lost. Patty's psychomotor seizure is one form of an epileptic attack: staring, confusion, a kind of sleep and loss of memory. There would be more attacks, of course, but Patty's doctor felt that she could continue running — if she were always accompanied.

For Patty, the striving to overcome was developing. Toward the end of running season, she won her first race. She was invited to the Santa Barbara cross-country invitational for high-school girls.

"I was scared," Patty says. "It was a two-mile race over hilly terrain I'd never seen. The crowd was yelling 'Patty,' and I wondered why. I won it, and the team voted me Most Inspirational Runner."

Now was to come the second step for Patty, the next test. A few weeks later she and her dad ran 300 miles to Las Vegas, and after the school year, they ran to San Francisco. They simply put one foot after the other for 508 grueling miles.

In 1976-77, Patty, then a sophomore, competed on the men's cross-country team and the girls' track team, and Jim started talking about a run to Portland, Ore. "I was negative," says Patty's mother. "I'd about lost Jim to heat stroke. I thought the San Francisco trip was hard enough."

Jim and Patty persevered, though, and persuaded Dotty to help them in their greatest challenge — a 1,000-mile run from Buena Park, Calif., to Portland.

To train for this multiple marathon, Patty and Jim ran 125 miles a week. During one session they were running shoulder to shoulder. At the bottom of a hill, Jim burst ahead because there was running room for only one. He ran a quarter of a mile and turned to check on Patty.

She was nowhere in sight. Jim ran down the hill to see if she'd stopped at the gas station. He asked the attendants if they'd seen Patty, but they hadn't.

Jim ran a mile east and then a mile west. Still no Patty. Now it was twilight. He ran their original route, which was about three miles, and then ran home. No one had seen Patty. Jim went back to where they were when they'd separated. No Patty.

"I panicked!" he recalls. "People had told me that men in vans could drive up along side Patty and kidnap her. I was afraid she'd been hit by a car. A lot of things spun through my mind."

Jim ran home, and in the darkness he and Dotty drove the streets searching. They returned home and were about to phone the police when Patty turned the corner. She was heading toward home — and running.

"Where have you been?" Jim asked hysterically. Patty was confused, and when he realized that Patty had had a seizure, they began to fit together the pieces.

"All that time Patty thought she was talking to me," Jim explains. "When I turned to go up the hill, she continued going straight. She wasn't aware that I wasn't there. Finally, she got to a point far enough away, and she didn't know who she was or where she was. She went to a park and sat down. She didn't know what was happening. Hours later, when she cleared from the seizure, she ran home."

The episode frightened Jim and Dotty, but Patty didn't let it bother her. When they ran, Jim watched her more closely.

The Wilsons had not revealed that Patty had epilepsy. They feared she'd be barred from cross-country events and marathons. Patty talked about it freely. Her high-school coaches knew, but her parents kept it a secret from the press and the public.

Dotty, reflecting, explains why: "Patty's first seizure occurred in her third-grade classroom. The teacher rushed out of the class and summoned the principal. They took Patty to the nurse's office. The children went home and related it all to their parents, telling them the teacher said Patty had epilepsy, and they came back with a batch of old wives' tales. The social situation became very difficult. The children left Patty alone, and she didn't want to return to school.

"I figured that if that's the way a few react, then that's the way the general public would react. We didn't even tell her grandparents for a long time. Even though Patty is a junior in high school, young people still remark to both Richard and Sam, 'Oh, your sister's the one that had the seizure in third grade.'"

The doctor they consulted refused to label Patty with the word "epilepsy." He told the Wilsons that she had a seizure disorder, but they didn't realize that it was the same thing as epilepsy.

"I was scared of the word epilepsy," Jim states. "I didn't know what it was. It meant something like polio or leprosy. Now that I understand it, it doesn't frighten me as much. Her epilepsy is so mild we don't think in terms of her having it, nor does she. But she does have it, so why not help those who are less fortunate than we are?" The Wilsons did just that when they publicly announced a month prior to her Portland run that Patty had epilepsy.

Their target date, June 18, was rapidly approaching. The details of planning the trip mushroomed. The Wilsons needed help. Robert Bradach, a personal friend, took over. He raised funds, found a recreational vehicle to lease and contacted chamber of commerces in every city through which Jim and Patty planned to run. Freeways tightly lace California, and it is against the law to run on them. Assessing which side roads and highways they could run on, and seeking police protection, became a time-consuming task.

They ran long, lonely miles and encountered blisters, pain and hecklers who pelted them with garbage, dirt and thoughtless taunts.

On June 18, television crews, reporters, state, county and city officials, epilepsy society members, runners and well wishers gathered to celebrate the impossible. Patty radiated warmth, moving among the people, laughing and talking.

Dr. Robert Schuller gave the invocation and shared his Possibility Thinkers Creed: "When faced with a mountain I will not quit! I will keep on striving until I climb over, find a pass through, tunnel underneath or simply stay and turn the mountain into a gold mine, with God's help."

She received the California flag, a proclamation to present to the governor of Oregon and the Candle of Understanding, the national symbol of the Epilepsy Foundation of America.

Like a pied piper, a local band led the crowd to watch Patty's takeoff. Patty, 5'4", solid and tanned, looked lost among the male runners who'd come to run the first few miles with her. To keep her waist-length blond-brown hair from blowing in her face, she'd tied it with a band. Patty broke through the paper banner that heralded her run. Momentarily, she turned toward the crowd, saluted the Candle of Understanding, then was off.

Patty's Portland run presented challenges that would have stopped most athletes. During the first 25 miles, she suffered a stress fracture in the metatarsal bone of her left foot.

At Port Hueneme, Calif., Jim and Dotty, who is a vocational nurse, took Patty to the hospital emergency room. The doctor X-rayed her foot and advised that it be put in a cast. She would be immobile for six weeks. He warned that if she ran on it, she might never be able to run again.

"It was my decision to go on," claims Patty. "Dad wanted me to go on. I could feel it. I knew how much he wanted me to make it, how much it meant to him. It was our dream. After we got going with the broken foot, it was a challenge to me to see how strong I could be within myself." She seemed to sense how much she symbolized to others.

Patty's second of a multitude of challenges occurred when they found that their arrival time would be extended by two weeks. They'd chosen the cooler coastal route to avoid the extreme heat they'd encountered on the San Francisco run. The mileage charts for the inland route varied between 969 to 990 miles. "We didn't figure it would be that much farther going up the coast and over," Dotty explains. "We knew we'd gain some, but nothing like 300 miles."

Patty didn't think the extra distance would bother her, but then she'd waken every morning and think, "Nine hundred miles more. I can't make it — 1,310 miles! In my mind I'd go crazy. Dad helped me think in terms of running mile by mile, day by day. That relieved me from dwelling on the awesome distance I would cover."

Patty averaged 31 miles per day during the journey. She rose at 4:30 A.M. The size of their recreational vehicle was not much larger than the bathroom of a home. Just the logistics of moving around and synchronizing their routine were at times a comedy.

There were the ordinary morning preparations — and the painful ones. Dotty had to drain a score of blisters on Patty's feet with a hypodermic needle, a process that had to be repeated every afternoon and evening. Jim wrapped Patty's feet, as well as her legs from thigh to calf.

Patty and Jim were on the road and running by 6:00 A.M. They ran in segments of five miles or more before taking short breaks.

"Patty pulled me along and I pulled her along," Jim recalls. "We told each other stories, played games and collected returnable bottles. Patty practiced her Spanish or imitated her favorite star, Barbra Streisand. The camper ahead was our incentive. Just reach it! When we were in pain and discouraged, we told each other to Bite down on the bullet."

After 10 to 15 miles Patty and Jim would stop and have juices. During the day they consumed about two gallons of fruit juices and a special drink designed to restore the potassium and electrolyte balance. They also took salt tablets. Breakfast and dinner were their only meals.

Patty's foot pained her. It was swollen and barely fit in her shoe. They tried ice packs, hot soaks and different shoes. Along with three drugs to control her epilepsy, Patty took pain medication. Twenty-one days out, she became violently ill in the middle of the night.

"I thought her vomiting was going to tear her insides out, it continued so long," Dotty says. "I wanted desperately for her to stop running."

But the next morning Patty struggled through three miles. She slept for five

Despite The Strength, Spirit And Endurance Of Her Run, Patty Still Fights The Stigma Of Epilepsy

By Penelope Lemov

Patty Wilson's inspirational story is all the more remarkable because of her epilepsy, a disorder marked by recurrent convulsions that can range from body-jerking seizures (grand mal) to milder transient spells (petit mal).

The disorder is a short circuit of sorts. "Instead of putting out normal electrical discharges, some brain cells put out abnormal frequencies which can cause a seizure," says Dr. Samuel Shelburne, director of Neurology for Children's Hospital National Medical Center. "The abnormal frequencies are there all the time, but we still don't understand why a person goes months without a seizure and, then, suddenly, has one."

Medical researchers do know that some seizures are preceded by an aura, a particular sensation like a smell, a taste or a feeling of numbness in the hand. They also know that some seizures are triggered by sensory stimulation, such as a flickering candle, a blinking traffic light — even so seemingly little as some kinds of music or food.

While anyone can have epilepsy at any time during his or her life, 75 percent of the cases begin before age 20. Dr. Shelburne notes that 80 percent of the pediatric cases are outgrown by the time the patient is 21.

The tendency toward seizures can be inherited, but some epilepsy stems from cell damage caused by such things as poor prenatal care, birth trauma, high prolonged fever, a head injury, infection, drug abuse or alcoholism. "Automobile accidents that result in head injuries are the major cause of epilepsy in adults," says Jim Gorman of the Epilepsy Foundation in Washington, D.C."

Although there is no real cure for epilepsy, 70 percent of the patients under a doctor's care gain control over the seizures through appropriate drug therapy. Surgery is sometimes a solution. "It's very good — a cure rather than control — but it is possible only for those patients whose electrical abnormality is in one area of the brain that can be removed," Dr. Shelburne says.

'Enriched Flavor'™ Tobacco!

There is a way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into a low tar cigarette.

MERIT proved it.

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain "flavor-rich" ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers the kind of taste smokers can switch to.

hours, then ran 15 more miles. Her steely mental fiber kept her running long after her body cried — "Quit!"

Hills and head winds were another problem. "It always seemed like the biggest hill was at the end of a day's run," says Jim. "If we'd consulted bicyclists, we would have run from Portland to Los Angeles, instead of the way we did."

Patty and Jim faced stiff winds all along the coast. The breezes blurred their vision and blew them backward and sideways. On the ocean it was the sand; in Coos Bay, Ore., it was the wood chips piled along the road. They wished they had goggles.

If Mother Nature was bad, human nature was worse. From passing cars hecklers yelled, "Run faster! Is that as fast as you can go?" Once motorists threw several fish at them, and another time children bombed them with dirt clods.

From the Oregon border, high-school track teams and track clubs ran with Patty and Jim. But all the way, people with epilepsy stopped and talked to her. "They didn't care about the running; they cared that Patty carried the message that she had epilepsy," Jim says. "She was a light for them." People with other handicaps came to run or talk with Patty. A girl with diabetes told them she couldn't run on the track team anymore, but she wanted to run a short way with Patty.

"Dad and I had a lot of determination," Patty says. "There was no way we could quit; there were people all along the way. In Oregon, people accompanied us from one city to another."

During their final leg into Portland, the crowds poured out to greet them. Gov. Bob Straub, a regular jogger, joined Patty the last mile. Children, track teams and TV and newspaper reporters congested the road. People cheered and waved.

The worst part for Jim was his guilt feelings. "What kind of father was I to make my daughter run on an injured foot?" he agonized. The last hundred yards he looked over to see if Patty had a smile of victory, but she could only grimace from the incredible pain.

Then, it was over. They were swooped up in welcoming ceremonies. Some people in the crowd fought back tears, others wept openly. Gov. Straub proclaimed July 29 Patty Wilson Day throughout Oregon. It was a special day for everyone who had ever struggled against adversity, and especially for those who bore the label "handicapped." And there was another high point: according to an editor at Runner's World magazine, she set a world record; there is no record of a woman running more than 100 miles.

Later, Patty's foot was X-rayed and treated. Her foot was healing and had not been permanently injured.

"I haven't been stopped because of my epilepsy. I never will!" Patty says with finality. "This run was tough. It was a lot of marathons put together. Now, maybe people that are stopped because of epilepsy, or any other handicap, will try to do something they've wanted to do. Maybe, they'll think, 'Hey, I can go out for the track team next year and not be so self-conscious.'"

There are still barriers that must be hurdled. "Because of fear, young people like Patty are often barred from physical education and sports programs," says Mrs. Viola Miller, director of the Orange County (Calif.) Epilepsy Society. "It's not surprising that most people conceal their epilepsy because of prejudices that still exist."

"When we talk about the disadvantages of epilepsy, I worry about job applications," Patty says. "I know I'm going to have to face it. I probably won't be able to get my drivers license when I turn 16 in November, but I don't dwell on it. I can't pretend that my epilepsy is not there. They're not going to change everything just because I ran 1,310 miles. They're not going to say, 'In your case we can let you drive, let you have a job. We can give you life insurance.' That's a fantasy."

At present, Patty is waiting for her foot to heal, but she's planning a 2,000-mile run next summer. Following graduation from high school in 1979, she'll run to Washington, D.C. A lot of people will be cheering her on. FW

On September 25 Patty will appear on Dr. Schuller's Hour of Power. (In some areas the show will be shown on October 2. Check your local listings.)

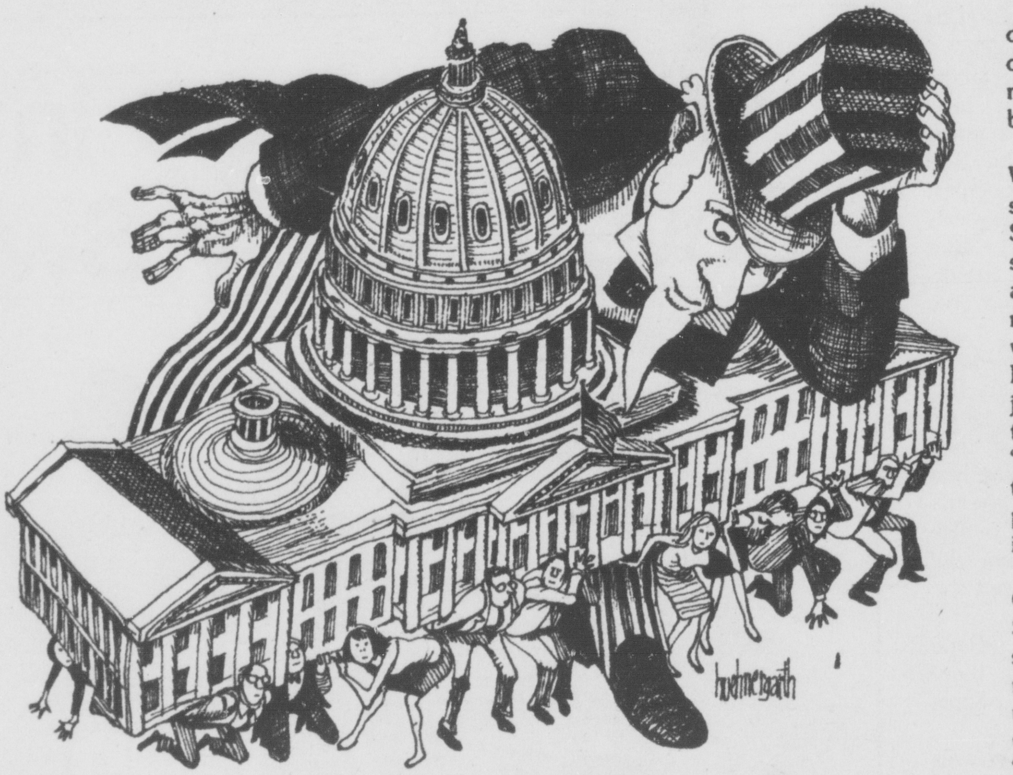
WASHINGTON'S WORKAHOLICS

For the many Congressmen and White House staffers who routinely work 12 to 14 hours six days a week, little time is left for families or the Georgetown social circuit.



By Paula Dranov

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano spends at least 12 hours a day at his desk. Nancy Jordan, wife of President Carter's special assistant Hamilton Jordan, plans her own social life and considers it a bonus if her husband can join her. A Georgia Congressman's wife reports that her husband has gone as long as two weeks without seeing their children awake.

Washington hostesses have been complaining that the town's newest celebrities, President Carter's White House aides, aren't available for dinner, cocktails or the Georgetown soirées that the capital always has regarded as essential to the running of the country. Sans Souci, the Washington restaurant that has accumulated a star-studded clientele through four administrations, hasn't seen much of the new White House crowd. And the families of Carter's aides find that moving to Washington hasn't done much for togetherness — the long working hours keep men like Jordan, Press Secretary Jody Powell, Congressional liaison Frank Moore and domestic-affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat on the job between 12 and 14 hours a day.

Things got so bad back in February that President Carter — who gets to see much more of his family than he did during the campaign — issued a memo suggesting that the staff make time to be with their families. Welcome as the idea might have been, it hasn't had much effect on the working habits of Carter's top staff people. They've discovered what Washington veterans always have known: the pressures of top-level jobs turn even the most dedicated family men and women into workaholics.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, a Colorado Democrat and the mother of two young children, contends that the 12-to-14 hour days most officials put in leaves them physically exhausted. The hardest thing to arrange in her own hectic life, she says, is "having some quiet, connected time to think." Mrs. Schroeder brings her children to the office, leaves debates on the House floor to answer their phone calls and has virtually withdrawn from the capital's cocktail circuit in order to spend more time with her family. And California's new Republican Senator, S.I. Hayakawa, reasons that "this is what I got myself into, and I'm having a good time at it." He admits, however, that there are things to complain about. "We have to work late every night and don't get time for exercise and shooting pool and listening to jazz records and doing all the other things one would like to do."

Does Washington make or just attract workaholics? Sen. William Proxmire has confessed that he's a workaholic and "if it wasn't politics, it would be something else, but politics really is tough. One year I was gone [from home] 50 consecutive weekends." On the other hand, there's Eileen Shanahan, Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who has to keep pace with her boss, Califano. "I'm not a workaholic," she protests. "I know how to loaf." Her job heading the Department's public-affairs division doesn't leave her much time for loafing, however. She spends 12 hours at the office at least three days a week, 14 hours the other two and about seven hours on Saturday. "Shanahan's law," she quips, "is that you can put in 13 hours a day six days a week, but seven days will kill you."

As far as work is concerned, Califano is a law unto himself. Regarded as Washington's foremost workaholic, he usually arrives at the office at 7:30 A.M. and doesn't leave until at least 7:30 P.M. He puts in a shorter day on Saturday — from 8 until 6. Califano's top aides must leave word as to where they can be reached at any hour of the day or night "even if we're just going to the grocery store," one aide said. Califano rarely goes to the office on Sunday (he does paper work at home) and tries not to disturb his aides then, either. "Otherwise, he'll call at any time," they report.

The Secretary is so involved in his work that he usually is late to social engagements and once showed up an hour late for a White House dinner. But he does manage to get some relaxation — tennis at least twice a week and softball when a game comes up. When he heard that HEW staffers had played Congressional aides, he was miffed that he hadn't been included. "Let me know next time, and I'll pitch," he volunteered. Although Califano is regarded by his underlings as a demanding boss who "creates incredible pressure," he rarely raises his voice and "is good about saying thank you."

Thanks can be hard to come by at the White House where President Carter expects aides to work as hard as he does. As a result, morale there can deteriorate. Press Secretary Powell went to considerable trouble earlier this year to deny a New York Times report that staffers were unhappy about the long hours and the failure of the President to praise them for jobs well done. Ironically, lack of recognition is something Carter observed about his mentor, Adm. Hyman Rickover. "We feared and respected him and strove to please him," he wrote of the days when Rickover was his commanding officer in the Navy. "I do not in that period remember his ever saying a complimentary word to me."

But working in the White House always has meant long hours. Barbara Hackman Franklin, now a member of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, remembers what it was like during the Nixon Administration, when she headed the White House talent search for women. "It was flat-out, nonstop work from 7:30 A.M. until 10 P.M. or midnight." And she recalls the uncanny ability of the White House telephone operators to locate staffers anytime, anywhere. "I was having dinner in a quiet corner of a Washington restaurant. No one knew where I was, but all of a sudden the headwaiter called me to the telephone. It was the White House switchboard with a message for me to call my husband." That puzzled Mrs. Franklin, who wasn't married at the time, until she learned that there was another Barbara Franklin at the White House. She still can't figure out how the switchboard found her.

Bunny Mitchell, the President's adviser on minority issues, says her 8-to-8 schedule doesn't leave her much time for ordinary chores such as going to the bank, doing the laundry and shopping. Like most top White House aides, her day begins at an 8 o'clock staff meeting.

Most of Carter's advisers arrive at the White House at about 7:30, though for some the workday starts even earlier. Stuart Eizenstat may work for an hour or so before leaving home. Quitting time is always uncertain. Hamilton Jordan's wife remembers when "we could have the weekend off, or we could go to the beach. Now I plan for myself and if Hamilton can join me, fine." Jody Powell's wife finds that she can't make social plans, either. "It's hard to accept an invitation, especially to a small dinner party where people are planning on you. That's one of the frustrating parts to me — not being able to plan."

Things aren't much different on Capitol Hill, where Congressmen, Senators and their aides put in long days, sometimes until the early hours of the morning, when Congress is trying to clean up its work and adjourn. Sen. Hayakawa, who usually gets to the office at 9, is a "night person" who once startled his staff by announcing, "Let's get some food and work all night."

Pat Schroeder says she gets at least 15 invitations a day to cocktail parties and receptions but attends only those she considers essential. "The idea that work gets done on the cocktail circuit is one of the biggest myths in this town," she contends. Most of her weekends are spent in her Colorado Congressional district, although, "ideally," she would make the trip west only twice a month. April Evans, the wife of Rep. Billy Lee Evans of Georgia, says her husband usually gets home between 10 and midnight and gets up so early in the morning that he'll often just "wake me up to say goodbye." Sometimes she goes to receptions "so that I'm at least in the same room with him" but adds that "you kind of get to feeling like a widow."

The Washington press corps also puts in a full day, although most reporters don't log the hours top officials do. Sally Quinn, the Washington Post reporter who tried to make the transition to network television a few years ago, says that so few of her colleagues ever get a chance to watch the news that they couldn't figure out what she was going to do for CBS. "I didn't fail at anything important," she says of her fellow reporters' view of the fact that she didn't make it as an anchorwoman. Most of official Washington rarely gets home early enough to see the network evening news and usually is en route to work when the news comes on in the morning.

Despite the long hours, the toll they take on family life and the often breakneck pace, few Washington officials would give up their jobs. And few of their families would ask them to. As Nancy Jordan puts it, "I'm sure there's no bigger challenge. You know this may be the most important thing you ever do."

You can't be turned down for this Insurance if you're 50 to 80!

Here is a life insurance policy that can be yours for the asking if you inquire before October 31st. Not only is no physical examination required, but the policy is actually issued to you without a single health question!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS® is an individual life insurance policy that guarantees to accept every man and woman between 50 and 80 who applies during the guaranteed acceptance period—regardless of any other insurance carried.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is underwritten by Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, specialists in serving the specific needs of America's older population. This protection is recommended to their members by two of America's highly respected national nonprofit organizations of the mature: the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

An Important Opportunity for Every Older Person!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a distinctive concept of life insurance, achieved as a result of the years of effort Colonial Penn has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

Our goal was a life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—a policy whose cost would be reasonable and whose benefits would be worthwhile. With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS, the Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company has succeeded.

Here's How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This For You:

During the first two years that your policy is in effect, your coverage is reduced. If you should die during the first policy year, the benefit paid to your beneficiary is $100. If death occurs during the second policy year, your beneficiary receives $250. Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for his insurance dollar—and, at the same time, guarantees acceptance for all applicants.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS also provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year.

The cost? JUST $6.95 A MONTH.

No matter what your age, your sex, or the condition of your health, you pay just $6.95 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your sex and age. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up!

Act Now—You Have Nothing to Lose!

To obtain full information on PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS in time to take advantage of this opportunity to become insured, please mail the coupon before October 31st.

With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS insurance . . .

- Everyone between 50 and 80 can get this life insurance—no one will be refused!
- You receive a policy created for the needs of mature persons!
- There are no health questions!
- There is no physical examination!
- This policy provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year!

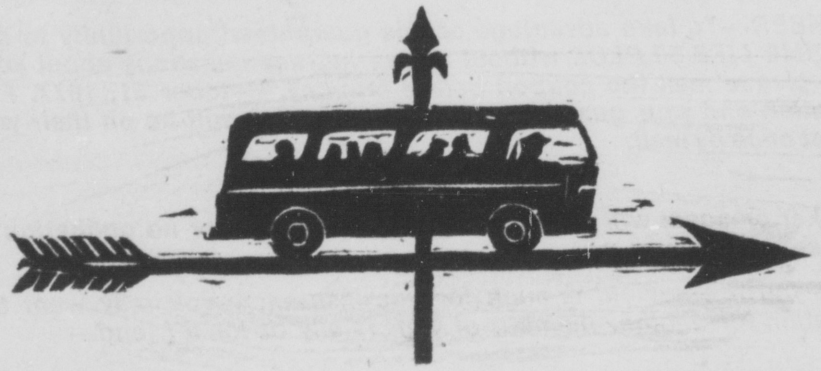
Observations

What this country needs. "A really good five-cent cigar," suggested Thomas Riley Marshall when he was Vice President of the U.S. (1913-20). But times change—and today we think one of the greatest needs is improved public transportation. It saves money and energy, too—as we've been reminding America in ads for seven years now. Even car pooling can help. If the average load per commuter car increased by just one person, it would save 700,000 barrels of oil a day, estimates the Federal Energy Administration, reducing pollution and traffic congestion in the process.



What has 24 legs, four wheels, and a dozen happy grins? A company van carrying 12 commuters to work—one of the most promising ideas in public transportation since energy saving became a national cause. Under the van pool plan, pioneered by St. Paul's 3M company and fast spreading, corporations buy vans to pick up workers in surrounding communities and deliver them back at night. Typically, the employee who volunteers to be a regular driver for a route bills a monthly commutation fee to his riders (about $30 a month in most cases). He or she, in turn, gets to ride free and can use the van weekends. More than 90 companies now use the system, which is proving... well... just vantastic!

Another success story. In Westport, Connecticut, you can have your choice between "Minnybuses" and "Maxytaxys." The cheery red buses, which carry 20 passengers each, take commuters to railroad stations, carry kids to beaches, and ferry shoppers to stores. Averaging more than 80 passenger miles per gallon of diesel fuel, they have lured 25 percent of the town's commuters away from second cars since the program began in 1974. The Maxytaxys, 12-passenger vans, offer door-to-door shared-ride service. Summoned by phone, they carry people anywhere in town for from $1 to $3.25.

NATIONAL GOODS CORPORATION

"The van was the company's idea to save energy. But the seating is his own idea."

It all adds up. New Yorkers, with their integrated public transportation system, use only 47 percent as much energy as the average American for getting around. The 231 miles of subways in Gotham carried more than a billion paying passengers in 1976; the bus lines, 636 million; and commuter railroads, 107 million. Which is pretty moving in itself.

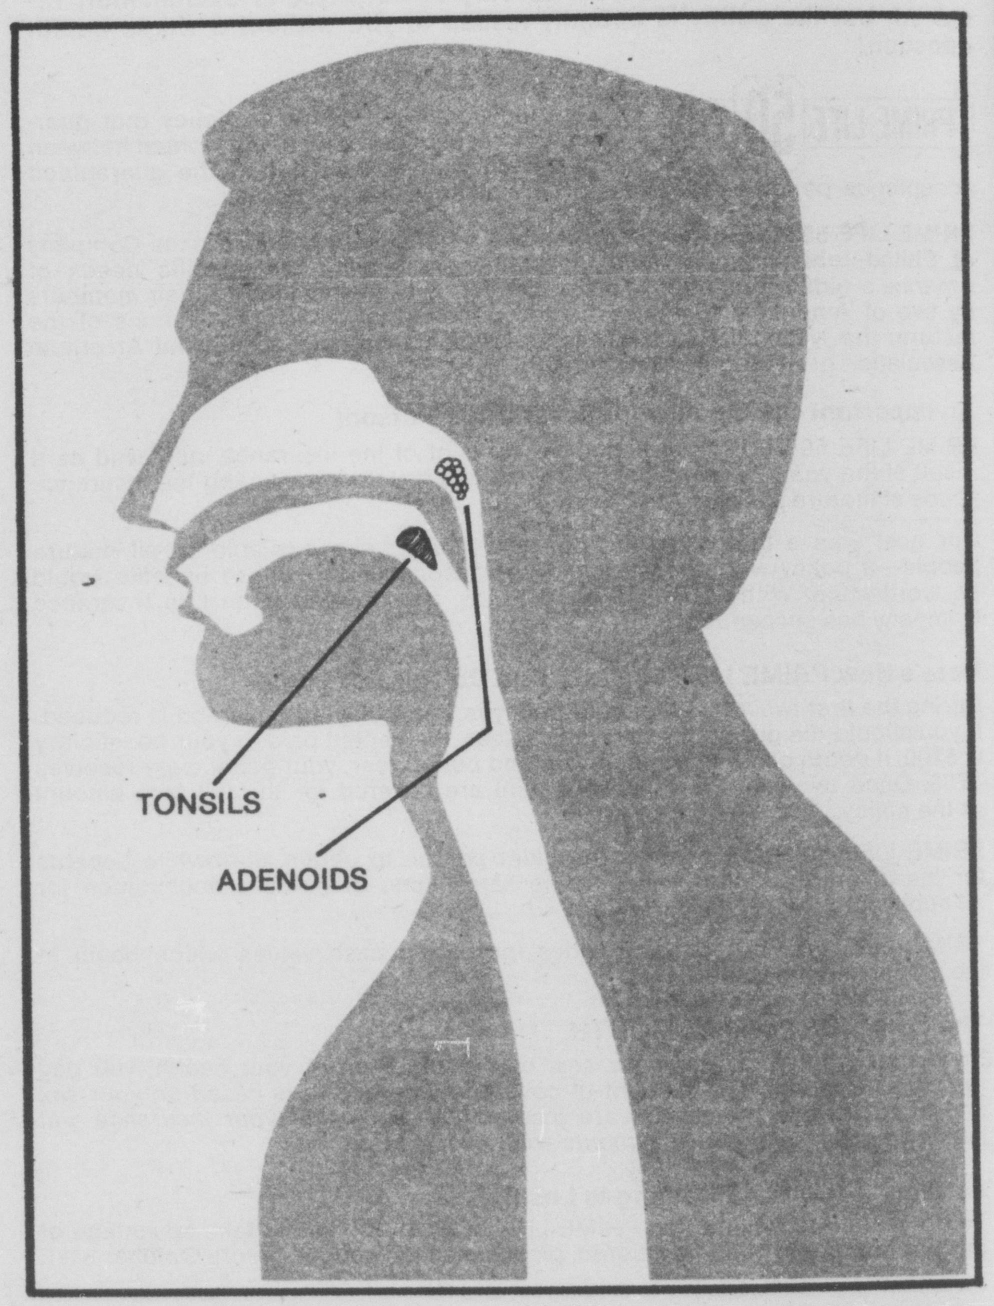
WHEN SHOULD TONSILS AND ADENOIDS BE REMOVED?

Here are some guidelines that will make you better equipped to decide whether your children should have the operation.



By Alvin N. Eden, M.D.

The surgical removal of tonsils and adenoids remains the leading cause of children's admissions to hospitals in the United States. T and A, as it is called, accounted for 666,000 operations in 1975. The whole subject of tonsils and adenoids is complicated and controversial. It all comes down to the crucial decision that must be made in every case: should my child have his tonsils and adenoids removed?

Remember that a T and A, although a simple enough procedure, is an operation that requires general anesthesia. Therefore, it involves a small amount of risk. Studies have shown that about one in 10,000 patients dies every year from complications following the procedure. Clearly, a T and A should never be done unless it is medically indicated. Your child's physician, usually in consultation with an ear, nose and throat (ENT) surgeon, must make this decision.

The location of the tonsils and adenoids allows them to act as a trap and first-line defense against inhaled or ingested bacteria and viruses. The tonsils and adenoids are made up of lymphoid tissue, which manufactures antibodies against invading diseases. Therefore, unless there is an important and specific reason to have the operation, it is better to leave the tonsils and adenoids in place. Nature has put them there for a useful purpose.

A little background will help you to understand this subject better. In the 1930's T's and A's were almost a routine procedure. More than half of the children in the United States had their tonsils and adenoids removed. At this time throat and ear infections could not be successfully treated with medication. So it made sense to surgically remove these potentially dangerous areas of infection.

With the beginning of the antibiotic era in the 1940's, physicians had an effective method of treating bacterial infections of the tonsils and adenoids without subjecting the child to surgery. In addition, a relationship was proven to exist between a T and A and the development of paralytic polio. As a result, there was a dramatic reduction of T's and A's performed each year.

With the development of the Salk and Sabine vaccines, however, polio was pretty much eliminated. Hence, one of the main dangers of the T and A was removed, and, once again, the number of annual T's and A's increased rapidly. In the early 1970's more than one million T's and A's were carried out each year.

When should a child have a T and A? First, here are some reasons not to have the operation.

Frequent colds: Despite what you may have heard, a T and A will not reduce the number of upper-respiratory infections your child will pick up.

An occasional throat or ear infection: This is perfectly normal during the early childhood years and is no reason to subject the child to the operation.

Poor appetite: Another old wives' tale that probably developed because people believe that the tonsils block the throat and prevent the child from swallowing. This is just not true.

Convenience: Because each child's case must be evaluated individually, it is medically unsound, no matter how convenient for the family or for the doctor, to perform T's and A's on several children from the same family at the same time.

Noisy mouth breathing: This is due to large adenoids and, in itself, is no reason for surgery. If given enough time, the adenoids shrink, and breathing becomes less noisy.

To avoid having a T and A as an adult: The operation is not safer and easier for a child than for an adult. Besides, few adults ever require the operation because they are not very susceptible to recurrent throat or ear infections.

So much for the wrong reasons. For some children, a T and A is necessary and beneficial. The following are instances when the procedure may be recommended.

Frequent episodes of tonsillitis: In such cases the tonsils are obviously a focus of infection, and the child is better off without them.

Chronic middle-ear infection with accompanying hearing loss: This is probably related to large and infected adenoids. If the adenoids obstruct the eustachian (auditory) tube, which connects the middle ear with the throat, they can interfere with hearing and eventually may cause permanent hearing loss.

Severe difficulty in breathing or distorted or slurred speech: This can be caused by enlarged adenoids that obstruct the nasal passages. The tonsils on occasion may be so large and swollen as to interfere with swallowing or breathing.

Parents never should try to pressure their physician into scheduling a T and A. If your doctor does recommend the operation, it should be done by a qualified surgeon, preferably an ENT surgeon. Further, the surgery always should be performed with the help of a qualified anesthesiologist in a facility equipped to handle any complication that might arise during or after surgery.

Unless your doctor believes there are specific and real indications for the operation, leave your child's tonsils and adenoids where nature put them. Although the topic of T's and A's is complicated and controversial, parents who are armed with sufficient information about the procedure will find it much less confusing.

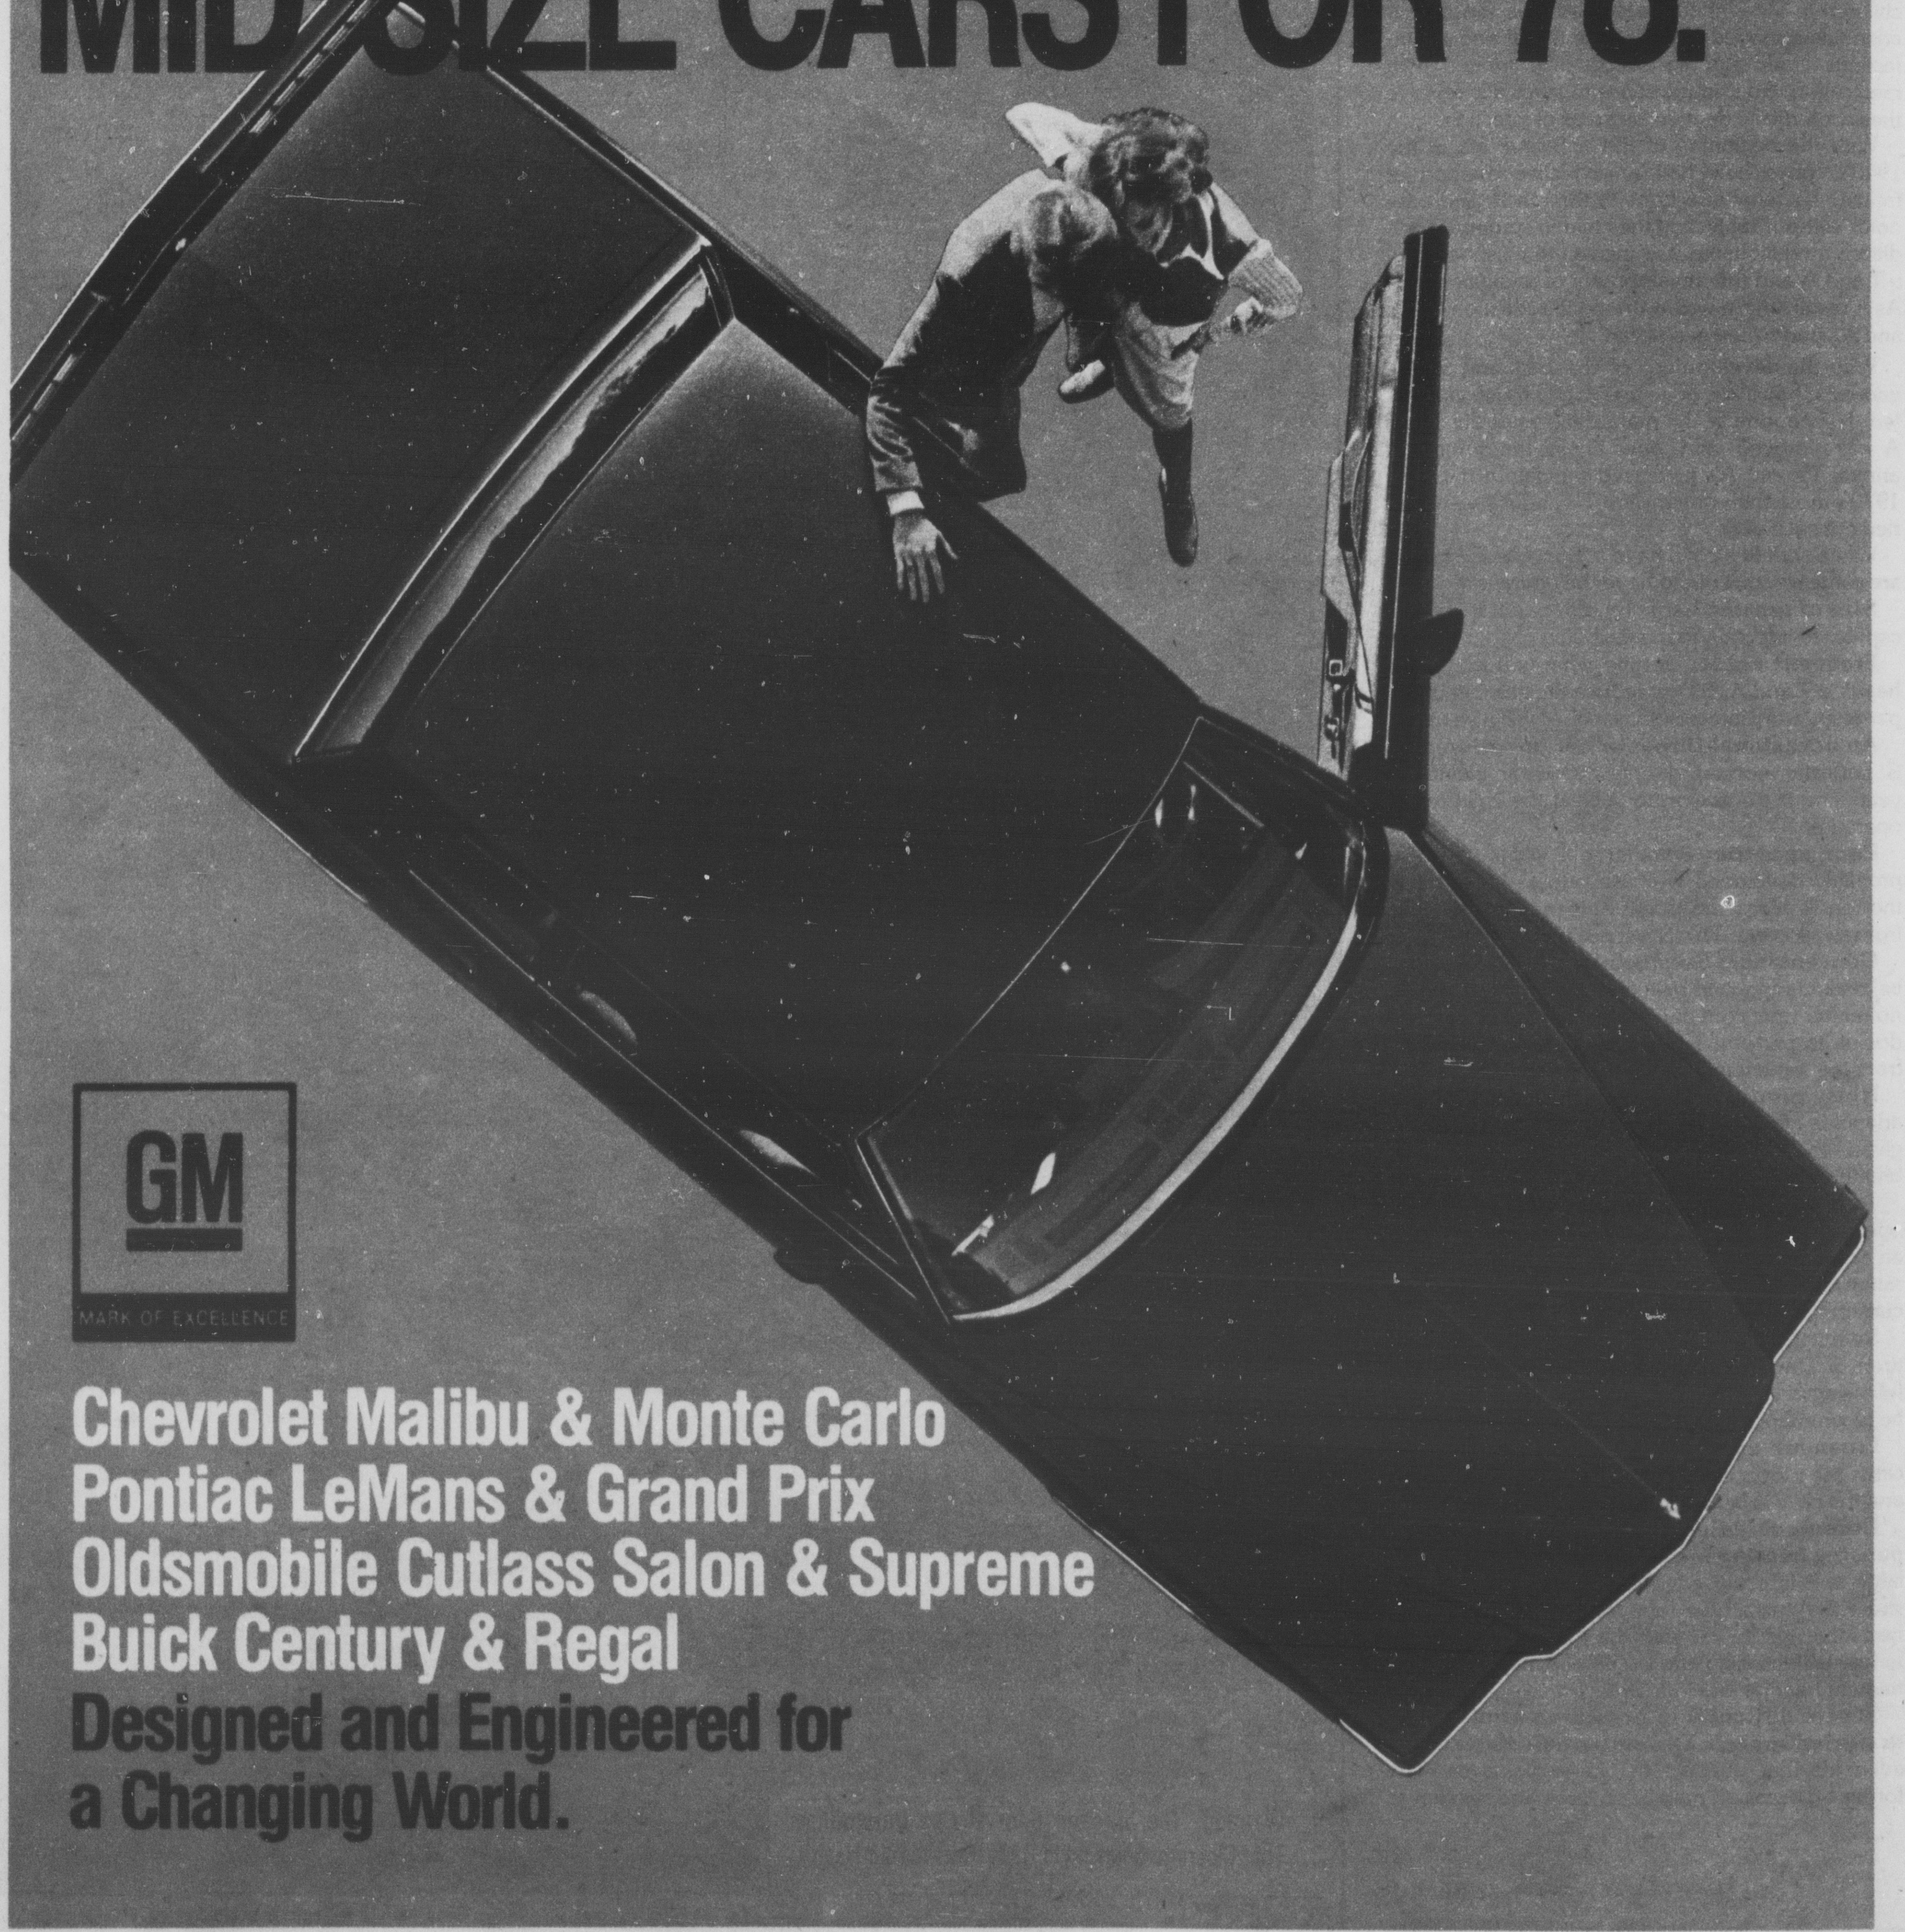
A PREVIEW LOOK AT GM's MID-SIZE CARS FOR '78.



Chevrolet Malibu & Monte Carlo
Pontiac LeMans & Grand Prix
Oldsmobile Cutlass Salon & Supreme
Buick Century & Regal

Designed and Engineered for a Changing World.

The Second Wave.

In the wake of our tremendously successful 1977 full-size cars, these new mid-size models are the most scientifically designed production cars in GM history. Yet they're as handsome as they are functional.

Last year, General Motors introduced its new, trimmer full-size cars. As you probably know, it was one of our most successful new-car announcements ever.

For 1978, GM is proud to present its newest family of new cars.

They, too, are fuel efficient and utilize space better.

They are also the product of more computerized engineering than any group of cars in GM history. More modular construction. And extensive corrosion-resisting treatments.

The result is a new generation of traditionally popular GM cars that are spacious. Secure. More maneuverable in city traffic compared to last year. And, with their trim new looks, in tune with the times.

Strong cars, tested and retested.
Strength and security are integral elements of these new cars.

These qualities were "designed in" through traditional engineering and testing techniques—including hundreds of thousands of miles of GM Proving Ground evaluations—and through more computer technology than on any group of cars we've ever developed.

In addition, the body designs underwent hours of testing in the wind tunnel.

The finished products are solid, finely honed automobiles that are exciting to look at and emphatically in the GM tradition of sound engineering combined with high style.

Good gas mileage, too.
From the day these new cars first went on the drawing board, gas mileage was a prime consideration. And even with the additional emission controls on California cars, we think you can't help but be impressed with the ratings given by the EPA.

For example, our new mid-size cars received EPA estimates of 16 MPG City, 23 MPG Highway and 18 MPG Combined City/Highway when equipped with GM's available 231 cu. in. 2-bbl. V-6 engine and automatic transmission.

Please remember, however, that the actual mileage you get will vary according to the kind of driving you do, your driving habits, and your car's condition and available equipment.

Some GM-built engines are produced by divisions other than the division producing the car you may be interested in.

We suggest you consult your Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile or Buick dealer for complete details on engine sources, availabilities and 1978 EPA gas mileage ratings. And while you're at the dealership, ask to drive our exciting new mid-size cars . . . designed and engineered for a changing world.

The Inside Story...
Chevrolet Malibu and Monte Carlo,
Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix, Oldsmobile Cutlass Salon and Supreme, and Buick Century and Regal.

Once you get inside the dramatically redesigned exteriors of these new cars, the first thing to strike you is a feeling of comfort and interior spaciousness. Plus what we think are some of the most luxurious options ever offered on this class of car.

People who previewed our new top-of-the-line models were impressed with the level and variety of interior trim available on these new cars. The broad selection of soft vinyls and fine fabrics, including crushed velour. The handsome new instrument panels. And the cut-pile, wall-to-wall carpeting.

Trim on the outside. Roomy on the inside.

It is hard to believe just how roomy these new cars are without getting into them.

Compared to last year, both sedans and coupes offer more headroom and legroom, front and rear.

There's more front and rear "chair" height.

More room in the rear for knees.

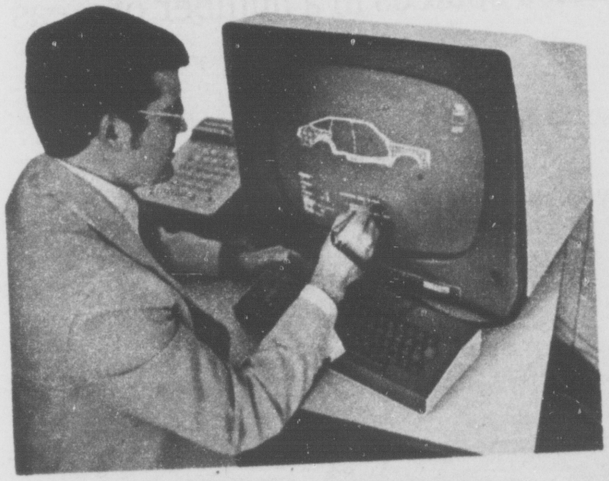
Where did all the room come from?



Well, our engineers call it "better utilization of interior space." Slimming the seats, but not the comfort level. Lowering the floor. Thinning the doors and recessing armrests.

These cars were designed for people by people. Men and women who know what comfort means.

You might think this year's trimmer models would skimp on trunk space. Not so. For 1978, you get more usable trunk space than last year for such things as luggage, golf clubs and picnic baskets.

It's mounted on a special lightweight wheel and, since it has much less bulk, you get more trunk space. And since it's significantly lighter and stores vertically, it's easier to get out of the trunk and install, should you have a flat.

The Greenhouse: Your window on the world.

The window portion of an automobile has long been called the greenhouse, but never has the word been more appropriate.

These new cars provide impressive visibility, offering a great view of the outside world for you and your passengers.

These cars incorporate extensive corrosion-resisting treatments, including:

Specialty steels, where the metal is rolled and then dipped in molten zinc to help form a rust-inhibiting bond.

Water-repellent wax coatings that are power-sprayed on such areas as quarter panels and deck lids.

And electrogalvanized or Zincrometal® outer door panels and rear quarter panels.

All this is in addition to the extensive use of highly specialized corrosion-fighting materials like galvanized steel, zinc-rich primers, moisture-repelling sealants and, of course, Body by Fisher's tough acrylic finishes.

Combined, they represent important advances to help these GM cars retain their good looks.

Building a quiet car.

There are four ways General Motors went about making these cars quiet inside.

First, they were designed with a full-frame construction to help provide a solid foundation. There are also 14 specially tuned rubber mounts to help isolate the body from the road and the running gear.

Second, we minimized noise "intrusion" in the passenger compartment with such things as super-soft foam door seals.

Third, we utilized noise-absorbing features like Body by Fisher's one-piece foam-backed carpets and headliners. They're contour-molded and cover like blankets.

And finally, we eliminated noise sources in a number of areas

by using materials that don't squeak, and by beefing up and sealing the structure and trim where needed to help prevent rattles.

The result is a finished product you have to drive to believe.

New features, big and small.

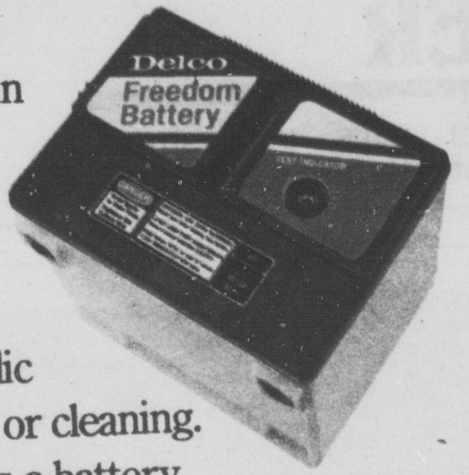
In stop-and-go traffic, a 3-speed blower passes outside air over the front seat to the rear passengers. At higher speeds, a ram-air system helps provide additional air flow.

For 1978, the headlight dimmer switch is integrated into the turn signal. There's a new split tailgate for wagons. There's a batch of optional equipment to choose from, including power rear vent windows on sedans and wagons. And, for the very first time in all of these cars, you get Delco's amazing Freedom® battery.

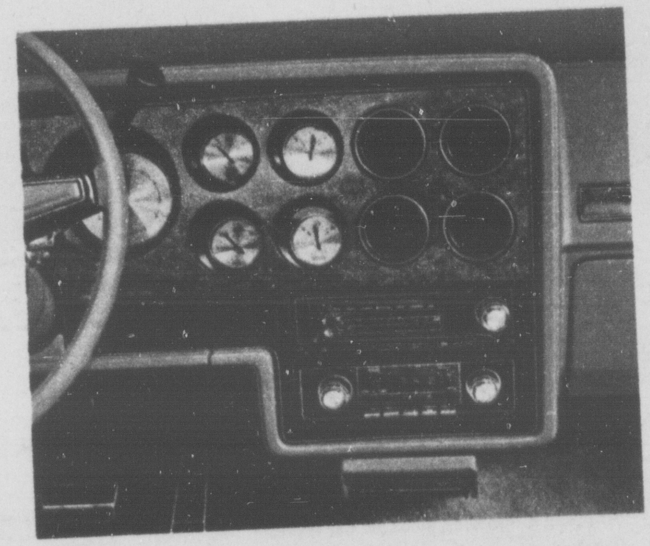


This reliable battery never needs refilling. Holds a charge longer than ordinary batteries. And requires no periodic checking or cleaning.

That's a battery.

Modular construction and serviceability.
We mentioned earlier that these new 1978 cars had a great deal of modular construction. What does that mean? Simply that many components are now constructed as a unit and can be replaced or removed for ease of service.

For example, many heater and air-conditioner components now share a single module. Your serviceman has this central location to go to if servicing is necessary.



In addition, a number of instrument-panel dials and gages are now removable from the front. Think how much effort that can save should you have to change a bulb, for example.

In all, these cars are spacious, quiet, secure, good-looking and built to stay that way.

We're proud of them and think you'd be, too.

A word about components.
Like all GM cars, these new 1978 mid-size models incorporate thousands of components produced by various GM divisions and other suppliers.

In order to meet public demand for particular models or equipment, federally mandated requirements for emissions, safety or fuel economy, or for other reasons, it may be necessary to produce these cars with different components, or differently sourced components, than initially scheduled.

All such components have been approved for use in these cars by General Motors, and will provide the quality performance associated with General Motors products.

Designed and Engineered for a Changing World.

DEALING WITH YOUR CHILD'S ANGER

By Sally Wenkos Olds

According to psychologist John B. Watson, who has been called the "father of modern behaviorism," rage is one of the three emotions with which babies are born. (The other two are love and fear.)

Parents, though, often have great difficulty accepting that children are capable of fury. They consider getting angry an adult privilege and insist that children bottle up their wrath. But present-day psychological thinking maintains it is healthier to acknowledge children's strong emotions than to pretend these emotions do not exist.

"I hate you!" 9-year-old Melanie shouts to her mother after being told she may not go out to play because she did not clean up her room as she had agreed to do. Melanie's mother could have said, "Don't you dare speak to me like that," denying the child's right to get angry. Instead, she said, "I know you're angry because you want to go out. But the rule is that rooms have to be cleaned before people go out to play."

Parents need to control children's behavior so that children do not hurt themselves or others and do not cause undue damage to property. Parents do not need to curb children's emotions. Indeed, they cannot. The anger is there. Suppressing its open admission merely drives it underground to surface in some other — perhaps more damaging — way.

Psychologist Dr. Alice Ginott, in her syndicated column, "Between Us," tells the story of 12-year-old Andy, who hated to lose to his father at backgammon. Usually Father reacted to the boy's anger at losing with a lecture, whose main points were, "It's only a game" and "Everyone loses sometimes." Andy would become even more upset, and what should have been an enjoyable activity left both father and son unhappy.

One night Father tried a new approach. "It must be tough to come so close to winning and then lose," he told Andy. "What a rotten break." Andy calmed down at this acknowledgment of his disappointment and frustration.

"When a child is upset, he's not receptive to reason," says Dr. Ginott. "What he needs are words that will diminish the anguish and help him save face. Andy's Dad provided such words."

The essential factor in this new approach was the acknowledgment that Andy's feelings are valid. Instead of criticizing the boy for being upset, babyish or a poor sport — none of those approaches would have alleviated his disappointment — Father displayed understanding of his son's feelings. Children appreciate such understanding.

The stormy feelings that parents often think of as negative are just as essential to children's emotional growth as the sunnier ones that are easier to accept. By helping children to face their feelings and to work through the situations that arouse them, parents can help them become more competent in dealing with life.

TECHNIQUES FOR MAKING FABULOUS GIFTS

Owl plaque of foam egg carton.

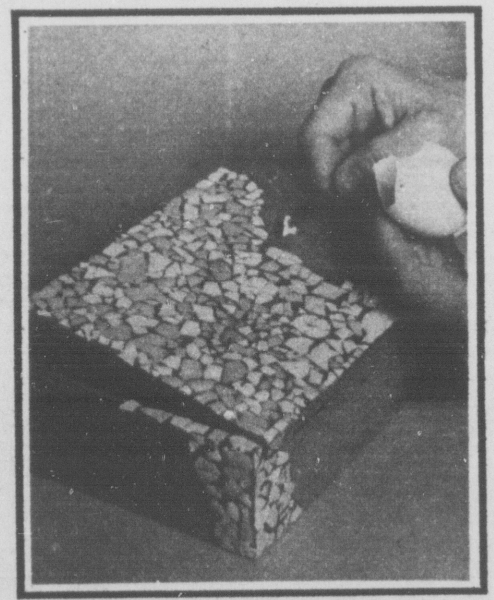
Artificial fruit made into jeweled artifacts.



Mosaic box created with egg shells.

The term "recycling" takes on a glamorous connotation with these handcrafted items that you can make and display with pride.

There's nothing more exciting and gratifying than turning something you would ordinarily throw away into a decorative or useful object. Here are some examples:

Masking tape and shoe polish can work wonders on any surface that would be enhanced by an old-world leather appearance, such as odd-shaped or chipped bowls, lamp bases and scratched table tops.

With a few snips of the scissors and some trimmings, you can create whimsical, decorative items from foam egg cartons — such as a pair of bunnies, an owl plaque or a bouquet of fantasy flowers.

Cracked egg shells can be used to give objects an attractive mosiac or crackle finish. They can be used to turn bottles into vases, for example.

Plastic fruit that once was so popular, as well as wastebaskets, jars and other throw-aways, can be transformed into elegant-looking works of art. All it takes is metallic gold paint, glue, a few "jewels" from the button box and FAMILY WEEKLY's instruction leaflet.

Here's how to order full-size patterns and instructions for crafting with masking tape, egg cartons, egg shells, plastic fruit and other odds and ends. Send $1 for each copy of Fabulous Gifts leaflet #302 to:

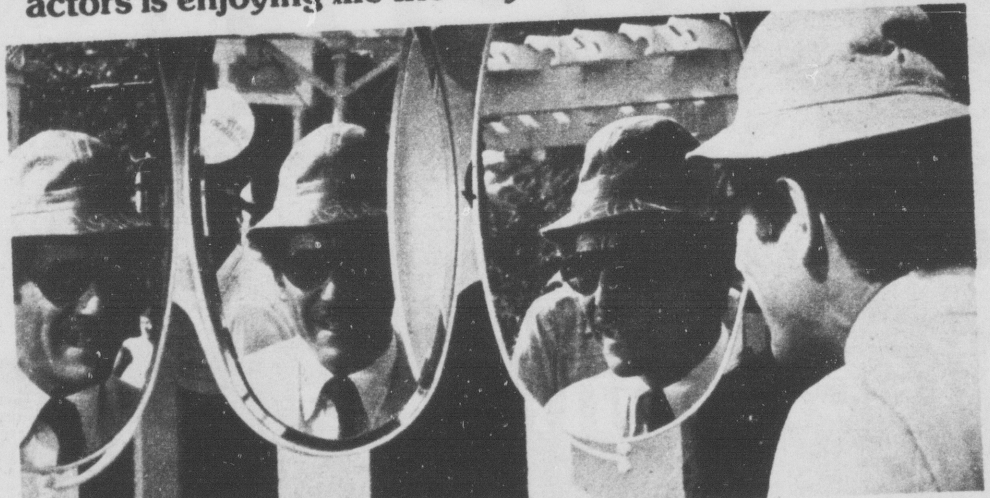
THE SECOND CHILDHOOD OF GEORGE SEGAL

A nervous breakdown nearly destroyed his marriage and his career, but now one of Hollywood's most versatile actors is enjoying life the way he did as a carefree kid.



The road to contentment and relaxation involved some rigorous self-scrutiny.

By Patricia Baum

Once upon a time, in Great Neck, N.Y., there lived a little boy who longed to be a movie star. He so idolized his tough-guy film heroes — especially Alan Ladd, with trenchcoat, .45 automatic, and Veronica Lake — that often he would skip school for the movies.

Today George Segal, 43, has certainly realized his dreams. One of Hollywood's most versatile, busy and sought-after talents, he bounces easily between comic parts, like the gun-toting husband in Fun with Dick and Jane, and dramatic roles, most recently as the inspector in Rollercoaster. A movie actor since the early 60's, Segal won his superstar badge a few years ago with A Touch of Class.

"Yes," Segal himself sums up, nodding his sandy-haired head, "I got everything the 9-year-old kid wanted. But for a long time it didn't add up to contentment."

After graduating from Haverford College, Segal grittily headed toward his goal. He started in an Off- Broadway theater selling orange drink, ushering and cleaning bathrooms. Then came a depressing period of "laying myself open to casting directors, who got their kicks in knocking me down. They fed on my misery."

Segal nabbed a few stage parts before landing a contract with Columbia Pictures. There he survived some early movie misfortunes to play two indelible roles: the wheeling-dealing POW corporal who sells rodents for food to his fellow prisoners in King Rat and the belligerent young professor in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Then director Sidney Lumet, who had seen him clowning on the Tonight show, asked him to display his comic talents in Bye Bye Braverman.

Since then, Segal has leaned toward the frothy roles because "they're the toughest. There's only one way to do them — the way that gets a laugh. And every joke must work or it throws off the whole film and everyone feels cheated." He isn't off-target too often, according to A Touch of Class director Melvin Frank, who hailed Segal as "the best light-comedy actor in the business."

Segal not only won success but got it on his terms as well. Beginning his movie career in the glamor days of Hollywood, Segal hardly projected the romantic image of his pretty-boy contemporaries like Troy Donahue, and studio executives pressured him to change his name (too ethnic), fix his broken nose and dye his hair. But Segal stuck by the name, nose and mane. He also stuck by his wife, Marion, even taking her and their two daughters, Elizabeth, 15, and Polly, 11, to his far-flung movie locations. Being a devoted family man and believing that "temperamental behavior is most undignified," Segal provided scant fodder for the hungry gossip columnists.

Despite his moral fiber and inner strength, Segal experienced a great deal of anxiety. "I could never relax," he says. "I would feel so guilty about the dry spells that even successful actors go through that I would constantly go around meeting with people to churn up business, even though the scripts were landing at my door anyhow. And when I was working, I was so busy worrying about the next project that I couldn't enjoy what I was doing at the time. I hated all that pushy behavior but didn't know how to stop it."

That behavior nearly stopped him. At about age 40 Segal underwent what he bluntly terms "a nervous breakdown or male menopause. Suddenly my whole life seemed irrelevant. My head was a nest of snakes, and I felt like firecrackers going off on the Fourth of July. I had absolutely no control over myself." His tensions exploded into highly erratic behavior. At one point, he was so miffed that Columbia had no posters up at the studio of his new film, The Blackbird, that he stormed into the president's office and kicked over plants.

Worse still, the crisis spilled over into his personal life, threatening to destroy his marriage. "I was impossible to live with," he remembers. "I would come home in a sweat and constantly lose my temper."

Thanks to his tolerant family, supportive friends and long spells of listening to music, Segal pulled through. And now, far from being a frenetic workaholic, he finds film-making "a total love-fest. I fall a little bit in love with all the people I work with. We help each other and have a ball."

Segal feels closer than ever to his goal of becoming "a relaxed participant — sitting with my legs up but my antenna tuned in." He claims he's well within reach of overcoming the few remaining obstacles to his inner peace. Meanwhile, he says grinning, "I haven't felt so good since I was a little kid playing cops and robbers."

"Vantage is changing a lot of my feelings about smoking."

"I like to smoke, and what I like is a cigarette that isn't timid on taste. But I'm not living in some ivory tower. I hear the things being said against high-tar smoking as well as the next guy.

"And so I started looking. For a low-tar smoke that had some honest-to-goodness cigarette taste.

"It wasn't easy. The low-tar cigarettes I tried tasted like chalk. And high-tar cigarettes were starting to taste rougher as I went along.

"Then I tried a pack of Vantage. It was smooth yet it had taste. And a lot less tar than what I'd been smoking.

"As far as I'm concerned, when I switched to Vantage, I changed to a cigarette I could enjoy."

SERIALLY NUMBERED AND COMES WITH CERTIFICATE

Now available — EXCLUSIVELY by mail — the second in our 1977 series of beautiful genuine porcelain bells to be issued by American Treasury! It's the fourth masterwork in Copenhagen Blue Bells honoring Currier & Ives.

The entire lifelike surface of this lovely bell depicts the Currier & Ives original of "The Old Homestead in Winter". Each limited edition bell is trimmed in 22 karat gold . . . and bears the American Treasury Hallmark number on its inner surface! The handle has a 22 karat "gold band", our exclusive design. Each issue in this rare series will illustrate a different Currier & Ives classic! This valuable limited edition "collector's choice" bell is 5½ inches high, can be displayed to beautify your home on table, glass case, etagere, or bookshelf.

Buy-back Guarantee for 5 years!

You know your Limited Edition Currier & Ives Bell can't go down in value, for we put in writing that we will buy it back anytime within the next 5 years (except postage, insurance and handling), and you will receive a certificate guaranteeing this with your bell!

A truly limited edition. Act now!

Hurry — your order must be received by October 31, 1977. All orders received after that date will be returned, since only enough bells to satisfy the orders received before the cut-off date will be manufactured.

Your order qualifies you to collect other bells in the series as they are offered. Your order is for this bell only — you will not receive any others unless you specifically order them. There is a good reason for this — Your bell is not finished, hallmarked, and numbered until your order and payment are received. It is literally made to order for you!

Hurry . . . order yours right now for the unheard-of price of $9.95 plus $1 postage, insurance, and handling.

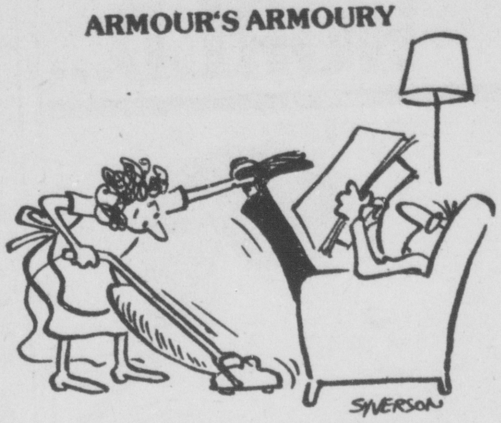
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



SWEEPING STATEMENT

She swept me off my feet, I say
Of one who is my wife today.
She swept me off my feet with smiles
And words and other winsome wiles.

But that was many years ago,
And things are not the same, you know.
Though still upon my feet a bit,
More often I'm inclined to sit.

So now my wife, who's still a wonder,
Says "Lift your feet" when she sweeps under.

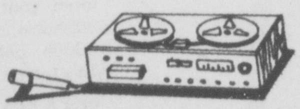
WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Abandoned Money

Considering how hard most people work for their money, it's amazing how much of it they abandon. An estimated $15 billion is lying unclaimed in banks and businesses throughout the country. These assets include dormant savings accounts, unclaimed insurance proceeds, unused gift certificates and uncashed dividend checks. "Most states have laws that make the state the custodian of money unclaimed by owners, but few have been very aggressive about going after these moneys," says Albert L. Beerman, a partner in the nationwide accounting firm of Alexander Grant & Co. To help remedy the situation, Beerman's firm is assisting more than a dozen states in tracking down the owners of these assets. When the owners can't be located, the states, as custodians, have the right to use the funds — a bonanza that amounted to $128 million last year in New York State. Beerman says a program to track down abandoned assets is a good investment — a well-designed search program can bring a 50-to-one return for each dollar invested by the states.

Books For The Blind



More than 52,000 students haven't let blindness or other handicaps stand between them and their educations; they've used taped textbooks from Recording for the Blind. Now in its 26th year, RFB is a national, nonprofit service which supplies free, recorded educational material anywhere in the country to the blind and those with other disabilities, such as MS or cerebral palsy. The RFB Master Tape Library currently contains more than 37,000 recorded texts and is being increased daily with the help of 4,000 trained volunteers across the country. Texts range from elementary to postgraduate level, and if RFB doesn't have a book, it will record it on request. RFB's Jan Sneed says that RFB needs more volunteers, particularly those qualified to read specialized college and graduate-level texts in engineering, electronics, computer science, medical sciences, business administration and statistics. If you're interested in volunteering, write: Jan Sneed, Recording for the Blind Inc., 215 E. 58th St., New York, N.Y. 10022. For further information about available recordings, write Mrs. Maureen Croon-Johnson at the same address.

Dumber By The Dozen?

It ain't necessarily so says a Brigham Young Univ. researcher to the "larger the family, the dumber the kids" theory popular in recent years. After studying the American College Testing (ACT) scores of 15,000 students at the Provo, Utah, university, Dr. Richard Galbraith, an asst. prof. of child development and family relations, says that academic achievement is unrelated to family size. Galbraith also takes issue with the notion that increasing the spacing between the births of children is beneficial to their intelligence level — if anything, Galbraith found a slight increase in performance with closer spacing. "The only factors that appear to influence the child's academic development," says Galbraith, "are their parents' level of academic achievement and the amount of stimulation in the home environment."

Mind Your Manners

"Manners can take you places that money won't," says Marjabelle Young Stewart, author of several books on etiquette who has taught the social graces to Presidents' children and Congressional wives. Her first pupil was her own daughter, Jacqueline, whom she prepared to attend embassy functions when the family lived in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Stewart's center of operations is now a Victorian house in Kewanee, Ill., but she still teaches youngsters to deal with situations ranging from tackling an artichoke to meeting royalty. Mrs. Stewart believes etiquette is needed now more than ever. "Some of the biggest readers of my boys' etiquette book are college students who sneak-read it as if it were Playboy. They're ready to learn manners when it becomes personally important with things like job interviews." Etiquette in Mrs. Stewart's book is more than party manners. Children learn to put away their clothes, take phone messages and behave in a locker room. But there are still doubting Thomases like the friend of her 9-year-old son, Billy, who remarked, "I can't believe people come to your house from all over just to learn how to cut meat."

Brushing Up On Tooth Care

Everyone knows how important it is to brush his teeth, but how many people know what kind of brush to use and how? Very few, according to a recent survey by the American Dental Association (ADA), which reported that almost 85% of those questioned had never been advised on brush selection by their dentists. Here are some tips from the ADA to give you a quick brushup.

- Use a soft bristle brush. It's most effective in removing plaque at the gumline and won't damage sensitive gum tissue. The brush should be small enough to reach every tooth and have a straight handle.
- Replace toothbrushes often. As soon as your brush shows signs of wear, get a new one. Brushes need to be replaced about four times a year, more often for children who tend to chew on the bristles.
- The most effective brushing method is the "back and forth scrub," which uses short back and forth strokes. Ask your dentist to demonstrate.
- Once a day is enough for adults who are no longer cavity-prone, but all others, particularly children, should brush after every meal. And, finally, don't forget flossing and regular checkups.

Jog Lag

Overexertion isn't the only kind of fatigue you have to worry about when exercising. Many a good jogging or other exercise program has been abandoned because of mental fatigue, the boredom that comes from letting exercise sessions settle into a predictable routine. "Most people have many false starts because they let exercising become tedious," says Benno Isaacs of the Health Insurance Institute. Isaacs says the best way to avoid boredom is to get a friend or family member to exercise with you. It also helps to change the scene — if you exercise at home, work out in different rooms; if outside, change the locale. Alternating your exercise program from day to day can help, but you should always start with the easiest ones. And too much of a good thing can be bad — overtiring yourself will only dampen your enthusiasm.

Quick Takes

The Eye Research Institute of Retina Foundation reports an eye-opening statistic: up to half of American women develop eye irritation and inflammation because of improper eye hygiene and use of eye cosmetics....There's nothing unusual about the scouts in Florida's Boy Scout Troop 66 and Girl Scout Troup 746 — at least when they're at their meetings. But when meetings are over and the scouts doff their uniforms, they don't put on anything else. The two scout troops, you see, meet at a nudist camp ....American Family Physician magazine reports that men and women tend to respond differently to stress. Men are likely to deal with stress by either thinking the problem over or trying to forget it through sex, drinking or smoking. Women use other coping mechanisms, such as eating sweets and consuming soft drinks.

The High Life

Being high can be good for your health, at least when the high comes from living at 7,000 feet. After studying the mortality rate from heart disease of a group of New Mexico residents, Dr. Edward A. Mortimer Jr. says that men living high in the mountains are less likely to die from heart attacks than those living closer to sea level. Dr. Mortimer, a professor of community health at Cleveland's Case Western Reserve Univ., says: "We think that you never completely adjust to living at a high altitude where the air is thinner, and therefore whatever you do — walking around, doing chores — is harder physical work to the heart."

Carter accuses big oil, threatens veto

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Accusing big oil companies of trying to add at least $20 billion to the price of natural gas, President Carter threatened on Saturday to veto the energy bill being considered by Congress if it conflicts with the interests of the people.

"I hate to veto a bill that a Democratic Congress passes," Carter declared, "but you can depend on it — I'll protect your interests when the bill comes to my desk."

Speaking to between 3,000 and 4,000 cheering, whistling supporters of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Henry Howell at a rally in Norfolk's Azalea Gardens, Carter endorsed Howell's populist, proconsumer stance and said the candidate is campaigning to "keep the big boys honest."

"We have the same problem in Washington about powerful companies having too much influence," Carter said.

"The gas companies are very powerful in Washington as you well know, and want to deregulate immediately and add a tremendous cost for the American public. ... $20 billion to the price of natural gas already discovered in Alaska alone."

In a Senate test vote Thursday, an effort to scrap an industry-backed natural gas deregulation bill failed by a 52-46 vote. The House already has passed Carter's gas-pricing plan, which would continue controls on gas shipped across state lines while lifting the price ceiling from the current $1.45 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75.

The President said his energy proposals call for an end to regulation of natural gas prices over time and include "enough incentive and encouragement for exploration."

He likened his fight against the petroleum lobby to Howell's battle to abolish automatic fuel adjustment provisions that Howell says allows utilities to unfairly raise electric bills in Virginia.

"I don't want to see an uncontrolled monopoly," Carter said.

The Senate, meanwhile, moved on Saturday toward making a natural-gas deregulation proposal less costly to homeowners, but shied away from a new test vote on a rival gas-pricing plan proposed by President Carter.

As a result, the senators remained at an impasse over the natural gas legislation after a rare eight-hour Saturday session.

Carter wants to keep price controls on gas, but Senate deregulation proponents have been trying to substitute their own plan for the administration's bill.

The Senate agreed, 61 to 17, to consider an amendment that would make industries, not homeowners, bear most of the extra cost — if natural gas prices are deregulated.

The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is also one of the chief backers of the deregulation proposal.

Bentsen said he made the move in an effort to win support from those who claim deregulation would be too costly to consumers.

Under the proposed modification, utilities and other industries that use natural gas as a boiler fuel would pay higher prices for their gas under deregulation than those who use it for home heating.

Truck crashes, sets buildings ablaze; 6 die

BEATTYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Brake failure sent a gasoline tank truck careening down a hill onto Beattyville's main street Saturday, spilling gasoline and exploding into sheets of flame that demolished businesses and killed at least six persons.

Officers said one other person was missing and presumed dead.

The truck left a swath of fire and rubble. Parking meters were partially melted and parked cars exploded as flames spread from the truck's 8,200 gallon cargo of gasoline.

Workers with emergency lights continued a search of the rubble of buildings on the town square for more bodies as hundreds of townspeople looked on. Officials said the search would continue through the night.

$60,000 damage in Pomona blaze

Units from the Pomona and Chino Fire Departments responded to a 10 p.m. fire Saturday night at Brockway Glass Co., 1331 E. Philadelphia Ave., Pomona.

The fire started in a pile of wood shipping pallets near the plant and according to one spokesman sent flames shooting 50 feet into the air.

Fire officials estimated the loss at $60,000.

PROTEST LAYOFFS

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, addresses a group of demonstrators on the steps of the Capitol in Washington Saturday. The crowd was part of a group protesting the planned layoff of some 5,000 workers by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co.

Hit-and-run suspect in death of 2 jailed

Three persons were killed and four motorcyclists seriously injured in five traffic accidents in the West End Saturday.

Among the dead are a couple struck down by ahit and run driver — later captured — as they were crossing Holt Boulevard in Montclair about 12:37 a.m. and an unidentified man whose car struck a freeway ramp support near the Devore interchange about 10 a.m. as he was headed west on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Kathy Woods, 20, and Daniel Charles Corbin, 36, were struck by a hit and run driver as they attempted to cross Holt in the 5000 block in Montclair. Miss Woods was pronounced dead at the scene and Corbin later died at Montclair Doctors Hospital.

The accident resulted in an alert for the driver throughout the West End and east end of Los Angeles County with officers eventually arresting Wilbur Danny Parsons, 31, of Montclair.

The two victims were struck in the west bound lanes of the street by a car traveling at about 45 miles per hour. About 1:09 a.m., Claremont officer R. L. Brown began chasing a vehicle matching the description of the suspect car. The pursuit down Indian Hill Boulevard eventually came to an end at the intersection of Lehigh and Kingsley Avenues in Montclair where Parson's car struck a curb and blew a tire.

Parsons was booked at the West

County fair attracting big crowds

The people just keep on coming.

Los Angeles County Fair officials report that fair attendance is still running well ahead of last year, and that Saturday was the biggest day yet.

About 120,500 persons had made it through the turnstiles by 6 p.m. Saturday, and officials estimated 145,000 would attend by the time the fair closed that day. Last year's attendance for the same day — the second Saturday of the fair — was 117,995.

Total attendance through Friday was 476,672, about 51,000 more persons that last year.

Traffic was especially heavy Saturday on various roads leading into the Pomona fairgrounds, including White Avenue. More of the same is expected today.

Some minor traffic accidents were reported in the fairgrounds area Saturday.

A special event at the fair today will be the milk drinking contest at 3 p.m. in Judging Ring No. 2. There will also be milking demonstrations in the dairy barns at noon, 2, 4 and 6 p.m.

The free grandstand show today features "Up With People." Show times are at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

A special Indian show featuring Iron Eyes Cody can be seen from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Indian Fair building. There will be a horse show in the carnation ring at 9 a.m., sponsored by the Valley Quarter Horse Association.

Continuous events during the day will be held at the Mexican Village, Plaza of the States area, Home Arts and Junior Fair Building.

Line forms for first Skytrain flight

NEW YORK (AP) — About eight persons queued up in the rain Saturday for a day-and-ahalf wait to buy tickets for the first Skytrain jetliner flight from New York to London.

Tickets weren't scheduled to go on sale at the Queens office of Laker Airways until 4 a.m. Monday, but the would-be passengers held their soggy ground, using umbrellas and cardboard boxes or ducking into a nearby garage or neighborhood diner for shelter.

John Stein, 17, hitchhiked from Denver to New York and grabbed a spot in line to purchase a ticket for a visit to a cousin in London.

Vicky Meyer, 13, said she was waiting to get tickets for herself and her mother, Priscilla Meyer. Mrs. Meyer, who had stepped away from the line "to pick up a couple of sleeping bags," was to cover the flight for the Wall Street Journal, her daughter said.

Mother and daughter planned to spend the night on the wet sidewalk in plastic-swathed sleeping bags.

The first Skytrain flight, organized by self-made British aviation tycoon Freddie Laker, is to arrive in New York from London on Monday evening. The first New York-to-London trip is scheduled to depart Kennedy airport at 11 p.m. that night.

Tickets for the New York-London journey cost $135 for one-way fare. The fare in the other direction is $103.25.

A self-made aviation tycoon who once swept floors and made the tea in an aircraft factory, Laker fought with the big airlines, aviation authorities and the British government to launch a "no-frills," no-reservation service to New York on his Laker Airways.

Israelis holding 25 black American 'settlers'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli authorities said Saturday they were holding and planned to expel 25 black Americans who the Israelis claim are members of a "black Hebrew" sect who intended to settle illegally in the Jewish state.

The group — three men, six women and 16 children — denied the claim and said they are Presbyterians who came to Israel as tourists to visit Christian holy places, the U.S. Embassy here reported.

They were being held in a police lockup near Ben-Gurion Airport after they tore up their U.S. passports and return-flight tickets, U.S. and Israeli officials said.

Black Hebrews are members of a messianic sect of about 250 American blacks, mostly from Chicago and Detroit, who live in the southern Israeli town of Dimona in the Negev desert. They claim to be descended from the original Hebrew people and want the right to live in Israel.

Israeli law allows all Jews to immigrate to Israel, but does not recognize the "black Hebrews" as Jews.

The U.S. Embassy said the 25 Americans were part of a tour group which flew here from New York on Wednesday. U.S officials said the blacks are from several parts of the United States, and several of them say they are Presbyterian ministers or representatives of the Civic League of the Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

In New York, the Rev. R.M. Kinlock, chairman of the Commission against Racism of the Council of Churches in the City of New York, sent a mailgram to President Carter Saturday protesting the incident. A copy of the mailgram was received by The Associated Press in New York.

"A most outrageous situation has taken place at the Tel Aviv, Israel, airport where 25 black U.S. citizens who as tourists are being held at gunpoint against their will and are prevented from entering or leaving the country," the letter said.

"The Commission against Racism feels that with our large Jewish and black population in New York City this act constitutes an explosive situation that needs your immediate attention ... (We) appeal to you to use your offices in behalf of these U.S. citizens."

Blueprint for urban reform: relocate jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a powerful House committee unveiled a blueprint for urban reform Saturday that calls for federal "relocation aid" for jobless Americans who want to move from depressed cities to areas where work is available.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., also called for creating a computerized national job bank and changing the government's current system of dispensing federal aid.

Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs, said a national urban policy could create "born again" cities to replace the dilapidated downtowns and time-worn neighborhoods that scar urban America.

He released his 60-page program at a critical time as a White House task force was putting together the pieces of President Carter's urban strategy.

Reuss presented his program as a blueprint, not in legislative form. He is expected to wait to see the administration's own legislative proposals before offering any of his own.

"Only a multifaceted, across-the-board approach" will save the troubled cities, Reuss declared.

The "relocation aid" would allow a family whose breadwinner was unable to find work in his home community to get a cash grant to move.

"The federal government has properly focused a great deal of effort on the relocation of Cuban and Vietnamese refugees," Reuss said. "It could do as much for our own economic refugees."

Reuss's proposal, although not specific, presumably would make it possible for a poor family in a city like Philadelphia or Detroit to move to a thriving Sun Belt city like Houston where there were job openings.

Such a plan is certain to be controversial with big-city officials in the North who would want money spent to build up their sagging economies rather than to transfer their populations elsewhere.

Reuss cited the urgency of conserving energy as a key reason for renewed interest in revitalizing the cities. He predicted that "rejuvenation of our cities could be the great growth industry of the 1980s."

Reuss also noted, "Families are getting smaller and the proportion of working wives increases: so middle-income citizens will increasingly pour back into the central city neighborhoods. The city, I suggest, is ready to be born again."

His proposed national job bank would match openings with the "skills and interests" of available workers.

He said national service jobs, "like Franklin Roosevelt's Civilian Conservation Corps," should be created for those unable to find jobs in the private sector. A scaled-down public service jobs plan is part of the President's welfare reform proposal.

Reuss said too much federal aid now goes "to communities that do not require assistance, particularly wealthy suburbs."

Walter Holloway, 49, Ontario, was listed in critical condition at Montclair Doctors Hospital Saturday night after the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car stopped for a red light at the intersection of Mission Boulevard and Monte Vista Avenue at about 10:20 a.m. Holloway was the only person reported injured.

A 37-year-old Downey man, Michael Edward Hernandez, may have suffered spinal injuries when the customized motorcycle he was riding went out of control on the west bound onramp to the San Bernardino Freeway in Ontario and he tumbled over a 15-foot embankment. Highway Patrolmen reported that Hernandez' wife — riding on the back of the vehicle — was uninjured. Hernandez was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital following the 7:25 p.m. accident and later transferred to UCLA Medical Center.

A Redlends couple was reported in satisfactory condition at Chino General Hospital after the motorcycle they were riding blew its front tire about 6 p.m. near the intersection of Pine Street and Chino Corona Road.

Becky Wieldings, 17, and Martin Van Deilon, 21, both suffered serious compound fractures with Miss Wieldings also suffering a possible skull fracture. Van Deilon suffered a broken elbow and Miss Wieldings a broken ankle.

U.S.-Russ SALT talks to resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union will resume "intense" negotiations for a new strategic arms limitation agreement next week in hopes of overcoming continuing disagreement in four key areas, the State Department said Saturday.

Happy birthday 'Speedy'

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

"Speedy" Jacobs is a busy man.

He's a ranch hand . . . a jogger . . . and a homespun philosopher.

He trains horses, hikes, works in gardens, cleans yards, tells stories, visits friends and flirts with girls all the time.

He's bright, articulate, witty and agile. He's in better physical condition than many men half his age.

Michael "Speedy" Jacobs is celebrating his 106th birthday today.

"I usally like to walk about 10 miles a day," he said, as he lounged comfortably on the porch of a friend's Chino home. "I can go 20 miles a day pretty easily if I have to."

"Speedy" has recently returned to Chino from a Victorville ranch, where for the last four years he worked as a full-time ranch hand in charge of 20 horses.

"I feed them, exercise them, doctor them and do various other things," he said.

If there's nothing to do, "Speedy" looks for something. He jogs every morning. He does yardwork and chores for the sick and elderly. He visits with neighbors and talks for hours.

He started out young and during his long life he has seen a lot and done a lot.

"At seven months I would walk without falling over myself and it was hard for folks to catch me," he said. "From then on I've been known as 'Speedy'."

He tells another story, however, about the girls he's constantly running into during his walks who find him cute, leading speculators to believe, perhaps, there might be another reason for his nickname.

"The girls must be pretty hard up if they have to flirt with a man my age," he laughed mischievously.

"Speedy" is still a bit bewildered by his centenarian celebrity status. He has been the guest on numerous television shows, including the Mike Douglas and George Putnam shows.

"It's not my fault I got old," he said.

"Speedy" was born in Pocono, Pa., Sept. 25, 1871. One of his earliest memories is attending the celebration of 1876 of the nation's 100th birthday in Philadelphia.

"I was very young, but I can remember all of the crowds and parades at night, with everyone carrying torches. It was like a sea of fire. People were just having a regular ball!"

In 1876, according to "Speedy," there were only 35 million people in the U.S. in 35 states. U.S. Grant was the President.

One hundred years later, on July 4, 1977, "Speedy" celebrated the nation's 200th birthday in Victorville. He rode in an old buckboard wagon with a 100-year-old gun and an antique saddle. During his lifetime, the U.S. population has grown to nearly 250 million.

"I've seen lots of people come and go," he said. Asked what it is like to have lived 106 years, "Speedy" said, "I'm lucky. I have my health and I still don't hear no bells in the belfry, like a lot of people."

While visiting in Chino, where he has lived off and on for almost 40 years, "Speedy" has been staying with a good friend and former neighbor, Mrs. Bessie Beebe, who herself is in her 80s, but looks much younger.

"Speedy is lucky to be in such good health," Mrs. Beebe said. "Many senior citizens almost half his age have troubles. He doesn't use a cane or anything. It's remarkable!"

Long life seems to run in the Jacobs family. Five of "Speedy's" brothers and sisters are still alive. Two of them have also surpassed the 100-year mark.

Life was not always easy.

"Speedy" worked on his parents' farm in Pennslyvania as a child. At age 9, he went to work in the coal mines. "I separated the slate from the coal," he said. In those days children were forced to work 12 hours a day, six days a week. The pay was 50 cents a day.

"There weren't any laws against that type of thing when we were growing up," he said. "We were brainwashed into believing you had to work and that it was good for you. You didn't have time to think about sitting around doing nothing."

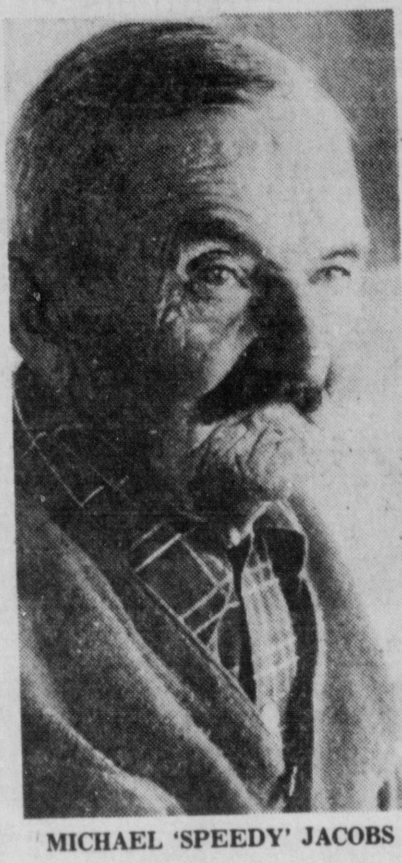
He recalls the trailscouts and mountain men who accompanied the train. "Back in those days, you needed help to find your way around," he said. "Most of the roads were old Indian foot and horse paths.

As the Jacobs family crossed the Great Plains, confrontation between Indians and settlers were still occuring. "We crossed the country right near the close of the Indian Wars," Jacobs said. "We met many friendly Indian tribes during the journey, but none with which there were hostilities.

While in California, the family camped out on a spot which later became the famous mining town of Calico in the desert near Barstow.

"Just think," he said. "We were sitting on a mountain of silver and gold and didn't even know it."

At age 14, "Speedy" returned East. He became a steel worker. Long arduous hours before hot smelting ovens at low wages kept Jacobs busy for several years.



MICHAEL 'SPEEDY' JACOBS

In 1904, he returned to California and went to work as a ranch hand and horse caretaker for Anita Baldwin in Hemet. Mrs. Baldwin was the daughter of California railroad magnate and thoroughbred horse breeder "Lucky" Baldwin.

"Speedy" was charged with caring for Mrs. Baldwin's horses. Later, he said, he took care of horses for Groucho Marx, Barbara Stanwyck, Harry James and Betty Grable.

George Putnam once asked him, he said, to take care of his horses. "Speedy" was 100 years old at the time.

In recent years, he's spent time hiking, caretaking and having fun. He alternates between living and working in Chino and Victorville, where he has been pretty much adopted by a family.

"When I first came here, it was farms and ranches for as far as you could see. It's changed a lot around here," he said.

The changes in U.S. society since the 1800s, however, have not amazed this sensible old man. He thinks man's landing on the moon was a great achievement, but no great surprise.

"Just think, we used to believe the moon was made of green cheese," he laughed. "Now when you realize it's made out of rocks and things — like the desert — it seems pretty funny."

Asked what his secret to staying so young looking was, "Speedy" said he eats natural foods, exercises and doesn't smoke. He says there are other reasons just as important.

Philosophically he explained, "There are no shortcuts to life. Peopeople are sometimes too lazy in life. Either that, or in such a hurry they don't know where they're going or why they're going there.

"I've always taken things as they came. So many people worry about getting somewhere. When you're my age, you realize there's no point in hurrying or worrying about things. There's lots of time.

"My mind is still keen and I don't understand sometimes this 'keeping up with the Jonses' idea. If you try, Mr. Jones will just refinance and be right back ahead of you again."

To Michael "Speedy" Jacobs there is a secret to a long, happy life.

"Hate and jealousy is what eats people up. If you don't have hate in you, you'll be sure to live a long time. I've never met anyone and felt ill feelings towards them. People think they have to top each other. Instead, maybe they should help and care for one another."

Chino admiral reassigned

Rear Adm. Ernest E. Tissot of Chino has been assigned as commander of the Attack Carrier Strike Force for the U.S. Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific Ocean, U.S. Navy officials announced recently.

Tissot, whose mother Mrs. Beulah Tissot resides in Chino, is the former commander of the Fighter Airborne Early Warning Wing of the Pacific Fleet at the Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego.

His new duties will put him in charge of an aircraft-carrier task force with the responsibility of defending U.S. interests in the western Pacific Ocean and keeping shipping lanes in that area of the world open to sea travel.

Tissot will bring a string of impressive credentials to his new post. Since joining the U.S. Navy in 1945, he served as a flyer in both the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. His awards and decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross and numerous other service awards.

He is former commander of the nuclear-powered aircraft-carrier the USS Enterrpise and had served as commander of the Fighter Airborne Early Warning Wing, Pacific Fleet, since June of 1976.

Tissot was promoted to Rear Admiral rank in 1973. He was the third naval aviator in history to make more than one-thousand aircraft carrier landings.

He and his wife, Mildred, have two sons.

Parent Power: new math

Semantic math approach puzzles teachers, frustrates parents

By JOHN DOUGLAS

Introduction of the so-called New Math has confused teachers, frustrated parents trying to help children with homework, and often left children themselves without the arithmetic skills needed to face simple numerical tasks.

Fifth in a series

Part of the problem is semantic — the New Math is not new at all. The "set theory" involved has long been familiar to students in advanced math courses. What is new is the idea of trying to teach elementary and high school students the theoretical basis behind the arithmetic and algebra they were traditionally taught. Rather than just memorizing rules (do you remember how to extract a square root?), the idea was to teach children the logic of mathematics, with specific rules and examples following naturally.

Done well, this New Math approach not only makes sense but also offers a child a whole new world of challenging activity rather than boring drills. However, the line between challenge and frustration is a fine one, and there now seems to be ample evidence that far too many students were mainly frustrated by the New Math. Neither teachers nor parents had been adequately prepared for this major shift of emphasis.

What will happen next is unclear. One school of thought is frankly expressed by David Rappaport, professor emeritus of mathematics education, Northeastern Illinois University. Only about 15 percent of school children "have the ability to learn the mathematics that the new programs have developed," he says. Another 25 percent should learn some theory. But "for the 60 percent who are frustrated by the New Math, a return to the study of basic arithmetic skills is in order."

Other experts strongly disagree. They point out that the New Math has taught students one set of skills while most standardized tests continue to examine them on another. Give the New Math another chance, they say, by combining it with more standard arithmetic and by better preparing teachers to present the material in a meaningful way. They argue that as pocket calculators become more common, the need to perform arithmetic will give way to a need to analyze math problems and relate them to the calculator's capabilities.

The Conference Board of Mathematical Sciences, which represents 12 professional mathematical societies, has taken a provocative stand on the calculator issue, stating that by the eighth grade, all students should be provided a calculator and be allowed to use it in all their math work.

In whatever form it has been taught, mathematics has always suffered a fearful reputation, particularly among girls and minority students.

About the best parents can do to make sure their children are learning essential mathematical skills is to see that they get practice in applying these skills to everyday situations. Many parents are reluctant to discuss finances with their children, but there is no better way to make sure children learn how to handle money responsibly and understand the importance of being able to use mathematics. Youngsters can begin by considering how to spend their own allowances. Older children can be trusted with seeing the family budget and learning how bills are handled. If a high school student ever brags he's "had enough math," just hand him a standard income tax form and let him find out for himself.

New hope for Egypt

Underground reservoir may turn desert green

CAIRO (AP) — A recent geological report about a vast fresh water reservoir beneath the Western Desert has raised hopes the barren area can produce new jobs and more food for Egypt's poor and growing population.

But experts who conducted an 18-month survery say that it may take a generation or more to fully develop the newly discovered resource.

In announcing the survey results recently, the semiofficial Al Ahram newspaper described the subterranean reservoir as the largest in the world and said it "has the capacity of revolutionizing the economics of the Western Desert."

"It is good quality water and part of it could be used right away. The greatest limitation is the ready identification of arable lands," said William Warne, an American water expert who advised Egyptian officials conducting the survey.

Warne, 72, of Sacramento, Calif. told The Associated Press plateaus account for a large part of the Western Desert but that low-lying depressions seemed to hold more prospects for development because they contained better soil and were easier to drain.

Warne, a former director of the California Department of Water Resources and a onetime U.S. assistant secretary of the interior, said a great sheet of water-bearing sandstone stretched from the Mediterranean Sea coast some 500 miles southwards to near the Sudanese border.

He said about 2.5 billion acrefeet of water was contained in the sandstone, and a vast unknown quantity below that. By comparison, the Hoover Dam's reservoir has 30 million acre feet which is used to irrigate one million acres of farmland in the United States and Mexico.

The water beneath the desert has accumulated over several thousand years from rain runoff and the seepage of lakes and rivers as far away as central Africa, Warne said.

Al Ahram claimed the reservoir, which extends 500 miles from east to west, is capable of producing at least 181.2 billion gallons of water per year. That would represent about 5 per cent of the annual flow of the Nile River.

Warne said he has recommended the Egyptians start three or four test plots of about 15,000 acres each. He estimated it would cost $1 million a year to provide a complete pumping and irrigation system for each of the test tracts.

He said the water bubbled to the surface in some areas but ranged between 450 and 1,000 feet deep.

Ahmed N. Barkouki, board chairman of Egypt's General Petroleum Co., which conducted the survey, said in an interview that a demonstration project was planned for the Wadi Natrun area about 50 miles northwest of Cairo. He estimated the cost of lifting the water, cultivating the land and providing housing, utilities and roads for a farming settlement at about $15 million to $20 million.

Barkoui said he hoped the test project at Wadi Natrun would begin sometime in 1978.

The limiting factors, he said, "are the soil and the availability of the infrastructure. This land represents two-thirds of Egypt but there are only one or two roads."

"If the projects are capable of paying their own way, they may be attractive for private investment," Barkouki said.

Barkouki said that about 2,500 years ago, at least some of the vast desert area was used for farming. Barkouki said this was proven by the existence of a temple complex built at Kharga Oasis about 500 B.C.

Land reclamation projects in Egypt are under way in Tahrir Province bordering the Western Desert, between Cairo and the Suez Canal, and around Lake Nasser, the huge reservoir behind the Aswan High Dam.

Fuel-line explosions threaten lives

Southern Californians living atop subterranean timebomb

By CYNTHIA KADONAGA
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of Southern Californians unknowingly live atop a vast, aging and largely unregulated network of fuel pipelines that could become a subterranean timebomb. Ten persons have died in explosions stemming from pipeline leaks during the past 14 months.

"They (pipeline accidents) happen at least once a day in Los Angeles County, if not more," said Larry Kaiser, operator of a firm that notifies construction companies of pipeline locations.

Most accidents are not fatal, but some have been holocausts.

Nine persons were killed and 14 injured last year in suburban Venice when a gasoline pipe exploded after it was ruptured by excavation equipment.

On Labor Day, a man was killed and his brother critically injured when their moving van ignited a cloud of natural gas in New Cuyama, in the northeast corner of Santa Barbara County. The leak, still under investigation, occurred in a 26-year-old Atlantic Richfield Co. pipeline from a gas compression plant along a highway.

And last month, a Vietnamese couple touched off a block-long fire in a Lakewood street when they unwittingly drove through what looked like a mudpuddle. Corrosion apparently had caused a leak, which oozed into the puddle. Their engine ignited it, said a spokesman for the pipe's owner and the resulting explosion injured a woman.

External pipe corrosion, the main cause of failures until 1974, resulted in 41 accidents in California during 1976, the National Transportation Safety Board has reported. Since 1974, when pipe design was improved, the main cause of accidents has been construction work above the pipelines. But many older pipes remain in use.

"Most construction companies excavate by sound," said Lincoln Sanders, an engineer in the Los Angeles Department of Public Utilities and Transportation. "They keep digging until they hear a clang, then figure they've reached the pipe." The pipe's protective coating often is nicked, which causes corrosion, Sanders said, but workers often "bury it back up and don't say a thing."

A county law bans such practices, although it does not require checks for compliance or annual tests for leaks. The Western Gas and Oil Association estimates there are 62 oil fields in Los Angeles County, and their production in 1975 was 93 million barrels. But officials said only one of 81 cities in the county — Los Angeles — requires that oil lines be tested.

Federal regulations, issued in 1969, require oil companies to test pipes before installation and every five years thereafter. When a pipe is exposed, the company must test it.

But federal officials say its difficult to enforce the laws, which require penalties of $1,000 in fines and a five-year jail term.

"We've had a hard time enforcing safety regulations because of that penalty," said Jack Overly, the western regional director of the federal Office of Pipeline Safety Operation in Burlingame. "Can you imagine the president of a oil company going to jail?"

The rules also state that "pipeline right-of-way must be selected to avoid, as far as possible, areas containing private dwellings, industrial builings and places of public assembly."

But Overly said federal officials have not yet identified all the lines the government can regulate. As a result, both new and old pipelines still underlie the urban sprawl.

Federal regulations do not require oil companies to register their interstate pipelines, so "we have to do a lot of digging to find them," Bill Whiteman, an engineer for the Office of Pipeline Safety Operation, said in a telephone interview from his Burlingame office. "We know about some and don't know about others."

In California, Arco, Chevron U.S.A., Inc., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell Oil Co., Texaco, Inc., and Union Oil Co. denied that their lines crossed state boundaries and so were not subject to federal regulation, said Ed Cygan of the federal pipeline safety office in Washington, D.C.

The California Public Utilities Commission is investigating the same five companies for possible state regulation, but the state also has had trouble enforcing pipeline safety regulations because many California oil companies deny that their pipelines are "common carriers" dedicated to public use, said PUC attorney Richard Neuman in San Francisco.

Common carriers originally were defined in a 1920 federal act as any pipeline crossing U.S. government land, Neuman said. But the state Supreme Court ruled in 1960 that such pipelines must be declared public utilities before the PUC may regulate them, he added.

Because the oil companies continue to operate as private businesses, the PUC has been powerless, Neuman said.

"California is the only state in the nation that has been unable to enforce the common carrier laws," he said.

Oil companies such as Mobil and Chevron argue that their pipeline systems are relatively safe, pointing out that accidents involving explosions or fires happen rarely.

The major companies have computers that detect pipeline leaks almost immediately, and can shut down the system in a matter of minutes, Mobil and Chevron spokesmen both said.

H.E. Gillispie of Chevron, whose gasoline line ruptured in Venice last June and caused an explosion that killed or injured 23 persons, says the company has done nothing to upgrade safety precautions along its 500-mile Los Angeles County system because construction workers were responsible for that disaster.

"We were safe before June, 1976, and we're safe now," Gillespie said.

To help eliminate construction-related accidents, Los Angeles County approved an ordinance last February that new pipes carrying hazardous substances such as crude oil, petroleum products and natural gas be buried about a foot deeper, and that excavation be conducted more carefully.

There are no penalties for violations of the county's new ordinance because "there have been no problems with noncompliance," said county road commissioner Irvin Mohar. "Generally, the construction industry has complied."

One reason, Mohar said, is that construction companies must pay $500,000 in liability insurance, plus half the cost of materials and labor for any county project.

However, companies working on projects not belonging to the county must post a maximum bond of only $2,000 to pay for replacing pavement, said assistant road commission Donald Dreher.

Mohar said the county is considering adopting a "one-call" system to help eliminate construction-related pipeline accidents. Under the system, a contractor theoretically may dial one telephone number for information on all pipes in a given area.

Orange County has had a voluntary "one-call" system since last September. Kaiser's privately owned Underground Systems Alert differs from 82 others in 34 states because it is not run by a public utility, Kaiser said.

Because membership is voluntary, some major oil companies — Mobil and Union — do not belong, claiming the system is unnecessary, Kaiser said.

"We tell contractors we'll contact our members, but that they'll have to contact any others who might have pipes in the area," Kaiser said. "Nine times out of ten, they don't know who else is there, and half the time they don't even ask.

"If everyone belonged to our system, then it would be a 100 per cent solution to pipeline accidents. Until everyone joins, contractors will just have to guess about where pipes are located, like they have been."

Kaiser said his firm plans to expand into Los Angeles County soon.

Another weakness in Orange County's system and others nationwide is that exact pipe locations often are unknown to construction workers doing the digging, says John Searcy, an NTSB pipeline investigator in Los Angeles.

"I've seen the one-call system in Orange County, Northern California and Oregon," said Searcy. "While it may minimize the chance of accidents occurring, it's useless unless you get word to the man operating the bulldozer at a construction site.

The NTSB reports the number of hazardous pipeline accidents nationwide has declined from 499 in 1968 to 209 last year. However, the number of reports does not accurately reflect the number of accidents that have occurred because the reports cover only the few oil lines under identifiable federal jurisdiction, officials said.

9 persons killed already

Families unaware of pipe explosion risks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — People from pastors to retired oil company supervisors say they are unaware that their Fries Avenue homes sit above an eight-inch pipe carrying potentially explosive gasoline.

And many say they aren't concerned about accidents, even though an eight-inch gasoline line in Venice ruptured last year during an excavation and exploded, killing nine persons and injuring 14 others.

Only Rev. Jose Garcia, whose home and 50-member First Methodist Church are located along the Mobil Oil Co. line, is worried. "I did not know about the pipeline, but now that I do, I'm worried," said Garcia.

The pastor said he has three children, aged seven to 20, and described his neighborhood as "mostly Spanish-speaking with lots of children."

The pipeline also passes a public library and the Gulf Avenue elementary school, where 1,225 children attend classes.

Most of Garcia's neighbors, like Frank Landham, said they didn't care about the danger. 'If there is a gasoline pipe in front of my house, what can I do?" asked Landham, 76.

Other, like James Derham, said, "I'm, not afraid of the oil lines. I've lived with them for too many years."

Derham, a retired pipeline supervisor for Texaco, Inc., added that from 1944 to 1966, spills of five to 10 barrels occurred in his company's lines about six times a year without resulting in fires or explosions. The company checked the pipes annually for leaks, he said. "They were pretty careful."

Derham said most oil pipeline accidents were caused by careless excavators who plow into pipes with bulldozers and other equipment.

Although oil companies have torn apart Fries Avenue to lay more pipes at least twice during the past few years, no accidents have occurred, Derham added.

Mobil Oil Corp. spokesman Edward Fulham said his company probably pushes 200,000 barrels of crude oil and 100,000 barrels of petroleum products daily through its 1,000-mile Southern California system.

He said the system of pipes, which extends roughly from Bakersfield to Torrance, is monitored by computer for leaks.

However, he said that an observant neighbor reported a three-barrel spill in August that the elaborate computer failed to detect. That spill was later blamed on pipe corrosion.

Ward denies seeking post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baxter Ward, a Los Angeles County supervisor, has denied reports he might be interested in succeeding Phillip E. Watson as county assessor.

"I do not have the training, nor the desire to become county asessor," Ward said Thursday in a prepared statement.

Architecural marvel holds mysteries

EDITOR'S NOTE: When so many windows were popping out like kernels of corn that they had to board the place up, a lot of people laughed at the John Hancock Tower. One person who saw no humor in the follies of New England's tallest bulk was the man who designed it. Now he's smiling, Big John is glistening and few are laughing at the architectural marvel that still holds mysteries.

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

BOSTON (AP) — In a city where Beacon Hill matrons once lined their rockers in battle formation to stop workmen changing their brick sidewalks to concrete, architect Henry N. Cobb set about erecting New England's tallest skyscraper.

The sky didn't fall in on Cobb when his shimmering 60-story glass-sheated. John Hancock Tower rose, but just about everything else did — 400-pound window panes fell by the dozens, million-dollar law suits were filed, delays doubled costs and drove off tenants, and his glass dream house was covered with plywood and declared a fire hazard.

Then the building was opened occupied and deemed a masterpiece by critics after fellow architects called him "a whore" for accepting the commission.

"There even was a time when we thought the building might have to be taken down," Cobb said. His incredibly thin, icily elegant great blue-green curtain of glass perfectly reflected the apse of the century-old Trinity Church and the sunset sky over the Charles River basin — just as he had planned it.

Platoons of tourists lined up for the elevators to the top-floor observatory, reminding each other, unwittingly within earshot of the architect, that this was what had been called the "Woodpecker Hilton," "Termite Tower," "World's Tallest Outhouse" and similar allusions to its previous plywood carcass.

Now five yars after the gargantuan reflecting panes began raining down into the street, 10 years after Cobb's plans left the drawing board and a little over a year after the city building commissioner threatened to order the tower vacated, "Big John," as it is now called, has taken its place in everyday Boston life.

Henry Cobb received the Brunner Award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters for "a significant contribution to architecture as an art." His firm, I.M. Pei & Partners, won a design award for the tower from the American Institute of Architects.

Cautiously, critics have come around, hailing Big John as "a cut diamond aglitter in our midst" instead of "the most embarrassing era in architectural history."

Yet nearly a year after the dedication, Henry Cobb's name appears nowhere in the building.

There is too much litigation, too much mystery over who was at fault in the acres of falling glass for anyone to point a finger, even in pride, at the man who built New England's tallest and spared the home team, the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., the ignominy of living another day in the shadow of the 52-story Prudential Center.

Cobb, a spare, slow-talking Yankee, born in nearby Brookline of Beacon Hill parents, ignored the slight and boarded the lobby elevator to the observatory.

The air in Cobb's Boston is certainly warmer today than on a frosty January Sunday five years ago when, in his empty tower, he faced an emergency meeting of Hancock executives and contractors, all in hard hats and all standing because there were no chairs. He told them "a catastrophe of major proportions" had befallen the building. He had come to the conclusion that "a hazard to the public existed, something that never happens in the lifetime of an architect," and the building commissioner was being told.

Over the weekend, 75 mile-per-hour winds had sent dozens of the huge thermal panes hurtling into the streets below. Hundreds more were damaged and in danger of falling. Eventually all 10,344 panes had to be replaced at a cost of $7.3 million.

"In short," Cobb said grimly, "the biggest building in Boston, built by the biggest employer, the company people love to hate, was falling on its butt."

Before he was 30, Cobb was the principle designer of Place Ville Marie, which restored downtown Montreal. A founding partner of the Pei firm, Cobb, now 51, was chief architect for Baltimore's World Trade Center, the new campus at the State University in Fredonia, N.Y., was mainly responsible for urban renewal plans in Boston and Los Angeles.

The Hancock Tower, he said, "was a saga long before the glass began blowing out."

The saga began in 1965 when the Prudential Center eclipsed the 26-story Hancock building just a few blocks away, which had been Boston's tallest since 1949. In the spring of 1966, the Pei firm was commissioned to design an office building of 2 million square feet and taller than Big Pru.

Problems multiplied from the time ground was broken in August, 1968. Soon came complaints that the tower's mass was squishing the muddy land fill of Back Bay and shifting the foundations of other buildings. Cracks appeared in the facade of Trinity Church, and the rector said the historic edifice was tilting.

New England Bell and the gas and electric utilities sued, alleging damage to power cables and underground lines. Next door, the Sheraton Plaza sued for $750,000 in structural damage. Hancock bought the hotel for $6 million and changing its name back to the Copley Plaza.

When windows began popping in 1972, a year after the scheduled opening, everyone sued and counter-sued anyone in sight: the client, the architect, the builder, the glass manufacturer, the glazing contractor.

Cobb said his inolvement by that time was "minimal." He said: "We didn't know what the problem was. We were terrified someone would be killed or injured."

"For me," Cobb said, "the most satisfying thing about the whole experience is that we were able to meet each crisis without destroying the artistic integrity of the building. Hancock could have altered the design to smaller windows, and they might have changed architects, but they didn't. This building is a saga in terms of professional relationships."

The saga goes on. Last month, as four of the new windows gave way, and Hancock created a new job category: window watcher. Equipped with walkie-talkies, the watchers will warn a command post in the building whenever a window begins to tremble so traffic can be diverted and the air vents reversed to reduce pressure on the weakened glass.

And the mystery remains. Why do the windows fall? The question was once put to Robert Hansen, professor of civil engineering at MIT, one of the diagnosticians called into the case.

"The phenomenology is too complicated to give a simple answer to that," he said, shedding about as much light as the old plywood windows.

Scion still living near the end of Madonna's trail

HONORS PIONEER MOTHERS

Amanda Kermott, wife of a traveling Baptist minister, and two of their children, Frank, 6, and Maude, not yet 1, were models for this "Madonna of the Trail" stone statue. Mrs. Marie Bond Kappan of La Verne is the daughter of the babe in the statue, and the granddaughter of the Madonna.

The "Madonna of the Trail" statue on Euclid Avenue at Foothill Boulevard in Upland holds special significance for a La Verne woman.

The little boy in the statue is her uncle, and the woman, of course, is her grandmother.

The La Verne woman is Mrs. Marie Bond Kappan, 87, of 2700 N. Magnolia Ave. She is a modest, retiring woman.

Mrs. Kappan said yes, the story about her family is true. She said she has not written any of it down, and is not really comfortable talking about it.

With the help of a friend, Eva Price Garner of La Verne, she told the story, however.

Mrs. Kappan's maternal grandfather, the Rev. William Judson Kermott, was a travelling minister in the mid-1800s. He established Baptist churches around the country, according to Mrs. Garner. He was from Chicago.

The woman in the "Madonna of the Trail" statue is his wife and Mrs. Kappan's grandmother, Amanda Kermott.

According to Mrs. Garner, the young minister and his wife took their two small children on a missionary journey to California, and that was when the "Madonna of the Trail" statue was conceived.

At the time of that journey, Frank Kermott was 6 years old and Maude Scott Kermott was an infant, probably less than a year old, Mrs. Kappan said.

After completing their journey, the family returned to Milwaukee, Wis., where Mr. Kermott founded and became minister of the Milwaukee Garfield Avenue Baptist Church.

The children grew up there. Maude married a man named Bond and they had four sons and a daughter, Marie Bond Kappan, Mrs. Garner explained.

Mrs. Kappan lived in Milwaukee until 10 years ago when she moved to California, she said. She has a son, William Judson Kappan of Thousand Oaks and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Kappan stayed in the Baptist church in Milwaukee but now attends the La Verne Church of the Brethren.

She is an accomplished pianist, has a piano in her home and still plays. "I'm careful about when I play," she said. "I don't want to disturb others."

"The Madonna of the Trail" is one of a chain of 12 monuments across the country honoring pioneer mothers. It is of algonite stone and weighs five tons. It stands on a pedestal among pepper trees in the parkway of Euclid Avenue.

It was erected and dedicated in 1929.

Church campaign aids Rhodesian

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A Cal Poly Pomona student from Rhodesia was reunited with his wife and three children this week and has set up housekeeping at a home provided by the Covenant United Methodist Church in Pomona.

Willis Makombe sat in his new living room across from his wife Regina and recalled that it has been more than two years since he left his family and his country to major in biological sciences at Cal Poly where he is a junior.

Only after a concerted financial campaign by Pastor Jim Roan before his church membership two Sundays ago did arrangements fall into place and make it possible for the Makombes to have a place to stay for the next three years while Makombe is preparing for a teaching credential.

"A week ago I laid it out to the congregation, and they raised more money than was needed," Roan said.

The arrival of Mrs. Makombe and the three children, Tapuwa, 14, a girl; Farai, 12, a boy; and Kudzai, 8, a girl, was delayed 24 hours by the air controllers strike in London.

Both parents came from a Methodist mission station at Nyadiri, where they were teachers. The station, equipped with a school, a hospital, a farm, and a nursery, is 81 miles from Salisbury, the capital.

Pastor Roan took over his duties as minister in January and met Makombe who is a member. In March, Makombe told Roan that he feared for the safety of his family because the war in Rhodesia was "heating up."

"Is there anything we can do? Should Makombe give up his studies?" were questions that were pondered.

It was decided that if Makombe went back to Rhodesia, he would not be allowed to return to the United States, and that it would be better to try to bring his family here.

The administrative board heard Roan's plea for help and voted to raise funds. Several neighboring churches contributed, including the Hemet church which gave $1,000.

Roan explained that our immigration laws prohibit the Makombes from fulltime employment. Makombe therefore works parttime as a dishwasher at Cal Poly, where he has established many friendships.

Makombe said that he first learned about California from Mrs. Evelyn Throckmorton, a missionary from Yucaipa, when she was teaching at the mission station.

He learned about Cal Poly from Professor James Kamusikiri who had returned to his country for research on his Ph.D. degree.

Mrs. Throckmorton agreed to sponsor Makombe at Cal Poly.

Makombe said that he hopes the political situation will be stablized when he is ready to return to Rhodesai.

He spoke of the government censorship of the media in Rhodesia, and said that during the past 15 years he and his wife hoped the situation would clear up.

He said that March 1978 is the target date for the white Rhodesian government to step down.

"The people in my nation speak the truth regardless of government restrictions," he said, then added, "By the way, I am not a politician."

Mrs. Makombe said that she will be a homemaker and mother for "the time being."

Hill's Claremont career is stained—crystals in glass

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Mike Hill's career is stained.

He's proud of it, too.

Hill, who operates Crystals in Glass in Claremont where he fashions stained glass creations and teaches classes in the art, has been commissioned to design and build a 47 by 5-foot stained glass window to be placed in the $1 million expansion of Ontario International Airport.

The piece will be one of the largest such creations in the Southland.

Besides the window, Hill also will fashion a freestanding glass sculpture for an enclosed garden area off the new west wing waiting room.

Completion date for both is scheduled for June, 1978.

Hill is a self-taught artist whose career has spanned everything from machinist to retailing until he entered the field of stained glass three years ago.

Stained glass creations are experiencing a renaissance in the U.S. with at least 85 per cent of artists and artisans living and working in California, Oregon and Washington, Hill said.

Hill credits the abundance of sunlight on the West Coast as one of the reasons for most craftsmen settling in this area. He cited Europe as an example where Spain and France have a wider variety of colors in stained glass creations. England, on the other hand, with its almost constant overcast and somber skies must utilize only lighter glass to allow what light there is through.

Beginning of the stained glass renaissance was in post World War II Germany where artisans joined in rebuilding damaged and destroyed churches. Secularization of the craft also began at that time, with artists from other media entering the field, Hill said.

The movement spread to this country much later and now is completing its first decade of heavy revival, he said.

Artists now have gone far beyond the campy and sometimes tacky Tiffany lamp phase which reached a zenith of popularity in this country in the early 20th Century at the close of the Victorian era, Hill said. Contrary to popular belief, Tiffany lamps were not made by Tiffany, scion of the founder of New York's famed jewelry store, but were commissioned among other artists by him. "He had a lot of money and time and was able to do that," Hill said.

Today, artists are limited only by their imaginations in creating stained glass works of art, the young artist said.

Although his design is not final for the Ontario airport project, Hill said he hopes to create a fluid piece surrealistically depicting flight and movement in keeping with the airport theme.

The huge structure which will be emplaced about 14 feet above the new lobby, will be done in 5 by 5-foot panels in Hill's studio, then transported to the construction site.

The right to retire

In a manifesto published in the current issue of The Humanist magazine, more than 100 leading Americans, including 50 U.S. senators and representatives, declare mandatory retirement to be "morally wrong" and a denial of the fundamental right to earn a living. Retirement, they say, should be a matter of voluntary choice, and they pledge to work toward that goal in all areas of employment.

Well, no doubt forced retirement at some arbitrary age (currently and generally 65 in the private sector, 70 in the government) can be an injustice and a waste in some cases.

But there is something inappropriate about such exceptional elder citizens as historians Will and Ariel Durant or inventor and sage Buckminster Fuller prescribing for all older Americans.

We don't know about congressmen, who can continue to hold office as long as the voters put up with them, but the Durants or Fullers or Dr. Spocks (another signer) will be active and creative in their fields if they live to be 110.

No so for the vast majority of us. Indeed, the trend in manufacturing in recent years has been to earlier and earlier retirement, especially in such mind-stultifying jobs as automobile assembly.

The signers of the document also think it is terrible that the median income of men forced to retire drops from $7,880 annually to $3,380, working "a hardship on both the individual and the American economy."

Well, again there is no doubt that retirement can be a hardship if a person, for whatever the reasons, is not prepared for it.

Even if the compulsory retirement age were raised or eliminated, of course, a worker still would be free to retire at 65 — or earlier, if he could swing it financially.

But we see nothing "voluntary" about it if inflation were to force people to work beyond 65 simply to make ends meet, or to help bail out a mismanaged Social Security system.

This, we believe, also would be morally wrong and the denial of another fundamental right: The right of older Americans to enjoy the fruits of a lifetime's labor at ease and in financial security.

Truth in funerals

From all indications, the government is about to require more candor and more competition in the funeral industry — and that could turn out to be a good thing for the industry as well as for the families it serves.

Certainly the itemized cost of a funeral should be made available, without hesitation, to anyone who requests it.

Nor is there any reason why funeral directors — or lawyers, or doctors, or anyone else — should be forbidden, by law or custom, to advertise the prices they charge or the services they provide.

Two years ago the Federal Trade Commission proposed that such rules of operation be made mandatory. And after taking testimony in six cities, an FTC judge, Jack B. Kahn, has reached a similar conclusion.

Kahn found that some families are paying too much for funerals because they buy services (like expensive caskets) they don't need. Sometimes they simply haven't been told what the less costly alternatives might be.

He also found that state regulatory boards tend to be dominated by the industry itself and that price competition often is frowned on rather than encouraged.

In many cases, we suspect, families buy expensive funerals as much out of pride ("What will the neighbors think?") as out of confusion or bereavement.

It's also fair to say that funeral directors, as a group, are as honest and ethical as people in any other business or profession. For its own protection, though, the public is better off knowing a lot about a product or service than knowing little. And the funeral industry is no exception to the rule.

Think on these things

There's a season to most everything — but there is never a season to loving someone. It has always been thought that love belongs to the young. In nearly every instance aging persons have been given the idea that there is something unusual about their ability to love another person — that only the young have the privilege of expressing their emotions.

Caring belongs to the one who cultivates it. Years and years of cultivation simply make better the relationships of people at any age. The beginning is merely a stage, but as time passes a deeper and more important love emerges and nothing compares with the giving and sharing of those loveliest hours.

Last straw to a ripoff

Dear Editor:

Bingo? Alcoholic beverages? I suppose next we will invite organized gamblers to set up establishments for gambling in Pomona.

I refer to the amending of the bingo ordinance last Monday evening at the Pomona City Council meeting. It was bad enough to bring legalized bingo to our fair city, but to amend the ordinance to include the sale of alcoholic beverages seemed the last straw to a ripoff of the stable taxpayers who do not gamble but are asked to pick up the welfare (and now I suppose it will be the drunken-driver accident rate after the games) tab when the gamblers lose and must seek welfare from the taxpayers to pay for their necessities and those of their families.

I believe Ben Ochoa should be commended for his vote against the bingo ordinance and the other three councilmen should be ashamed of their vote. The Rev. Hiram Sanders of the Pomona Nazarene Church should also be commended for his support of Christian principles and opposing the ordinance.

Yes, I am a Christian and spend much time, effort and money without expecting any financial remuneration in the interest of good government and the welfare of our community. With housing getting out of reach of our young people and taxes so high they are causing many others to lose their homes and gambling being a downgrading of a community, and alcoholic beverages our No. 1 drug problem, it seems the passing of this ordinance is not in line with the oaths of office taken by our council members to protect the citizens from all enemies, domestic and foreign, and alcoholic beverages are one of the worst enemies.

I would hope before the third reading of this ordinance, it will again be revised — or eliminated — in the interest of the welfare of the citizens of Pomona.

Who will replace Brezhnev?

WASHINGTON — Some of the sharpest eyes in the West will be watching Leonid Brezhnev, the indomitable old overlord of the Soviet Union, on October 4. That's the day he is expected to choose a deputy who might eventually step into his shoes.

Officially, the heir apparent will assume the cumbersome title of first deputy chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet. This is a new position created by the new constitution the Presidium will adopt on October 4. The job probably will go to the man next in line to succeed Brezhnev.

The selection, therefore, could determine whether world affairs will become more turbulent or tranquil. For the ruler of all the Russians has the power to rock the world boat.

No one expects Brezhnev to forsake his boat-rocking powers in the immediate future. But he will be 71 in December and he is beset by nagging afflictions. Those who keep an eye on the Kremlin think they detect signs that he may be faltering.

Second in power to Brezhnev appears to be Andrei Kirilenko, who controls Soviet industry. But he is already 71 and, therefore, too old to replace Brezhnev for long. So Kirilenko may be bypassed for a younger leader.

The one who seems to take charge when the old Politburo patriarchs are out of town is 59-year-old Andrei Kulakov. Nominally, he directs Soviet agriculture and keeps a low profile. He is inexperienced in foreign affairs and lacks leadership stature. But in the backrooms of the Kremlin, he has become a power. He might dominate a new collective leadership when the old crowd moves on.

There is an outside possibility that the No. 2 post could go to Kirill Mazurov. He is now second in command to Aleksei Kosygin in the Council of Ministers. But Mazurov has demonstrated the cold bureaucratic skills it takes to get ahead in the Kremlin. He is also a Belorussian, who would be acceptable to the rival Russian and Ukrainian factions in case of a standoff in the Politburo.

It is sheer power, however, that is most respected in the Kremlin. A ruthless younger leader, skilled at intrigue, cannot be overlooked. One who is rising fast is Grigory Romanov, the Leningrad party boss, who is a cunning party in-fighter.

Another possibility is Vladimir Shcherbitsky, the Ukraine party boss, who is not visibly dynamic but has close ties to Brezhnev. Still another junior official who bears watching is Vladimir Dolgikh, who has a reputation for speaking his mind and getting away with it.

Of course, no one outside the Kremlin really knows which leaders will emerge as the old men of the Politburo fade from power.

CONCORDE QUESTION: The Concorde may be the world's noisiest airliner, but its engine roar is a lullaby compared to the political uproar it has raised on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps the loudest objections have come from Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., who is fighting to keep the Concorde from landing at more U.S. airports. He not only has raised a public howl but has also made some private moves against the Concorde.

In a confidential letter to Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, Scheuer expressed "grave personal doubts" over the federal testing of the Concorde's noise levels. He submitted 82 blunt questions for Adams' transportation experts to answer.

Scheuer, for example, demanded to know why the Concorde made more noise than a Boeing 707 three miles from the landing strip but suddenly became more quiet than a 707 one mile away. He suggested the Concorde pilots "have been cutting their engines as they fly over" the noise testing points.

At first the complex noise monitoring tests were conducted by students from Virginia Community College. "What were their qualifications for performing these tests?" asked Scheuer.

He contended the Concorde noise levels are higher than the government will tolerate in factories. "In industry," Scheuer pointed out, "no worker is permitted to be subjected to any duration of noise above 115 decibels." But through May 1977, the noise from overflying Concordes "exceeded that limit on at least 22 occasions."

All in all, the anti-Concorde congressmen are making a lot of noise about noise.

HIGH PRICES: Behind the price rise at the supermarket has been a booming business in the commodities market. Speculators trade in futures; that is, they hedge against future prices of such products as sugar and coffee. The speculators gamble that prices will go up or down.

Their trading, in turn, helps to cause prices to go up or down. During the past year, brokers exchanged an incredible $1 trillion worth of commodity contracts. This was a 100 percent increase over the trading just three years ago.

Insiders tell us futures trading definitely helped cause coffee prices, for example, to triple. Yet no one in Washington is paying much attention to the commodity futures market.

The East-West standoff

First Lady Rosalynn Carter said something the other day that I wish she'd left unsaid.

A reporter asked her, "Do you feel that you could be President?"

Mrs. Carter replied, "No, I don't want the responsibility for the world."

That is precisely the preoccupation that tripped up Richard Nixon!

His proclamations of worldwide human rights for everyone are being construed in Russia and elsewhere as meddling in internal affairs of other nations, and those nations are rightly resentful.

Most of us are wearying of electing Presidents of the United States — only to have them then imagine themselves to be "the President of the world."

Most of us would prefer a tough-minded, pragmatic, efficient administration of the affairs of our own nation — to make of our White House a lighthouse, instead of a battle station.

Presently, there is an East-West standoff in military matters which promises us time for homefront chores.

A five-month top-level Security Council study confirms that the United States is on a par with Russia militarily — and that economically and politically we are well out front.

Russia has been hollering like everything about our recent tests of the neutron bomb because it is just such "clubs in the closet" which preserve our "par."

That's all right. Shouting has become part of the bargaining process stateside and worldwide.

But this most recent and most comprehensive study of global power now on its way to the President's desk reveals that the rate of Soviet military buildup in strategic arms, in naval deployment and in strength along the Chinese border and in Central Europe has slowed. And whatever their increased strength, it has been offset by our own increasing military sufficiency.

This should and hopefully will ease pressures on the Carter Administration for rapid increases in military spending.

Though this is not our nation's greatest extravagance — welfare is — the military nonetheless has been a spiraling expense what with the soaring costs of sophisticated weaponry. But objective judgment is we now have enough eggs in that basket.

Old hands around the Pentagon won't like this. They are circulating a story which says you must not be surprised — what with all the military budget cuts — if somebody in a blue suit knocks on your door and tries to sell you Air Force cookies.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

By the evening of the fifth day, God had created the heavens and the earth and everything to be found thereabouts except man. Then on the sixth day He made His big mistake. He decided to remedy that oversight. So He created Adam. — One sometimes wonders why He didn't quit at the end of that fifth day while He was ahead.

A creative mistake in his own right, once man realized his full potential he started taking over and creating mistakes on his own. One classic example should suffice. Since 1893 three thousand makes of automobiles have come and gone.

But here in America we have become adept at making certain our mistakes are properly disposed of. You'll find their ashes and decomposing remnants in incinerators and landfills throughout the length and breadth of this nation. Furthermore, to accomplish this disposal task in the neatest and most efficient way possible, five billion trash bags were used by Americans last year.

However, give man credit. Some of his creations really do stand the test of time. Bottles of rare old wines, for instance. Seldom does a real wine connoisseur ever drink their contents. He simply brings them out from time to time to be displayed and bragged about before envious friends.

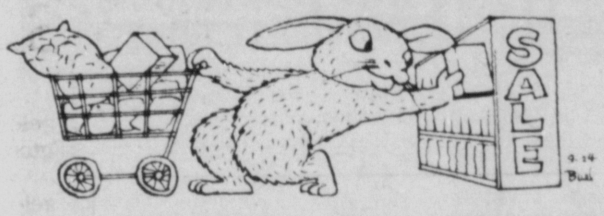
Rabbit fond of all foods



DEAR DR. MILLER: Mushmouth, my rabbit, is fond of odd munchies. He likes popcorn, bread, crackers, bran flakes and cheese. He also likes normal rabbit food. Can any of his favorites cause him problems? — Y.B.

DEAR Y.B.: Mushmouth may make out very well. None of his off-beat snacks are particularly hazardous to his health, IF consumed in moderation.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Here's what happened. My wife, when she got back to the car, found the dog almost unconscious in the back seat and she rushed him into the hospital. They diagnosed it as heat exhaustion and worked with him but he died during the night. I loved that dog. My wife did, too, but not enough, it seems.

She claims she is not responsible because she had left the windows partially open for air. Should I forgive her? — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: Yes, you should — not because what she did was right — it obviously wasn't — but because she did not know what she was doing. It is a sad thing that many people do not realize how quickly the interior temperature in a car can climb, not only from the heat of the heating sun, but the heat caused by the dog itself. Even with all the car windows completely open, the temperature inside may be unbearable. On a warm day, there is no way one can be sure a dog left in a parked car will not be endangered.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Three times now, my Siamese cats have been given cortisone for skin diseases. They started sneezing a week later. None of these cats was exposed to other cats with any sniffles, sneezes or respiratory diseases.

Is there such a thing as being allergic to cortisone? Otherwise, why would the cats start this sneezing and eye-tearing like this? — K.M.

DEAR K.M.: Cats, or any other species, may have unfavorable reactions from the use of cortisone-family drugs. The upper respiratory syndrome described would not be typical of cortisone effects. Rather, these symptoms are more likely due to reactivation of a latent feline viral rhinotraecheitis virus (FVR) as a result of giving the cortisone-family drugs. A great many cats which have had rhinotraecheitis then carry the disease in a latent form without symptoms until or unless some form of stress reactivates the virus. The cortisone drugs have been found a very effective means of (accidentally) reactivating the rhinotraecheitis infection in cats.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Monday, Sept. 26, 1977
Your Birthday, Sept. 26, 1977

The chances for success in your chosen field look extremely promising this coming year. Be prepared, though, to contribute a lot of perspiration, work and even overtime to attain it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Associate only with those who can enhance your reputation today. If you travel with questionable company, you'll be counted as one of them. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're popular and well-received today, but you must accept kudos graciously, or you may irritate another enough to conspire against you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Persons with whom you have established solid bonds will bend over backward to help you today. Not so with others outside your circle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Bargaining for something major? Don't wait too long to wrap the deal up. Trying to grind out more could blow everything.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You love to champion the underdog. That's a noble instinct. Today, however, remember who signs the checks before backing anybody against your boss.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It would be better not to borrow anything today. If you must, handle it with all the tender, loving care you can muster.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Should you have important matters to attend to, take care of them early. Delay is not to your advantage and could even prove costly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be more interested in having fun today than in keeping your nose to the grindstone. When it's too late, you may realize the folly of your ways.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions affecting your finances and career are quite favorable today, with two exceptions: Don't gamble, and avoid confrontation with the boss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Involved in a project with another? Stick to your script. A serious rift could result if you change it without consulting your cohort.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Show appreciation to those who have put forth 100 percent to do what you've asked of them. Grant any requests they may have today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is the day to look gift-horses in the mouth. The donor may be trying to use your gratitude to set you up for something sleazy.

Ann Landers

Both sides of Zodiac story

Dear Ann Landers: Maybe you don't put much stock in the Zodiac, but I can tell you the woman who wrote and said a Scorpio should never marry a Sagittarius knew what she was talking about.

My mother and father were that mix and I grew up in the middle of a battlefield. My earliest childhood memories are of the two of them yelling, throwing dishes and breaking up the furniture. When the moon was full they had such knock-down, drag-out fights the neighbors had to call the police.

I'm now 18 and have been meeting some neat guys at college. The first question I ask is, "When is your birthday? Anybody born between November 22 and December 21 is off-limits for me. I'm a Scorpio who believes — An Ounce Of Prevention Is Worth A Pound Of Cure

Dear Ounce. Thanks for the testimony. Here's another one:

Dear Ann Landers: I'm glad nobody told me 32 years ago that a Scorpio shouldn't marry a Sagitarrius. Had I bought the story I would have missed out on a very good and happy life.

The sign you are born under doesn't mean a thing. What counts is whether or not you love one another enough to work at making a go of it. I'm signing my letter — November 9 and December 9

Dear Nov. and Dec.: I'm not about to get in the middle of anything so soon after telling Bertha she should iron her old man's shorts so I'll just say thank you both for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your articles are read by millions of people I hope you will print this letter and help eliminate a lot of frustration, anger and anxiety.

Not many folks can afford to have a telephone in every room of their home, yet every day thousands of people will ring three or four times and hang up. The party who has made the call is disappointed because he assumes the person he is trying to reach is not at home. The party who hears the phone, runs to answer it and lifts up the receiver just in time to hear the click-off becomes frustrated and irritated.

I often receive business calls at home so I have installed five telephones in the house and one outside because I enjoy gardening. Yet, over and over my phone will ring four or five times and by the time I pick up the receiver the caller has hung up. What really makes me mad is when people say, "I tried to phone you three times last week but you're never home."

Everyone who makes a phone call should wait for at least ten rings before he hangs up. Maybe if they see it in your column it will get through their thick skulls. — Bob T. In Georgia

Dear Bob: To put it another way, ten rings takes approximately 60 seconds. Anyone who doesn't have the patience to wait one minute for someone to answer the phone must not want to talk to him very much.

CONFIDENTIAL to Nosy In Newark: (1) Yes. (2) Absolutely. (3) It depends on the physical condition of the people involved. (4) None of your business.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

A better metric measurement

Wouldn't you know it? Sixty-seven million kids running around and I give birth to one who speaks Metric like a native Met.

I heard him yesterday in the kitchen talking about how we're going to have to up the milk to another couple of 3.79 liters a week.

"Bite your tongue!" I said angrily. "This is an English-speaking house."

"Mom!" he said, "you'd better get used to metric. It won't be long before your cookbooks, canned goods, gas pumps, barometers — everything will be in metric."

"Look, I did not come this far in life to bring home a size 63 dress."

"Do you remember what you did to us when we were little and had difficulty remembering things?"

"I put crib notes on white Life Savers?"

"You made little rhymes and games out of it. Like 30 days hath November, April, June, and September, February hath 28 alone and all the rest have 31."

"So, make your point."

"So, I'm going to help you with metrics the same way. Now, repeat after me:

"226.8 grams hath 8 ounces,

".453 kilograms is a pound,

"One foot has .3 meters,

Except for grams, liters, kilometers and hectares which are different."

I looked at him a full two minutes before speaking. "Did I ever tell you how the chicken felt when she discovered she had been sitting on a light bulb for nine months?"

"If that's too hard, how about, 'If Peter Piper picked a hectoliter of pickled peppers . . . "

"Look, you aren't listening," I said. "If I told you once, I told you a million times, I am an orthodox Fahrenheit person who refuses to convert to Celsius. I will not listen to any more. Consider the topic closed!"

"I don't suppose you're interested in knowing that someday Miss America will measure 90-50-87.5."

"Maybe I've been too hasty. It sounds like the metric system has some merit."

Ways of combatting acne

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 15 and am very concerned about my face. I don't have acne but I do get whiteheads and many blackheads on my nose. I am fairly good looking for a guy but I don't think that my face is going to help me by breaking out. I am concerned and you are my last try.

Every morning after my shower I splash my face with as hot water as I can stand at least three times. Then I lather with a beauty cream soap and wash my face, then rinse with warm water followed by cold water. Then I use a medicated acne cleanser and finally apply acne cream to cover up the spots. I do this again before I go to bed.

I don't eat chocolate or french fries. I try to stay away from all fried or greasy foods. I would also like to know if worry causes pimples?

DEAR READER - No one likes to have blackheads or whiteheads or pimples. Incidentally, we call all of these acne so you do have acne. Acne that is associated with inflammation that leads to scarring can usually be prevented these days.

You may do better to use a different soap. Some commercial soaps include oils to moisturize the skin and prevent drying. In the presence of acne the problem is one of too much oil and not enough drying.

Wash your face regularly twice a day with a mild soap but avoid the beauty cleanser type soaps. Also leave off any of the lotions. I am sending you the Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you a better idea of what to do and equally important, what not to do about acne. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. As that issue explains, the old idea that foods cause acne is no longer believed. Carefully matched studies of individuals eating a variety of foods have proved that foods are not the cause of acne. That specifically includes chocolate. I think you are better off for other reasons to avoid sweet and greasy foods but it is not a factor in your blackheads or whiteheads.

You simply have overactive sebaceous glands that produce the oily sebum over your face and also over the scalp area. When one of these gets plugged with the fatty material the plug becomes either a blackhead or a whitehead. You can't simply wash these off as the plug is usually just below the surface of the skin. Nevertheless, steaming the skin with a warm wash cloth often makes it easier to expel the contents but you must be careful not to injure the skin by squeezing as most people are inclined to do.

When the fatty material breaks down, as a result of bacteria that live within the skin pore the resulting free fatty acids are irritating to the skin and cause the redness.

If you cannot control your skin problems with simple measures I would certainly recommend that you see a dermatologist. Using modern methods a dermatologist can usually control a case of acne to the point that no permanent scarring will occur and that is worth a lot for the rest of your life.

Yes, worry can cause an outcropping of acne but the most common cause is simply the maturing part of life when boys or girls start producing more sex hormones. The hormones activate the sebaceous glands and the problem begins.

Opening lead — J♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Here is a hand to try out on your friends, but if you do try it out, don't laugh at those who miss the correct line of play. It is the sort of hand that looks so automatic that almost anyone from the best player in the world to the worst player in the world will land in the soup.

South wins the spade lead and will attack clubs right away. If he goes after diamonds he will wind up with just three diamonds, three spades and two hearts.

Therefore, he has to lead a club at trick two and here is where the right club must be led. South must lead the queen of clubs.

If clubs are going to break 2-2 or 3-1 it doesn't matter which club South leads. If West has all, it doesn't make any difference, but there is East with all four. If South leads a low club East takes his ace right away and plays a second spade. Now South won't be able to run clubs and won't have time to establish diamonds.

If South leads the queen of clubs and East takes his ace, South wins the return, ducks a club next and scores four clubs, three spades and two hearts. If East ducks, South goes right after diamonds.

A West Virginia reader wants to know what we lead with:

The bidding by our opponents has been notrump — three notrump.

We lead the four of hearts! We aren't sure that this is the right lead, but just that we think it is the one most likely to cause trouble for declarer.

Vests preferred by fun-lovers

Note the men's vest continues to make a strong comeback. The men who wear vests tend to be known for a sense of humor. But it wasn't always so. When vests were on the way out around the start of World War II, the wearers of same were usually identified as serious citizens unresponsive to quick wit. Likewise, the sober businessmen who endured suspenders. And those dour souls who carried umbrellas. If our Chief Prognosticator is right, you can expect suspenders and umbrellas to make comebacks, too, like vests, among the more humorous.

PAPERWORK

Q. "What percentage of the paperwork filed in the typical office is ever seen again by anybody?"

A. Less than 5 per cent, if the statistics of a decade ago are still valid. No recent studies prove the point. But somewhat elderly reports also indicate that less than 1 per cent of that paperwork is ever seen again three days after it's filed.

Q. "Isn't the reproduction cycle of the coconut palm identical to that of the human female?"

A. Not quite. The palm is capable of bearing offspring at 8 years, usually does so at 13, continues until 60 or thereabouts, then survives to 80 or 90.

Q. "How many people in this country now are being kept alive on organs donated by relatives and other living dogooders?"

A. About 20,000. And that doesn't cover the 40,000 staying alive with organs from cadavers.

Q. "What animal in the wild makes the loudest noise?"

A. The lion, I'm told. Some say its roar can be heard for 10 miles.

NERVOUS?

Why take offense if somebody describes you as "nervous?" In the big book at hand, the first definition of nervous is "sinewy, strong." The second, "marked by strength of thought, feeling or style." The third, having to do with "neurons." The fourth, having to do with "nerves." True, you get to "jumpy" in the fifth definition. But if you can go through the first four to prove you're sinewy and strong in thought, feeling and style, what's it matter if you're also a little jumpy?"

Counseling Corner

Facing life brings growth

By R. CLIFF WATERS
Marriage and Family Counselor

The last time I saw Danny, he looked a lot different than the first time I saw him. When I first met Danny, he was the kind of person you'd hardly notice. He was a slight-built young man with a complexion like sandstone — a sort of bumbling fellow who always seemed to be backing away and apologizing for something. He was, in fact, a graduate student nearing the end of his studies. At 25 he was as intellectually sharp as he was socially awkward. It was not surprising that he was quiet and passive; he had never moved out of his parents' home and was subject to continuing parental advice and scrutiny.

Danny had begun to be anxious about his future and the fact that he would have to get a job soon. He was anxious enough to consult a counselor for help. In the therapist's office, this unhappy young man began the difficult task of pecking away at the shell in which he had been transported through life thus far. Danny began to identify for himself exactly what had happened and had not happened during his life. He sensed his own capitulation to parental domination, a major factor with which he had never dealt. He began to feel the pain that had built up inside himself during all these years. It was hard for him to talk about this pain and about his parents; it is hard for everyone. But he knew he had to begin. He worked hard to make a life of his own.

It would be nice to say that Danny moved quickly through therapy, making new friends and influencing people as he set his course towards a happily-ever-after life. This was not so. It is hardly ever so for anyone who opens himself anew to self-examination and growth. For Danny, there were pains and disappointments far deeper than any he had known during the sheltered years of his life. What was different was the new way he had of responding to these difficulties, the more constructive reactions that made these events into sources of continued development.

Danny came a long way in the months in which he had combined the experience of therapy with his first frontal assault on life. He is far from where he wants to be emotionally, even now. But Danny, the last time I saw him, was doing battle with life and finding much more of himself in the process. He is an example, in a way, for everyone. He chose to face and deal with his life. He is growing and there are problems lying in wait for him. But nobody can take his growth away from him.

By GARY PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

TONOPAH, Nev. (AP) — Mikeal Murphy writes a weekly column for several rural Nevada newspapers from his office in a downtown bar — a column as colorful as this well known mining town.

Some call it wisdom from a bottle.

Murphy, 54, is a bearded, hard-drinking, hard-living, funloving Irishman who likes living in Nevada and writing a weekly — "Murph Says" — column for papers like the Fallon Eagle-Standard, the Reese River Reville, the Tonopah Times-Bonanza and the Eureka Sentinel. The total circulation of these newspapers amounts to about 6,000.

The columns, long and rambling, offer a light look at Nevada's residents and transients, often from the inside of a bar out.

"I'm a good alcoholic and I write about what I see inside the bars in this state. You'd be surprised about all that you can learn in these places," said Murphy.

Murphy is a miner first, for economic reasons, and a writer second, because that's what he wants to do but can't afford to.

"I write my best stuff while I'm drinking. I like to live and work in a saloon. I was raised in a saloon and these are all my people. It's where I hear all my stories. Granted it's not always the truth, it's filled with some Murphyisms, but it represents a part of life," he said.

To find Murphy in Tonopah, once a roaring mining town, the town where Howard Hughes married Jean Peters in the late 1950s, one needs only to keep walking into bars on the west side of the main street until Murph pops up.

He lives above the Past Time Bar, but meanders to the Rex Club at times, not to mention the Ace Club. If things get too slow there, he might cross the street and visit the historic Mizpah Hotel.

Murphy has lived in Nevada many years, hunting and picking mining claims across the state. When he wasn't doing that, he was tending bar in Austin, another famous Nevada mining town. He's married, but separated.

If anyone personifies the rural Nevada attitude about life and politics, Murphy does. He is quick to nail President Carter in his column on anything that seems to violate the canons of maximum freedom, to which Murphy subscribes.

He wants to make sure he and his peers are free to wander the hills or come into town and get drunk when they want — that's freedom.'

And he holds the No. 1 membership card in the Sazarak Liars' Club in Austin.

His favorite story?

"It's about a local rancher, Chet Meyers. He was fishing one day when he felt a snake nudge his leg. He looked down and saw that snake had a frog in his mouth. He took the frog and used it for bait, and paid the snake with a drink of rum. Well, he couldn't handle all the frogs he caught that day," said Murphy.

His current project?

"I've been asked to write a 'Drinking Man's Guide to Tonopah', and that could take a few days," he said.

Indian show in Commerce

Howard Chatt's American Indian & Western Relic Show will be held at the Great Western Exhibit Center, Commerce, Oct. 14-16.

On exhibit will be Kachina dolls crafted by the Hopi of Arizona and New Mexico, Navajo blankets, rare Santa Domingo and Santa Clara pottery, and baskets, large to miniature in size, woven by members of a wide variety of Indian tribes: the Pima, Western Apache, Washoo, Hupa, the Havasupai and Cahuilla.

This is the 18th edition of Chatt's semi-annual event, the longest-playing public trade show in the West devoted to showing genuine American Indian arts and crafts.

Also on display will be examples of silver Concha belts; Navajo and Zuni silver and turquoise jewelry; an extensive collection of Remington and Russell prints reproduced on Canvas; as well as Indian beadwork, buckskin and woven clothing; ancient tribal weapons and ritual artifacts.

Fred Sweetwater, the champion Oklahoma Indian dancer will be back to supervise an Indian Pow Wow which runs from opening to closing (Oct. 15-16).

Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children 6-12; under six free. Show hours are noon to 9 p.m., Oct. 14; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Oct. 15, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 16. Great Western Exhibit Center is located at 2120 S. Eastern Ave., Commerce (at the Atlantic Boulevard exit of Santa Ana Freeway.)

PIANO DUO — Eleanor Miller, left, and Glory Fisher will present a recital of music for two pianos and piano four-hands in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

Piano recital set at Pomona

Glory Fisher, Pomona College class of 1940, and Eleanor Miller will present a recital of music for two pianos and piano four-hands in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

The program features music by Clementi, Rachmaninoff, and Ravel, as well as music less often heard: Aria and Toccata by the American Norman Dello Joio, "Omaggio" by Lawrence Moss, "The Cry" by Wallingford Riegger and Variations on a Theme by Paganini by the Polish composer Witold Lutoslawski.

The two pianists have been partners since their student days at Juilliard School of Music, and both are residents of Santa Barbara. They have toured colleges and organizations throughout California.

They recently returned from a tour of Romania and Egypt under sponsorship of the Cultural Arts Presentations Program of the U.S. State Department, where they played programs of American music.

Mrs. Fisher is on the staff at UC Santa Barbara, and is pianist for the Santa Barbara Symphony. Mrs. Miller has taught at Indiana University, where she appeared frequently as soloist and in chamber music concerts, and is now on the faculty at Westmont College.

Their teachers at Juilliard were Olga Samaroff and Alexander Siloti. Mrs. Fisher studied with Daryl Dayton while she attended Pomona College, when her name was Glory Zahradnik.

Dance program slated

The two-member Mixed Motion Dance Company of Los Angeles will present a lecture/demonstration at Chino High School at 1 p.m. Oct. 3. Admission is free.

The company consists of Martha Partridge and Donna Sternberg, dancer/musicians. They are currently touring under the auspices of the California Arts Council. The Council has awarded them a Special Projects Grant to present a variety of dance events throughout Southern California.

The Mixed Motion Dance Company's performance repetoire offers the audience a wide range of dance pieces including live music composed by Miss Partridge.

'Claremont Clay Spectrum'

Ceramics show at Griswold's

Eight local artists will show ceramics in "The Claremont Clay Spectrum" at Griswold's Art Gallery, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards, Claremont, through October.

Taking part will be John Blough, John Fassbinder, David Furman, Dale Gaynor, David King, Harrison McIntosh, Linda Rosenus and Paul Soldner. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

A teacher at Mt. San Antonio College, Blough is known for his well-designed functional pottery. In this show he will depart from this and concern himself with clay surface areas and the presentation of a visual, tactile surface with variations of color and surface texture.

Fassbinder's pottery is notable for its sensitive color and exquisite design. His affinity for painting and drawing has added a distinctive elegance to ceramics that are both utilitarian and esthetically beautiful. He received a B.A. from the University of Washington and an M.F.A. from the Claremont Graduate School, where he subsequently became assistant professor of art.

Furman is currently assistant professor of art at Pitzer College and the Claremont Graduate School. His list of exhibitions includes the deYoung Memorial Museum, San Francisco; the Whitney Museum and Museum of Contemporary Crafts, New York City; the Chicago Art Institute, and the Los Angeles County Art Museum. He had three one-man shows at the David Stuart Galleries, Los Angeles. Furman holds a B.A. from the University of Oregon and an M.F.A. from the University of Washington.

Miss Gaynor holds a B.A. from Pomona College and an M.A. from Cal State Fullerton. Her main concern is with a new image for an age-old material, adobe. Her forms have been described as "portable landscapes" constructed of stabilized earth, natural fibers, metal, wood, paper, glass and living mosses. She has conducted many workshops and, in 1978, will be lecturing on "Adobe as Sculpture" at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Born in Honolulu, Hawaii, King received a B.A. from Pomona College and an M.F.A. from the Claremont Graduate School. He is known for his large wheel-thrown porcelain or stoneware pieces. He has exhibited throughout California and has received numerous awards and fellowships including the Harsh and Braken fellowships in 1975 and 1976.

The refined sophistication of McIntosh's ceramics has been internationally recognized for many years. Constantly striving to maintain the delicate balance of form and decoration, he presents a totality of color, texture and design in each finished piece. He has had one-man exhibits throughout the United States and is included in more than 15 major museum collections.

The work of Miss Rosenus follows two directions: sculptural — large, raku-fired sculpture assembled from wheel-thrown parts that have been distorted and, functional — generally porcelain with the white surface serving as a ground for two-dimensional ideas. She holds an M.F.A. from Claremont Graduate School and has studied extensively with Soldner.

Soldner has an M.A. from the University of Colorado at Boulder and an M.F.A. from Otis Art Institute. He has received 34 national and international awards, had 86 one-man shows and given almost 200 demonstration/lectures. Soldner has been instrumental in the development of contemporary "raku" techniques and was influential in the revival of salt glazing and various means of decorating pottery.

Griswold's gallery has 20 sustaining artists and a changing program of shows on a monthly schedule. The Center encompasses a 2,500-square-foot fine arts gallery, seven individual studios, ceramics gallery and a 2,500-square-foot ceramics workshop.

ON HER TOES — Pretty Marianna Tcherkassky will perform with Stars of the American Ballet in programs at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 20 and 22 and at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 23. Also starring are Fernando Bujones, Suzanne Farrell and Peter Martins. Tickets are on sale at all Mutual agencies.

Citrus offers movie course

Film buffs can view top movies in the Citrus College auditorium and earn one unit of college credit by enrolling in Selected Topics, course 140. The first class session is at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

The class will meet in the auditorium for a one-hour discussion with instructor Roger McFarland, instructional media specialist at Mt. San Antonio College, then view a full-length film at 7:30 p.m.

Films and dates of showing are:

"Lord Jim," Sept. 26; "Winterset," Oct. 24; "Jane Eyre," Nov. 14; "Raisin in the Sun," Nov. 28; "Wuthering Heights," Dec. 5; "From Here to Eternity," Jan. 9; "All the King's Men," March 6; "Ship of Fools," March 13; "Murder in the Cathedral," April 10 and "Long Day's Journey Into Night," April 24. The first six films listed will be covered in the class sessions.

The public is invited to attend the films free of charge. Enrollment in the course is not necessary.

Hawaii campus

Brigham Young University has a permanent campus in Hawaii at Laie, on the island of Oahu. One thousand students are enrolled and represent nearly 25 cultures throughout Asia and Polynesia.

LEONARD PENNARIO

Pianist to give recital

Pianist Leonard Pennario, internationally known as a solo artist and guest performer with major orchestras, will present a recital in the Creative Arts Building at Cal State San Bernardino at 8 p.m. Oct. 14. Tickets are $10.

A reception following the concert will be hosted by the Arrowhead Allied Arts Council.

In the years of his adult professional career, Pennario has performed in the world's major recital halls, with the great orchestras and in a long list of best-selling records.

After Pennario's appearance as soloist with the London Philharmonic, the London Times wrote: "He is an extraordinarily refined artist with fingers as agile and a mind as subtle as those of the very greatest pianists memory can recall."

MSAC plans paper show

Expressive uses of paper in experimental drawings, graphics and other two and three dimensional art will be featured in the Mt. San Antonio College Gallery's first art exhibition of the season.

Opening with a reception Tuesday evening at 7:30, "Paper as Media" will continue to Oct. 28. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, evenings 6:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays. Special tours of the exhibit may also be arranged through gallery director Michael Preble.

Noted Santa Monica artist Richard Royce, one of the artists represented in the show, will demonstrate his paper casting techniques in a slide presentation Thursday Sept. 29 at 1 p.m. in the gallery.

The exhibition and demonstration are open to the public free of charge.

Engaged in a desperate battle

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — Much has been written on the ravages of hard and soft drugs throughout French society, and recently especially in public schools and universities.

But little attention has been given to reports on the IVth National Congress Against Alcoholism which gathered together close to 500 doctors, psychologists, sociologists, demographers, economists and social workers as well as Alcoholics Anonymous members, all engaged in fighting a desperate battle.

Speakers inevitably underlined the fact that the "alcoholic Frenchman" is not a myth. Records show that two million citizens (some say three million) drink from 25 to 30 quarts of pure alcohol per year. With disastrous effects on the family, work and social responsibility. A drug addict seldom causes such widespread damage to others as do all the cases of cirrhosis of the liver, D.T.'s, accidents at work causing disability and finally death, all being the price of what ethnologist Maurice Robert calls "the popular religion of wine and alcohol." The fact is that drinking, in France, is equivalent to a rite. It is a symbol of pleasure and communication between friends, the celebration of all happy events and commemorations. But it is only in the last 50 years that alcohol, as distinguished from wine, has degenerated into a daily habit.

Many in the anti-alcoholic fight in France wondered whether they ever would be able to awaken public opinion against drunkenness. Past efforts, which started after World War I, seemed not to have made much progress. What to do against such inertia? Frighten, even more so-than in the past, the men and women bent on self-destruction (reports revealed that women topers had increased by 20 per cent). The majority are all blissfully unconscious that they are rushing headlong to meet their doom before they are made aware that their health is irremediably damaged.

The congress also stressed the fact that a great gulf exists, paradoxically, between the realization of having reached the dangerous crossroad and the urge to stop drinking.

Thus the adult Frenchman beats all the world's records of alcoholic consumption with his 30 quarts a year. Twice more than a German, three times more than a Briton or an 'American and four times more than a Dane or a Swede.

Figures are eloquent: 17,500 citizens died of cirrhosis of the liver last year while 50,000 deaths resulted directly from acute alcoholism. Purchases of alcoholic drinks totalled 35 billion francs ($7 billion) per year — the same sum as went into the nation's public and private hospitals. Alcoholism represents 10 billion francs ($2 billion) per year in health insurance. Moreover, it is responsible for 9 per cent of masculine hospital patients, 8 per cent of women. Thirty per cent of patients hospitalized suffer from the side effects of alcoholism. From one to two out of 10 working accidents are due to alcohol. Tests applied to 20 per cent of automobile drivers involved in road accidents revealed a high percentage of alcohol.

Even more depressing for the fighting of this great scourge is that acute alcoholism, which at the beginning of the century was more or less confined to the blue collar class, now has invaded the middle and upper classes with the adoption of the cocktail hour before lunch or dinner or both, a matter of social status. Then there are the women at home, lonely or bored, who little by little become confirmed alcoholics. The number of these is difficult to evaluate. This type of alcoholism may be more discreet but the long range effects are the same.

Politically, the alcohol lobby is extremely powerful. Twenty years ago when Premier Pierre Mendes-France, a teetotaller, denounced the winegrowers' and distributors' interests and took his seat at the National Assembly with a glass of milk, he realized he was risking his political future by asking the government to pass a law forbidding the opening of new cafes and bistros all over France. There are some 374,000 of these and no law governing how much a citizen is allowed to drink. Neither is there any law governing the number of hours a cafe may operate.

It is, however, forbidden to open a new bistro in the vicinity of a school or factory, nor is it allowed to sell the goodwill of any already established.

"Specialists know all the facets of the alcohol problem — from alcohol-evasion, alcohol folklore, alcohol-habit to alcohol-refuge," points out Madeleine Franck in the popular evening paper France-Soir. She stresses that special efforts should be directed to curbing the recrudescence of alcoholism in teen-agers.

Hungary seeks to cut back suicides

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — During the course of an average day, about a dozen Hungarians commit suicide and at least five times that number attempt to take their own lives, according to the government newspaper Magyar Hirlap.

In Budapest alone, said the newspaper, that meant 853 suicides in a single year, making the suicide rate in Hungary's capital city higher than in any other part of the country.

Of the 50 "registered causes of death," the newspaper added, suicide ranks sixth. But among persons between the ages of 15 and 24, it is the primary cause.

While conceding that Hungary has a suicide problem, the article indicated that it was magnified in international statistics because the country is legally bound to report all cases.

In some countries, the newspaper pointed out, postmortems are only possible if the family agrees, "so 'drug poisoning' or an 'accidental car crash' can become euphemisms for actual suicide."

But, said the article calling for broader programs aimed at predicting and preventing suicide, "all in all, the high number of suicides is a disquieting social phenomenon in Hungary, and the figure has kept mounting for years."

Health establishments, the police, families of potential suicides, colleagues at work, should all combine their efforts to fight the menace, the newspaper urged.

"Cry for Help" is a Hungarian counseling service which is said to have been successful in preventing suicide by 11 per cent of those who telephoned.

LAUNCHING A WINNER

Oklahoma kicker Uwe von Schamann kicks a field goal past the efforts of Ohio State's Kelton Dansler (32), David Adkins (94) and Eddie Beamon (67) to win the game for Sooners 29-28 Saturday at Columbus. Bud Hebert (33) watches the kick. See story, page 19.

Trojans breeze

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The final score was USC 51, TCU 0. But the game itself wasn't that close.

The Trojans probably have tougher practices than Saturday afternoon's lop-sided win over outmanned Texas Christian.

Number four tailback Rod Connors, a junior, was the game's leading rusher with 124 yards in 13 carries although he didn't see action until the second half.

Connors and number two tailback, Dwight Ford each topped the century mark. Ford had 117 yards in nine carries including touchdown jaunts of 70 and nine yards.

Troy rolled up 642 yards to TCU's 252 and outgained the Horned Frogs 151-4 in the first quarter. With third and fourth string quarterbacks Rob Preston and Walt Ransome at the controls in the fourth quarter, USC gained 118 yards.

As Johnny Carson would ask, "how . . . good are the Trojans?"

"I believe they're as good a team as I've seen in quite some time," said TCH coach F.A. Dry. "They've got depth and speed and they throw well enough to keep the defense off balance.

"They also have good quickness on defense. I don't know if they will lose a game. That's how good they were today."

It's a good thing USC has its usual depth. Linebacker Mario Celotto injured a knee and could be lost for the season. Fullback Mosi Tatupu and offensive tackle Otis Page suffered strained knees.

Understandably, Robinson was somewhat more restrained when he discussed his team.

"We're moving along . . . we're doing well," he admitted. "But we've got a long way to go. We're close to where we were last year at this time . . . maybe a little better. But all our tests are certainly still ahead of us."

Asked about a number one rating since Michigan won by only seven points, Robinson replied, "I don't really know and I honestly don't care. I have other problems . . . like the injury thing."

Harris, who started because first stringer Steve Bayuk was injured in practice, was sacked five times for a total loss of 42 yards and intercepted twice before giving way to senior Jimmy Dan Elzner in the fourth quarter.

Frank Jordan, getting his first chance at place kicking for Troy, was a major success. The 5-9, 182-pound junior, soccer-style kicker from San Francisco, booted three field goals to tie a USC record held by Ron Ayala and Chris Limahelu.

Troy got on the board 2:08 after the kickoff when Jordan booted a 49-yard field goal capping a drive set up by Ford's 32-yard kickoff return.

Next came a 28-yarder then a 24-yard touchdown run by Charles White who finished with 81 yards on 14 carries.

TCU got as far as the USC 23 late in the first half, but had a field goal attempt blocked. But SC, with sophomore Paul McDonald at QB, drove to TCU's 14 where McDonald's touchdown pass to sophomore fullback Ricky Johnson was nullified by a holding penalty.

Jordan then booted a 45-yard field goal to finish the first half scoring with Southern Cal ahead, 23-0. At the half, Troy had 323 yards to TCU's 96 and it obviously was all over for the Texans.

The victory was the 14th straight for Troy over two seasons and was TCU's 14th straight loss over two years. Both are the longest streaks in major college football.

USC, 3-0, hosts Washington State, 2-1, Friday night.

'Pack misses top rusher

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Claremont High, playing without its chief offensive weapon, suffered a 14-3 loss to Glendora at Citrus College Saturday night.

Running back Grant Warhurst, who rushed for over 188 yards, including a 98-yard touchdown, in the Wolfpack's opener against Bonita last week, injured his knee in practice this week and will be out "quite a while," according to coach Esper Keiser.

Without Warhurst, Claremont was unable to generate any attack. The 'Pack finished the game with 74 yards in total offense.

But Claremont's big and physical defensive unit was able to contain Glendora's Tartans all evening, and kept the 'Pack in the game until the Sierra League school scored its second touchdown with 6:59 left to play.

Glendora's first score was something of a fluke. On third-down-and-eight at Claremont's 16, Tartan quarterback Kevin Sampson directed a pass of about eight or nine yards toward John Mack. A Claremont defender broke up the play by tipping the ball into the air, but it fell into the grasp of Glendora's Chris Roberts as he lunged across the goal line.

That TD and Frank Israel's extra-point kick gave Glendora a 7-0 lead after Claremont's Doug Jollymour had booted a 33-yard field goal in the first quarter.

Claremont recovered another fumbled kick later and Scott Kegans intercepted a Sampson pass in the 'Pack's end zone, but Claremont quarterback Mike Pirolo was intercepted three times to even out the turnovers. Glendora linebacker Mike Bublin grabbed two of Pirolo's aerials, leading to one score, and safety Ken Tillie picked off another at the Tartan four-yard line, ending Claremont's most serious TD threat.

Jeff Smith led Claremont rushers with 41 yards on 14 carries and Fred Flye, Warhurst's replacement added 30 yards before going out with an ankle injury in the third quarter. Pirolo was caught behind the scrimmage line five times for a total loss of 45 yards, giving Claremont a net of just 42 yards on the ground.

Glendora (1-1) amassed 206 offensive yards, 163 on the ground and 43 through the air. Tartan running backs Dan Reedy and Jeff Mowdy rushed for 59 and 51 yards, respectively.

Sampson completed five of 14 passes and ran for 37 yards, including an eight-yard fourth-quarter touchdown.

It was the second victory in two years for Glendora coach Bryan Shaw over Claremont's Keiser. Shaw was a 'Pack running back in the '60s when Keiser was the offensive line coach.

The Wolfpack (1-1) will open San Antonio League play against Ganesha (1-1) Friday at Citrus College.

Gophers upset Bruins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Fullback Jeff Thompson scored two touchdowns and Paul Rogind kicked two field goals to lead Minnesota to a 27-to-13 upset victory over 18th-ranked UCLA Saturday.

Thompson, who finished with 68 yards in 18 carries, scored on runs of five and one yard. Rogind hit for 47 and 30 yards to build the Gopher lead to 20-7.

Minnesota, 2-1, led 10-to-7 at the half.

The second half began in a downpour, which contributed to the bad center snap which set the stage for Minnesota's second touchdown.

UCLA was forced to punt on its first series and the snap from center skidded off the ground and bounced off punter Matt McFarland's legs.

Rogind made it 20-7 on his 30-yard kick with just over 12 minutes left in the game. Five seconds later, Minnesota scored again. UCLA's James Owens mishandled Rogind's kickoff and was ruled out of bounds at the three.

On the next play, quarterback Rick Bashore fumbled and Gopher tackle Steve Midboe recovered in the end zone to give Minnesota a 20-point lead.

Freeman McNeil scored UCLA's second touchdown on a one-yard plunge with less than two minutes to play. The Bruins, now 1-2, had marched 63 yards in eight plays.

Minnesota whipped the Bruins 21-3 in the 1962 Rose Bowl, the only other time the teams have met.

Minnesota moved 80 yards in 12 plays on its opening drive and scored when Thompson banged over left tackle from the five. Thompson gained 24 yards in four carries in the drive and flanker Steve Breault picked up 27 on three reverse plays.

Midboe recovered a UCLA fumble at the Bruin 32 on the following series. The Gophers moved to the six-yard-line, but linebacker Jerry Robinson intercepted a pass by Wendell Avery at the five and sprinted 95 yards on the left sideline for a touchdown.

Minnesota took a 10-7 lead with only seven seconds remaining in the half on a 47-yard field goal by Rogind. The Gophers had moved 41 yards in nine plays before a quarterback sack stalled their drive, throwing them back from the Bruin 17 to the 30.

Vikings struggle

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Fran Tarkenton hit running back Chuck Foreman with a 31-yard third-quarter touchdown pass to give the Minnesota Vikings a 93 come-from-behind victory over the still-struggling Tampa Bay Buccaneers Saturday night.

The game, the only one in the National Football League Saturday, was played before a crowd of 66,272 partisan fans who came out to support the 0-16 second-year Bucs.

With Tampa ahead 3-2 after a lackluster first half, Tarkenton engineered three key plays to come up with the game's only touchdown. The 37-year-old Tarkenton scrambled to get off a 28-yard pass to wide receiver Sammie White and another eight-yard toss to running back Sam Johnson to keep the 53-yard drive alive in the third quarter.

Minnesota's other two points came on a first-half safety, while an 18-yard second-quarter field goal accounted for Tampa's only score of the game.

The victory gave the Vikings, defending champs of the National Football Conference, a 1-1 record after a 16-10 opening loss to Dallas in overtime last week.

The Bucs are 0-2 this year after losing 13-3 to Philadelphia a week ago.

Tarkenton, a 17-year pro, completed 25 of 38 passes for 223 yards while Tampa's rookie quarterback Randy Hedberg completed four of 14 for 51 yards.

Tarkenton was intercepted a second time when Tampa linebacker Dewey Selmon stepped in front of a pass at the Tampa 32 in the fourth quarter.

Veteran quarterback Gary Huff, recovering from a leg injury, played the last two minutes for Tampa.

Tampa came from behind to take a 3-2 lead at halftime.

With 1:57 left in the second period, the Bucs' brand new place kicker, Allan Leavitt, booted an 18-yard field goal to put Tampa in front. Leavitt was acquired from the Atlanta Falcons this week.

The Bucs made it to Minnesota's one-yard line in 18 plays, but the Vikings' defense stiffened, stopping Hedberg on a one-yard sneak and forcing Tampa to settle for the three-point field goal.

Burt Hooton stops Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Burt Hooton fired a two-hitter and Los Angeles scored the only run of the game on a bases-loaded walk to Lee Lacy in the sixth inning as the Dodgers edged the Houston Astros 1-0 Saturday night.

Hooton, 11-7, walked only two and struck out five in chalking up his second shutout of the season. He surrendered a second-inning double to Bob Watson and a fifth-inning single to Ed Herrmann while facing only 29 batters in posting his sixth complete game of the season.

Dusty Baker's two-out, sixth-inning double and consecutive walks to Ron Cey and Steve Garvey loaded the bases. Floyd Bannister, 7-9, then walked Lacy to force in Baker as the Dodgers snapped a two-game losing streak.

The Astros missed a scoring opportunity in the second inning when Jose Cruz was thrown out attempting to score from first base on Watson's double to the left-centerfield wall.

Hooton settled down to retire 16 of the next 17 Houston batters to face him as the Dodgers defeated Houston for only the sixth time in 13 contests.

The victory was the Dodgers 93rd of the season, surpassing their entire 1976 total.

Ed Herrmann, who singled in the fifth, was erased on Art Howe's inning-ending double play.

Orioles, Red Sox win 'must' games

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox both crept a bit closer to the first-place New York Yankees in the American League East Division race Saturday.

While the Yankees were rained out in Toronto, Jim Palmer won his sixth consecutive game with a seven-hitter as the Orioles defeated Cleveland 4-1. Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray slammed successive solo homers in the ninth inning to give Palmer his 19th victory against 11 defeats.

Boston topped Detroit 6-2 as Fred Lynn, Carl Yastrzemski and Ted Cox homered, Cox hitting his first major league home run. Bill Campbell picked up his 29th save by pitching the final 11-3 innings in relief of winner Mike Paxton, 10-5.

Dave Goltz won his 19th game of the year with a sevenhitter as Minnesota topped Milwaukee 4-3 and Texas beat Oakland 3-1 as Doyle Alexander threw a six-hitter.

In the National League, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, 23-9, the winningest pitcher in the majors, shutout Montreal 10, reducing the Phils' magic number for clinching the NL East to two. Garry Maddox' single scored Richie Hebner with the only run.

Pittsburgh beat Chicago 7-3 as Al Oliver smashed a two-run homer and Pirates rallied for four runs in the sixth inning. The St. Louis Cardinals game at New York was rained out.

OPEN-FIELD TACKLE

La Verne College halfback Brad Frick (42) is brought down by Whittier defenseman Saturday afternoon in game between Leopards and Poets at La Verne. Things went this way all day for Leos, who were beaten by Whittier 19-3 in their season opener. See story, page 19.

Royals edge Angels, 4-3

ANAHEIM (AP) — Cookie Rojas singled home Bob Heise to break a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and Willie Wilson drove in the game-winner with a single in the sixth as the Kansas City defeated California 4-3 Saturday for the their sixth straight victory.

The Royals went ahead on Joe Zdeb's single, John Wathan's double and Rojas' single off loser Balor Moore, 0-2. They added an insurance run the following inning when Heise was safe on an error, U.L. Washington sacrificed and Wilson singled to score Heise.

Kansas City starter Mark Littell, 8-4, went the seven innings to pick up the victory.

Rams, Eagles both have something to prove

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Combine Dick Vermeil and Ron Jaworski and you have a Philadelphia Eagles coach and a quarterback aiming to beat the Los Angeles Rams for whom they used to labor.

The National Football League clubs battle today in the Coliseum and Coach Chuck Knox and quarterback Joe Namath also have something to prove.

Philadelphia was the only preseason victim of the Rams, 20-3, as the defending NFC West champs went 1-5. Then Los Angeles was upset by Atlanta 17-6 in the opening NFL regular season game.

Jaworski, who felt he was overlooked by the Rams, completed 14 of 24 passes for 147 yards a week ago as the Eagles opened their regular season by beating Tampa Bay 13-3.

Vermeil was a assistant on the Knox staff in 1973 before becoming head coach at UCLA and then the head man with the Eagles after the Uclans won the Rose Bowl.

Jaworski didn't sign with the Rams last season, started a couple of times before being injured and then sat on the bench. He became a free agent and the Eagles signed him.

So Vermeil and his quarterback each know the Rams' system, as did Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett, a Los Angeles assistant through last season.

Asked if he thought opponents were reading his mind, Knox retorted, "Bennett didn't do anything that wasn't expected. What he did do was control the clock."

Los Angeles fans are becoming uptight. They are used to winning seasons after four divisional championships under Knox, who now says this campaign is the toughest challenge since he arrived.

The challenge has included trouble signing some veteran players, a continuing quarterback controversy and charges that owner Carroll Rosenbloom was pulling the strings normally yanked by the coach.

Knox said he is responsible for making Namath, a 34-year-old veteran of 12 seasons with the New York Jets, the man directing the offense.

"I thought he played well," said Knox of Namath's showing in the upset by Atlanta. "He stayed in the pocket. We didn't do well on pass protection."

That wasn't the only place where Knox thought his team fell down

"Having talent and using it are to different things," he said. "If we play like we did against Atlanta, we're in deep trouble. We need to play with more intensity. We're not a good football team right now."

Vermeil was happy that his club won its first season opener since 1967, even though it was against a club that has yet to win a game in NFL regular competition.

The Eagles' defense, led by linebackers Bill Bergey and John Bunting, limited Tampa Bay to only 118 total offensive yards and eight first downs.

"I thought our defense played superbly," the second-year coach commented. A year ago the Eagles were 0-6 in the preseason and ended 4-10 in the regular campaign.

The Rams were 6-0 and then 10-3-1 for the division title.

Atlanta's defense limited Los Angeles to only 59 yards rushing, while Namath hit 15 of 30 passes for 141 yards and the club's only touchdown.

One plus for the Rams will be the return of offensive tackle Doug France, who underwent surgery after a preseason injury. He'll play, but Knox hasn't said how much.

In the preseason game between the Rams and Eagles on Aug. 13, Jaworski completed only two of 11 passes for 25 yards. However, he won the starting job from another ex-Rams quarterback, Roman Gabriel, and is in charge, as his showing against Tampa Bay indicated

USD stops 'Hens

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Pomona Pitzer's band showed a great deal more pep than did its football team in Saturday night's unveiling of the 1977 edition of the "Fighting" Sagehens.

With eight minutes to play in the game, Walt Ambord's squad lived up to its title when an altercation broke loose and penalties resulted.

But other than that brief scuffle, the Sagehens showed few signs of life on the field, as the University of San Diego blanked Pomona-Pitzer, 34-0, at Pomona College.

With only a total of 36 players listed on the Sagehens' roster, their main problem is that many players have to double up on both offense and defense.

"I felt that we stayed with them in the first half," said Ambord, who is beginning his 15th year as the 'Hens coach. "When USD left its regulars in, and even its fresh guys off the bench in the second half, and my guys were going both ways, well, that was too much."

Kevin Pete started at quarterback for Pomona-Pitzer, but he couldn't get the club rolling and was replaced by Lansdell. Lyle completed 12 of 24 passes for 112 yards, but he had two interceptions.

The Sagehen rushing attack (?) saw six players carry for 24 attempts and a negative three yards.

USD's Toreros, in contrast, had 468 total offensive yards, with 357 of those coming via the ground.

Joffre Chess gained 123 yards on seven carries, while Nils Ericson had 106 on 15 totes.

The Toreros (1-2) used four quarterbacks, with starter George Calandri leading the way with four completions in seven attempts for 48 yards.

Calandri scored the first touchdown on a two-yard run in the first quarter. Barefooted booter Tim Rowan added the first of his four for the night.

With 1:40 to go in the half, Mark Garibaldi scored a TD on a five-yard burst.

About one minute later, USD scored again on a punt return of 47 yards by John Manson.

Panthers pounce on another foe

Chaffey College scored 22 points in the second quarter en route to a 43-14 rout of host Mira Costa while Mt. San Antonio College dropped a 17-7 decision to host Glendale in junior college action Saturday night.

Local products Gary Carr (Upland High) and Marcus Jennings (Ontario High) combined to rush past Mira Costa scoring two touchdowns each.

Carr scored on runs of seven and two yards while romping for 90 yards on 11 carries. Jennings rushed 13 times for 80 yards with TD runs of nine and four yards.

The other Chaffey score came in the fourth quarter on Paul Lindsey's five-yard run to sew up the Panthers third win in as many tries.

MSAC was down 10-0 into the third quarter when Mountie Butch Stocking scored with 4:42 left. Jim Amus kicked the conversion.

Don Lugo falters in varsity debut

Don Lugo's varsity high school debut was a sad one Saturday, as host Orange Lutheran beat the 'Q's' 35-14.

Webb School and La Verne Lutheran did not fair well either in action Saturday. Webb bowed to Big Bear 27-6 and La Verne dropped an 18-6 decision to Serrano.

Don Lugo received touchdowns from Steve Moore and Carlos Sanchez, but it was not enough as Orange scored five TDs. Lugo quarterback Bob Malins hit 12 of 22 passes for 174 yards but was intercepted three times.

Lugo, which had its 22-game winning streak snapped, also lost two of its top players in the game. Fullback Moore suffered a mild concussion while halfback Manuel Villalobos sustained rib injuries.

Webb was thoroughly shut down by Big Bear in the Gauls' 1977 opener. Webb had only 117 yards in total offense compared to the Bears' 349.

Howard Lockie and quarterback Terry Bensinger teamed up for the lone Gaul score. Wayne Jones scored twice for Big Bear and Larry Russo rushed 15 times for 122 yards to pace the winners.

Lutheran scored only on a fourth-quarter run by Dave Walz in its loss to Serrano. Fullback John Walsh paced Serrano with 120 yards on 24 carries and three touchdowns. Lutheran is now 0-2 in the year.

Quote

"I don't like him even though he is champion of the world. He was cursing my mother from the first round. I tried to curse him back, but the referee wouldn't let me talk." — Edwin Viruet, after he lost a unanimous 15-round decision to World Boxing Association champion Roberto Duran.

Racing Association presents Arabians

In addition to the Golden State Derby, which will be held for the fourth time, there will be the Golden West Arabian Breeders' Cup and a mile and three-quarter endurance race.

Seven horses are entered in the Golden State Derby which is for three-year-olds. All are from California.

The Golden West Breeders' Cup is for four-year-olds and up. The entry fee is $500 and the purse $4,500. Among the seven entrants are horses from Michigan and Pennsylvania. A local entry is owned by Pamela Goodwin of Chino.

The endurance race is being held in association with the American Endurance Ride Conference. Nine horses will run three laps around the mile and three-quarter track. Since endurance horses are not gate-trained, no starting gate will be used for this race.

Admission to the grandstand is free. The first race is scheduled for 1 p.m. Queen Kim Jabara will present trophies to the winners.

College roundup

Sooners edge Buckeyes

By Associated Press

College football giants Ohio State and Oklahoma met for the first time Saturday in a stirring battle filled with comebacks, turnovers and heartstopping plays.

Fortunately for the Sooners, the last comeback and the final heartstopping play belonged to them and the last turnover belonged to the Buckeyes, so Oklahoma went home to Norman with a 29-28 triumph on Uwe von Schamann's 41-yard field goal with three seconds left.

The Sooners, ranked third, and No. 4 Ohio State took the spotlight away from top-ranked Michigan, which beat Navy 14-7 in what Coach Bo Schembechler admitted was a lackluster performance by the Wolverines.

The remainder of the Top Ten had a successful day as No. 2 Southern California whipped Texas Christian 51-0, fifthranked Penn State put in a strong bid for Eastern superiority with a 27-9 triumph over Maryland, No. 8 Colorado trounced New Mexico 42-7 and 10th-ranked Alabama rebounded from last week's upset loss to Mississippi with a 24-12 decision over Vanderbilt. No. 9 Texas was idle.

Another important game paired the only two unbeaten teams in the Southeastern Conference, with 13th-ranked Florida outlasting No. 12 Mississippi State 24-22. The rest of the second 10 had mixed success as 11th rated Notre Dame scored 17 points in the fourth quarter to outscore Purdue 31-24, No. 14 Nebraska whipped Baylor 31-10, 15th-ranked Washington State lost to Kansas 14-12, No. 16 Arkansas manhandled Tulsa 37-3, 17th-ranked West Virginia lost to Kentucky 28-13, No. 18 UCLA fell to Minnesota 27-13 and 20th-rated Brigham Young crushed Utah State 65-6 as Gifford Nielsen threw six touchdown passes.

College football is a uniquely American game, but it was Von Schamann — a West Germanborn, soccer-style kicker — who gave Oklahoma its slim edge over Ohio State in the game seen on television by most of the country.

Oklahoma opened a 20-0 lead early in the second quarter behind the quarterbacking of Thomas Lott, but things fell apart for the Sooners after Lott was injured in the second period and the Buckeyes had a 28-20 lead as the game neared its end.

An Ohio State turnover led to an Elvis Peacock touchdown with 1:29 to play, cutting the lead to 28-26, but the Buckeyes turned back the two-point conversion attempt, seemingly locking the victory.

But Oklahoma, which had six turnovers to help Ohio State come back, turned the tables by recovering an on-sides kick, driving to the State 24 and letting Von Schamann kick his field goal.

"It wasn't a flawless game, but it had more tension, more drama, than any game I have ever been associated with," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said.

The Buckeyes' fiery coach, Woody Hayes, who vented his anger by hurling equipment on the sidelines in the final seconds and slapped an Oklahoma student manager on the shoulder as he left the field, wasn't thrilled by the excitement.

"I'd rather have it dull and win," he said. "I thought we had it won and then we didn't. We practice against an offside kickoff damn near every day and we worked on it three days this week."

Michigan tailback Harlan Huckleby scored two secondquarter touchdowns on 13 and 22-yard runs and the Wolverines made that stand up although Navy tallied in the third period on a 34-yard pass from Bob Leszczyzynski to Sandy Jones.

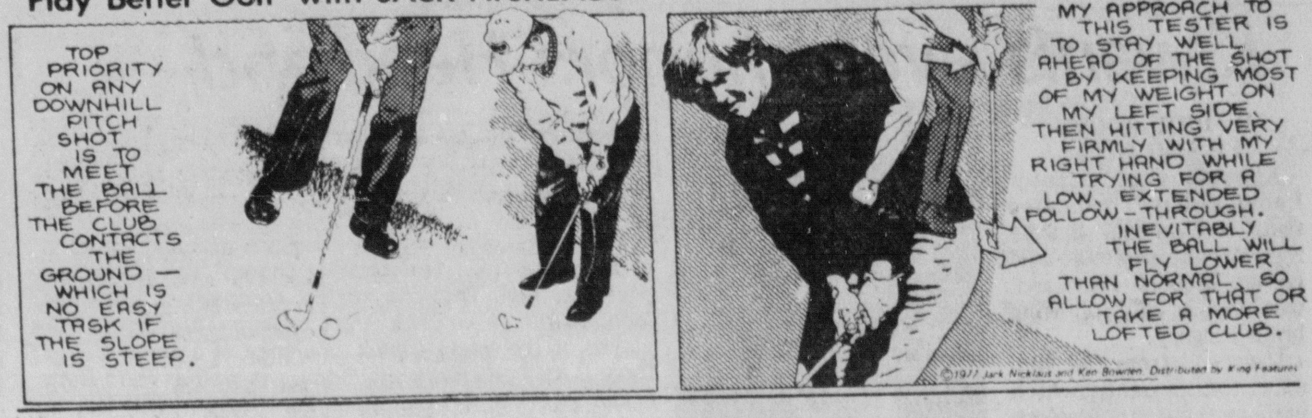
"We're just not playing very well," moaned Schembechler. "At both ends of the field we are not playing very well."

Chuck Fusina completed 19 of 29 passes for 286 yards and two touchdowns as Penn State broke open a 3-3 tie in the third quarter on a 58-yard TD pass from Fusina to Jimmy Cefalo.

Jeff Knapple ran for two touchdowns and passed for another as Colorado easily beat New Mexico. Tony Nathan's one-yard touchdown dive in the second quarter broke a 3-3 tie and Roger Chapman booted three field goals for Alabama.

Purdue led Notre Dame 24-14 at halftime behind the passing of freshman Mark Herrman, who finished with 351 yards through the air. But sub quarterback Joe Montana directed three scoring drives in the fourth quarter to save the Irish.

Play Better Golf–with JACK NICKLAUS



TOP PRIORITY ON ANY DOWNHILL PITCH SHOT IS TO MEET THE BALL BEFORE THE CLUB CONTACTS THE GROUND — WHICH IS NO EASY TASK IF THE SLOPE IS STEEP.
MY APPROACH TO THIS TESTER IS TO STAY WELL AHEAD OF THE SHOT BY KEEPING MOST OF MY WEIGHT ON MY LEFT SIDE, THEN HITTING VERY FIRMLY WITH MY RIGHT HAND WHILE TRYING FOR A LOW, EXTENDED FOLLOW-THROUGH. INEVITABLY THE BALL WILL FLY LOWER THAN NORMAL, SO ALLOW FOR THAT OR TAKE A MORE LOFTED CLUB.

Leos' offense sputters

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

Prior to his team's season opener against Whittier Saturday, La Verne football coach Roland Ortmayer said the Leopards' biggest problem might be replacing last year's quarterback, Randy Brown.

Using a two-quarterback system, the weakness seemed apparent as the Leos succumbed to a stingy Poet defense and ball-control offense Saturday, 19-3.

The win served as partial revenge for Whittier, who dropped two 1976 decisions to La Verne.

The Leos attempted to use their biggest offensive weapons in Brad Frick and Ben Morrow, as they elected to keep it on the ground through much of the first half. But Whittier completely shut off the running attack and, when La Verne began going to the air, the Poets applied deadly pressure.

Thus, Whittier managed to shut out the Leos until, with four seconds showing on the second quarter clock, placekicker Andy Ford capped a 50-yard march with a 27-yard field goal.

However, the kick sent La Verne into intermission trailing 7-3 as the Poets had gotten on the scoreboard with 47 seconds remaining in the half.

With 2:31 left, Whittier abandoned its running game in favor of the pass. Starting on their own 47-yard line, the Poets received 10-yard and 20-yard completions from quarterback Chris Terrazas to move to the La Verne 20.

Then, on first down, Terrazas found Raymond Chavez in the end zone for a 7-0 Poet advantage.

Actually, Whittier came within two yards of scoring in the first period. But Steve Hines ended the Poet 52-yard march on a sour note when he stopped Terrazas on a fourth-down quarterback keep.

Whittier increased its lead to 13-3 and later to the final margin when Bob Warren and Joe Kahler ran for scores. The former capped a 58-yard march with an 18-yard burst around right end and Kahler plunged over from the two five minutes later.

Frick led La Verne's rushers, picking up 52 yards on 17 carries, while Terrazas paced the Poet offense by completing 14 of 21 for 118 yards and one touchdown.

On a positive note for La Verne, however, was the fact that the game was not recorded as a conference contest.

L.A. favored for Olympics

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A spartan Los Angeles and a more flamboyant New York both expressed confidence Saturday that they would be chosen to stage the 1984 Summer Olympic Games.

Los Angeles appears to be favored to win.

Each city will make a final 60-minute presentation today before the 65-member U.S. Olympic Committee executive board votes immediately on whom the American representative will be.

The USOC selection is virtually assured of staging the Games because no other city in the world has made a bid. The International Olympic Commitee will make its choice next May in Athens.

"We will have given it our best effort," said John C. Argue, president of the Southern California Committee for the Olympic Games. "We are confident Los Angeles will get the bid."

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley heads the delegation. He will be the leadoff speaker in the Sunday presentation, which will include a 20-minute audio-visual show which Argue described as "polished and professional."

In the competition, there has been criticism of the Los Angeles bid because it consisted primarily of mimeographed fact sheets while New York's was a slick, expensively printed, fullcolor brochure detailing its proposal. Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame head the New York delegation which will follow the Los Angeles presentation.

In another contrast in styles, most of the Los Angeles delegation arrived Friday, although Bradley did not reach here until Saturday evening, and stayed at a hotel in downtown Colorado Springs.

Two members of the New York group arrived Friday but most of the delegation, including Carey and Beame, arrived in mid-afternoon Saturday and were booked into a plush resort hotel, site of the final presentation meeting.

Both groups lunched with the USOC executive board and representatives of 32 Olympic sports governing bodies and were scheduled to attend brief protocol sessions with the executive board Saturday evening.

Argue said the bid by Los Angeles, which lost out to Moscow four years ago in the final competition for the 1980 Summer Games, would be essentially the same as the one made to the USOC site selection commitee in August.

There were reports earlier this week, since denied, that the USOC had attempted to put pressure on Los Angeles to improve its bid by hinting New York, once considered just an also-ran in the competition, had been coming on strong.

In response to questions raised by the selection committee, Los Angeles said it still maintained that it could stage the Summer Games at a cost of $183.5 million without any taxpayer money, but would be willing to build a covered swimming stadium and an Olympic Village to house the athletes if federal money became available.

Sports briefs

Sherm Lollar dies

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Sherman Lollar, a former major league baseball catcher, died Saturday of cancer. He was 53.

Lollar, who went by the nickname "Sherm," played about 20 years in the major leagues, finishing his career in 1963 after 10 years with the Chicago White Sox.

He received the Golden Glove award as the outstanding fielder among major league catchers in 1957, and was the American League's top fielding catcher the next two seasons.

Austin keeps lead

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Debbie Austin sank a 2½-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Saturday and maintained a one-stroke lead after three rounds of a $100,000 women's professional golf tournament.

Miss Austin finished with a three-under-par 70 on the Round Hill Country Club Course, giving her a three-round total of 210 and a one-shot lead over Jane Blalock.

Big win for Cauthen

CHICAGO (AP) — Sauce Boat, ridden by Steve Cauthen, pulled away from 44-1 shot Gonquin to win the $232,775 Arlington-Washington Futurity by two lengths Saturday at Arlington Park.

The victory, worth $130,665, was the richest of Cauthen's career.

Leonard KOs foe

Leonard, in his fourth professional fight, started out slowly, feeling Santore out with several fast jabs.

Hill ties Crenshaw

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Hill sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole and tied defending champion Ben Crenshaw for the third-round lead in the wind-whipped $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open golf tournament.

Hill, winless on the tour since 1972, came from three shots behind in the last three holes. He got an assist when Crenshaw shot a double-bogey five on the par-3 16th.

Orantes advances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain and fourth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami advanced to the men's singles semifinals of the $100,000 Southern California Open Tennis Championships Saturday.

Orantes eliminated unseeded Tom Leonard of Laguna Niguel, Calif., 6-3, 6-7, 6-3 while Dibbs defeated Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-4, 6-4 in quarter-final matches.

St. Mary's holds on to down Stags, 16-6

MORAGA — Claremont-Mudd came up a bit short of an upset in its season football opener Saturday, as host St. Mary's prevailed 16-6.

A St. Mary's touchdown in the final minute iced the win. The Gauls held a slim 10-6 lead until that score.

Jimmy Reed, a senior tailback, had a big day for the Stags in the defeat. Reed rushed 27 times for a net of 136 yards.

However, Stag quarterback Don Chester could hit on only four of 13 passes for 28 yards. In contrast, Gaul QB Terry Cottle hit on 14 of 22 for 156 yards and one touchdown.

On the game, St. Mary's outgained C-M 275-269 in total offense. St. Mary's is now 1-2 on the season.

Next action for the Stags will be Saturday when they will host Cal Lutheran in a 1:30 p.m. contest.

Ebiner sets MSAC mark

Joe Ebiner shattered his own Mt. San Antonio College cross country course record Saturday, but the Mounties split their double dual South Coast Conference opener.

MSAC defeated Cerritos 15-44 but lost to defending champ Grossmont 21-40. The Griffins captured 12 of the top 15 places in the meet.

Ebiner led all the way as he recorded a time of 19:48. Jim Austin of Grossmont was second. Next Mountie finisher after Ebiner was Billy Jones, who was sixth. Barry Boettcher, battling a cold, was 12th.

MSAC will try to rebound Friday when it travels to San Diego Mesa for a dual meet, to start at 3:30 p.m.

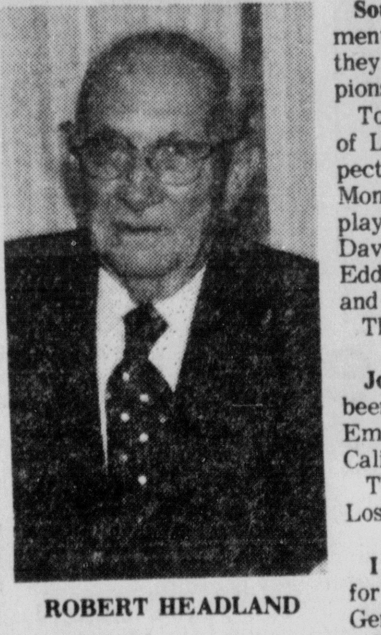
Kiwanis event honors Headland

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer



ROBERT HEADLAND

Kiwanians of Greater Pomona have dedicated their 20th annual tournament Wednesday to an avid golfer, Robert Headland, who died in July following brain surgery.

Proceeds from the popular tournament, which will be held at Western Hills C.C., will go to the Circle K scholarship fund established in Headland's memory.

Gordon Taylor, present Kiwanis Club president and tournament director, reports that Headland was "a man who loved to play golf and was very active in civic and Kiwanis events." Headland was a past president of the Greater Pomona Club and served as Lt. Gov. of Division 15 which encompasses some 13 clubs.

"The tournament started as a between clubs day," says Taylor, "but it's now a fun tournament for Kiwanis members, their guests, and everyone who'd like to play."

Entry fee for both golf and the dinner is $22; golf alone is $14 and dinner tickets are $12.

A new AMC Pacer for a hole in one on No. 14 will be given away, and the regular tournament will be followed by a pitching contest with prizes to be awarded.

Taylor says that prizes and trophies will be awarded for top finishers in low gross and net categories with three flights available for the anticipated field of 144 players.

Persons wishing more information about entering can contact Taylor at either 623-5251 (business) or 626-2690 (home). Tee-off time for the shotgun tourney is 12:30 p.m.

A total of 678 die-hard golfers have been accepted for the PGA fall qualifying school, Deane Beman, tour commissioner, has announced.

Sectional qualifying rounds will be held at 25 sites across the country between now and Oct. 4.

Jack Witham of Claremont and San Dimas Canyon will be among the Southlanders competing on Oct. 3-4 at Saticoy C.C. in Saticoy.

Survivors of the sectional qualifying rounds will advance to regional qualifying, which will be played at 72 holes each on Oct. 18-21.

The regional eliminations will produce a field of 144 players who will compete over four rounds in the PGA School at Pinehurst, N.C., starting Nov. 9.

Jack Witham these days is sharpening his game for a busy week during early October. Witham , who is hitting the ball longer and straighter than ever, will play Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 3-4 at Saticoy in the PGA Qualifying. He'll take Wednesday off "just to practice," then he'll be competing in the Queen Mary Long Beach tournament from Thursday through Sunday.

Whew! Good luck, Jack.

A reminder to those who like to watch a little golf. Billy Barty's Little People International Celebrity Tournament will be held today at Azusa Greens golf course. Joe Bingo, the area comedian, will act as general for the event. Proceeds go to the Billy Barty Foundation, which aids research into the cause and cures of dwarfism.

Smallest golfer there today will be Pat Bilon, a 2-foot-10 inch mighty fine player from Youngstown, Ohio.

Bob Richards of Los Angeles fired a second-round 66 and a 36-hole total of 137 to capture low gross honors in the annual property-owner tournament at Silver Lakes Resort golf course.

Low net went to Jack Draper of San Bernardino with a score of 131. A total of $5,000 in prizes was given away.

Next tournament for the National Association is Thursday, Oct. 6 at San Juan Hills. Contact Jerry Sharman at 496-0065 for more information.

Southern Cal PGA members will play their big tournament of the year beginning on Wednesday, Oct. 19 when they tee up at Huntington-Seacliff C.C. in the PGA Championship.

The purse for the 53rd Championship is $12,500.

Joe Taylor, of the PB's advertising department, has been named tournament director for the annual Inland Empire Championship event next Sunday at Rancho California C.C.

The tournament will attract players from clubs in the Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego, and Arizona regions.

I would be remiss if I did not add my congratulations for the astounding summer golf performance of Upland's Gerry Simoni.

Simoni beat the best amateurs in Southern California at Bermuda Dunes last weekend by shooting a 3-day, 8-under par 208 on a tough golf course. Then early last week he beat all the club champions by firing a 69.

Earlier in the year he qualified for the U.S. Open and won two matches.

Simoni is a junior at San Diego and he doesn't plan to turn pro for two more years. Even though he plays like a fine touring pro right now. Course again, he's only 20 years old.

Raiders, Steelers resume 'war'

It is, in the general scheme of things, just another football game ... the latest in a string of most unbelieveable football games.

Almost since the day the Oakland Raiders joined the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Football League—and the Steelers joined the Raiders in the American Conference, the venom has flowed freely each time they have joined battle.

Today's game at Three Rivers Stadium, between teams which scored similar shutouts in their National Football league openers, figures to be no different.

Or as Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler put it more succinctly: "We hate them. They hate us."

Pittsburgh fans were chanting "We want Oakland! We want Oakland!" during the Steelers' 27-0 victory over San Francisco last Monday night— and certainly the Raiders were looking forward to another showdown against the Steelers after blanking San Diego 24-0.

In today's other games it's Philadelphia at Los Angeles, Chicago at St. Louis, Atlanta at Washington, Seattle at Cincinnati, Baltimore vs. the New York Jets at Giants Stadium, Houston at Green Bay, New Orleans at Detroit, the New York Giants at Dallas, San Diego at Kansas City, Buffalo at Denver and Miami at San Francisco. On Monday night, New England visits Cleveland.

The Oakland-Pittsburgh rivalry began in earnest in the 1972 playoff game (the two teams have met in the playoffs every year since that one) when Franco Harris picked a deflected pass off his kneecaps and turned the last-minute "immaculate reception" into a game-turning 60-yard touchdown play.

Things began picking up the next year, when the Steelers charged the Raiders with greasing their uniforms and the Raiders responded by accusing Pittsburgh of trying to sneak assistant coaches into the Oakland press box in order to scout the Raiders.

In the snow-bound 1975 playoff in Pittsburgh, the Raiders said the Steelers had allowed the field to freeze to stifle Ken Stabler's passing.

In that game, Steelers receiver Lynn Swann received a concussion—his first. He got another one last year when Oakland defensive back George Atkinson clobbered him. That led to Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll's comment about a "criminal element" in the NFL, and Atkinson's unsuccessful $2 million slander suit against Noll. And that trial led to Pittsburgh cornerback Mel Blount's $5 million lawsuit against his own coach for being lumped in with that so-called criminal element during Noll's courtroom testimony.

The Bears, sharing first place in the National Conference's Central Division, send rushing leader Walter Payton (160 yards and two touchdowns vs. Detroit last week) against the usually high-powered Cardinals. St. Louis was blanked by Denver, due in part to four missed field goals by place-kicker Jim Bakken.

The Falcons, who weren't supposed to win last Sunday, face the Redskins, who weren't supposed to lose.

"We better be ready to play and have our feet on the ground," Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said. "The Redskins are going to be ready to play after losing last week. Everybody writes them off each year, but they always find a way to win."

And Coach George Allen, who has never lost to Atlanta in 11 games with the Redskins and Rams, says he believes the Falcons are a tougher team than the Giants which beat Washington 20-17. "Anybody who can handle Los Angeles like that I consider to be a good team.

As the treadmill turns like a merry-go-round

Economic rank and file are asking where it all leads to

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As the treadmill turns, members of the economic rank and file are asking where it all leads or whether, like a merry-go-round, we have merely painted up the machinery and introduced a few ups and downs.

We have introduced indexing into our wage-price negotiations, and Social Security benefits too, the better that workers and retirees can meet the rising cost of living. Thus when prices rise, so do incomes.

While admiring this, we also wonder why it is that inflation persists, when it is all but obvious that to some degree we are perpetuating the catchup sequence, in which higher incomes contribute to higher prices and...

An attempt is made to improve the lot of the worker lowest on the scale of skills by raising the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour, with further increases to come. It is bound to reduce the difficulties of some workers.

But for how long? Personnel executives already are saying they will have to raise the wages of more skilled workers in order to maintain the relationship. That leads to inflation, which is devastating for those on the bottom rung.

At the same time as we are considering increases in the minimum wage, we also are attempting to cut down on the jobless rate, which remains stuck in the area of 7 per cent of the civilian labor force.

It is almost unnecessary to point out that unemployment is worst among those who have the least skills, and who are thus in the minimum wage category. Does a higher minimum wage improve their chances for being hired?

Again, as we moralize over the unemployment problem we support a school system that is demonstrably deficient in preparing youngsters for the labor market, and which continues to turn out teachers who can never hope to find teaching jobs.

In the stock market we have indexing too, although of another sort. It's the current cult. Instead of trying to beat the popular averages and indexes, an institutional portfolio manager seeks only to keep pace with them. This is now considered success, and a fee is charged for it.

Does indexing explain why the stock market, at least as indicated by the popular market averages, has been going nowhere? It would seem so. In the past, at any rate, the stock market rose or fell on taking rather than avoiding risk.

No basic industry has been on a more persistent treadmill than steel, unless it is railroads. In fact, as steelmen tell it, they have had their feet planted on different treadmills going in opposite directions.

They are being forced to expend hundreds of millions of dollars on pollution control. They have been asked to compete with steel imports subsidized by foreign governments.

Simultaneously they have been pressured by the federal government to limit price increases they say are needed to modernize and make their plants more competitive. Unable to do so, they lay off workers. Stigmatized, they are less able to raise money in the stock market in order to update their plants.

The examples are endless, though admittedly not all are clearcut. Some critics of steel, for example, maintain the industry has management deficiencies. And it has never been declared by the highest authority that all problems could or should be met in ways that satisfy all parties.

But sometimes you can't blame Americans for wondering where it all leads and why we can't seem to do much about it. You can't help but lament that patchwork solutions must suffice instead of weaving new pieces of cloth.

Differences show up

Are there differences between males and females other than anatomical ones? Test your views on this subject.

1. Because men tend not to gossip, both men and women would rather share their secrets with a man.
True () False ()

2. Women tend to be more thoughtful than men.
True () False ()

3. Women are born with an understanding of parenting, but males have to be taught.
True () False ()

4. Studies indicate that men tend to be more imaginative and more original.
True () False ()

5. Men and women tend to see themselves as being very different from each other.
True () False ()

6. Men like to, and do, bluff more than women.
True () False ()

7. Men tend to be more confident about all their abilities than women are.
True () False ()

8. Differences between men and women are increasing despite the sexual revolution and the freer life-styles.
True () False ()

ANSWERS:

1. FALSE. While it's true that men tend to be more secretive, studies have shown that women are confided in by both sexes to a far greater extent than men are. Men, women and children, all confide secrets they wouldn't share with anyone else to women.

2. FALSE. Of course, this is an indivudual matter, but studies indicate that women are just as self-centered as men, if not more so. A person's thoughtfulness is more related to training, education and family background than to gender.

3. FALSE. This is a myth. Parenting doesn't come naturally to either sex. Both learn from observation. If they have witnessed good and loving parents, they will be more apt to pass this on to their own children. Men can be just as nurturing as women and often make better parents.

4. FALSE. Tests by scientists at California State Polytenic College show that women have more active imaginations and are better at coming up with new, original ideas. They're also better able to communicate these ideas if given the opportunity. They're apt to censor themselves, however, because of a lack of confidence and a feeling of inadequacy.

5. TRUE. Researchers at the University of Nebraska report that women tend to see themselves as having more warmth, tenderness and more of a sense of satisfaction than men. They also felt they were more excitable and insecure. Men described themselves as more assertive, practical and adventurous than women.

6.TRUE. When a man is unsure of himself, he's much more apt to bluff than a woman. When unsure of their judgment, women tend to say nothing, or to be more conservative. When a woman feels certain she's right, however, she'll back her judgment more fearlessly than a man.

7. TRUE. In case anyone had any doubts, the male ego remains a reality. Women are still inclined to underrate everything about themselves, except their personal appearance, while men are likely to have an exaggerated opinion of their importance.

8. FALSE. Differences between men and women are rapidly disappearing and, according to Dr. Fred Brown, head of the Mt. Sinai Hospital psychology department, there have been radical changes among younger men and women.

ANTIQUE DISPLAY — Patt Hughes of Pomona and Mrs. Myrna Arnold look over some of the antiques Mrs. Hughes will exhibit at the Glendora Women's Club annual show scheduled Saturday and Sunday at the Glendora clubhouse from noon until 6 p.m.

Native Daughters will meet

Families and friends of members of Rancho San Jose Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will enjoy a potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the Assistance League clubhouse, 693 N. Palomares St., Pomona.

Members will provide table service and their favorite dishes, according to Mrs. Walter Kawa and Mrs. Paul Strickland, cochairmen.

David Pearce, medical social worker and director of social service for Pomona Valley Community Hospital, will discuss "What's That You Say?"

Tray a shawl

On an Indian Summer afternoon, wear a summery dress, but don't cover it with your old raincoat. Try a challis shawl instead.

Antique show, sale in Glendora planned

The eighth annual antique show and sale will be presented by the Glendora Women's Club at their clubhouse, 424 N. Glendora Ave., Glendora, Oct. 1. Show hours are from noon to 10 p.m., and Oct. 2, from noon to 6 p.m.

Twenty-three antique shops from throughout Southern California will be presenting an interesting collection of antique jewelry, art, quilts, primitives, toys, marine items, art glass, cut glass, pressed glass, china, silver and some pieces in Tiffany and Limoges. Some shops will be specializing in spoons, clocks, furniture and phonographs.

"Ownership of antiques as a pleasure and as an investment has continued to rise in popularity. Most of us enjoy the feeling of continuity and nostalgia in acquiring something from ourheritage," according to Mrs. Dan Arnold, show chairman.

Home-cooked foods from the Glendora Woman's Club Country Kitchen will be available during the show.

Persons traveling the San Bernardino and 210 freeways to this event are advised to take the Grand Avenue turnoff and go north to Foothill Boulevard, turn east on Foothill to Glendora Avenue, then north four blocks to the clubhouse.

Bazaar set Saturday by church

The Ladies' Aid of La Verne Church of the Brethren will present its annual bazaar Oct. 1 in Fellowship Hall of the church, 2425 E St., La Verne.

Sale hours will be 2 to 7 p.m. and a swiss steak dinner will be served from 5 until 7 p.m. Reservations for the dinner should be made by Monday by calling 593-1585, 593-5856 or 593-3078. Snacks of homemade pie and coffee will be available during the afternoon.

Sale items will include handmade comforters, baby quilts, aprons, pastries, breads, greeting cards and boutique items.

Medical aid group plans annual dinner

Francis L. Dale, newly appointed publisher of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, will be the speaker at a dinner Oct. 7 sponsored by the American Bureau for Medical Aid for Free China.

The dinner will be held at The Castaway, Burbank. Mr. Dale's topic will be "Communism: The Bubonic Plague of the Modern World." Mrs. Dale will be honored at the same time.

Guests of honor, together with their wives, will be Gen. James H. Doolittle, former Ambassador Everett F. Drumright, Consul Gen. Ping-nan Chang, the Honorable Stanway N. W. Cheng, Dr. B. A. Garside, William H. Ivers, Gen. L. C. Craigie, Robert W. Prescott, Dr. William Francis Quinn, Gen. Charles Wesley Schott, Gen. Charles B. Stone III, Samuel W. Yorty and Maj. Howard M. Kessler.

The dinner will commemorate the 40th anniversary of ABMAC's medical service to the Chinese. Last year ABMAC completed a mobile cancer detection unit for the rural areas of Taiwan. The current project is the training of a young Chinese doctor in nuclear medicine.

ABMAC is a completely volunteer group, non-political, non-sectarian and strictly humanitarian.

At the dinner a special tribute will be paid to General Doolittle and to Dr. William Francis Quinn.

Areme club sets luncheon

The Areme Club will resume activities after the summer recess when the group meets at noon Wednesday for a luncheon at the Heritage House restaurant in Pomona.

Following the luncheon and business meeting the group will play bridge during the afternoon.

Women with active membership in the Order of the Eastern Star are invited to contact Mrs. A. W. Randall, 629-3734.

Seminar scheduled

The YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley will present an employment training seminar Monday and Oct. 3 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Senior Citizens Center, Harrison avenue and Indian Hill boulevard, Claremont.

The seminar will help women over 18 to set their own goals, improve personal appearance, learn how to fill out applications and write resumes.

The class is offered as a free public service. Transportation will be provided for $1 from the YWCA. Call 622-1269 for reservations.

Lutheran women will meet

Peace Lutheran Women's Missionary League will host a Bible breakfast Thursday at 9 a.m. at the church, 1101 Glen Ave., Pomona.

Mrs. Michael Dill will present the welcome and introduction.

The Rev. Ronald Kudick, Zone LWML counselor and pastor of St. Luke Lutheran Church in Claremont, will be Bible Study instructor.

A course, "How to be the wife of a happy husband," will begin Oct. 5 at the church and will be reviewed at the meeting by Mrs. Kenneth Zelt.

Babysitting will be provided.

Dessert crepes

Top baked crepes with softened cream cheese and cover with sliced fresh nectarines. Fold over and arrange in shallow baking dish. Brush generously with butter and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven 10 minutes. Serve with a topping of sour cream.

For financial aid through drought

Farmer's image puts him in good 'stead' with bankers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The farmer's image as a trustworthy, hardworking plodder who honors his debts has put him in good stead with California banks which must finance him through the drought.

Despite projections which show California farmers will lose about $800 million this year because of the drought, banks vow they will continue to approve a high volume of large agricultural loans.

"We'll continue to finance them as long as the drought goes on," said Bill Gentle, vice president of Security Pacific in Fresno. "We know the rains will come back and in the meantime, we have to eat."

Ralph Davis, manager of the Agricultural Department at Wells Fargo here, said farmers "are a very resourceful people who have demonstrated over the years a tremendous ability to adapt."

Bank of America also is giving farmers the benefit of the doubt. "Our view is that we will attempt to work with individual borrowers and make the best of it," said economist Dick Courtney.

"If a farmer has a plan we think is viable we'll go as far as we can with him."

Each stressed, however, that the pledge to agriculture is a general policy and that their bank makes loan decisions on the merits of particular cases.

All three banks said the drought has not affected the number of loan applications. But the amounts farmers are seeking are much higher, they added.

At Security Pacific, which makes more than 1,000 agricultural loans a year, the amount borrowed is up an average of 40 per cent, Gentle said.

"They range from $10,000 for a small farmer raising 20 acres of Thompson seedless grapes to $10 million for large diversified farmers in the Imperial Valley or corporate operations on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley," he said.

Davis said the size of loans at Wells Fargo increased about 15 per cent this year, as opposed to an average of about 10 per cent in each of the past few years.

"The drought means that more farmers are buying pumps, motors, sprinklers and irrigation equipment," he said. "In the past they have borrowed conservatively and established good credit, so now many are asking for larger amounts and getting what they need."

Many of the loans are going to cattle ranchers, according to Davis, and economists at other banks and at the state Department of Food and Agriculture.

They estimated that about half of the loss to agriculture — anywhere from $400 million to $500 million — will be absorbed by cattle ranchers this year. Receipts are expected to fall almost four per cent to about $2.8 billion.

Production costs have risen because of the drought, and nationwide cattle prices continue depressed. But the Bank of America said that by next year the industry is likely to strengthen as feed costs ease and steer prices rise.

Besides cattle and calves, receipts will decline for poultry and eggs and all grains and field crops except cotton. Cash receipts will rise for dairy products, vegetables, fruits and nuts, the bank said.

Poultry and eggs are expected to yield about $600 million, down about three per cent from last year, and field crop cash receipts will plunge 19 per cent to $2.1 billion, estimates show.

Cotton acreage, on the other hand, totals 1.35 million acres in 1977, a 19 per cent increase over last year and the largest planting since 1953.

This rise was attributed to a tight supply worldwide and a strong demand, boosting Fresno's cotton price to 80 cents a pound in March, as opposed to 57 per cent a year earlier.

Cash receipts for vegetables will increase almost 15 per cent to $1.8 billion because of favorable market prices and a large crop of processing tomatoes — this year's major vegetable crop.

Although the drought has cut the 1977 yield of fruits and nuts, production as well as gross receipts will exceed last year's levels. Grapes will contribute most to the expected 28 per cent rise in cash receipts, with white wine grapes most heavily in demand.

These projections show what many observers have said throughout the course of the drought — that California agriculture can survive 1977. But bank economists agree that if 1978 is equally dry, farmers are in serious trouble.

"We'll try to keep farmers in business as long as it is feasible," Gentle said. "But if the drought is as bad next year as it is this year, the marginal farmers are really going to suffer."

With exhaust gases from fuel

Scientist proposes using greenhouses to clean air

BERKELEY, Calif. (BW) — Growing crops in enormous greenhouses with exhaust gases from fossil fuel-burning factories and power plants is what a Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory scientist is proposing to reduce air pollution and produce additional energy.

James Bassham, a biochemist at LBL's chemical biodynamics facility, suggests in a recent article in Science magazine that giant greenhouses, situated in unused desert areas, could produce high-protein, high-energy crops such as alfalfa, beets or sugar cane which could be used as food or burned as fuel.

Because these "covered energy farms" would be enclosed in an airtight seal, Bassham contends they might recycle water and use factory-produced carbon dioxide pollutants to stimulate crop growth.

Bassham's unique idea originated from one of his studies, funded by the Energy Research & Development Administration, that found that higher-than-normal levels of carbon dioxide could stimulate a plant's growth rate and increase its tolerance to sulfur dioxide, a pollutant that plants remove from the atmosphere.

But constructing a greenhouse that covers enough cropland to make such an energy farm practical, yet preserves, prevents leakage of carbon dioxide and water vapor, is a problem that makes costly, conventional glass and wood greenhouses unthinkable.

Bassham's solution is to cover large areas of cropland with "tents" of transparent plastic manufactured from sugars found in the plants themselves.

Hundreds of feet high and miles across, Bassham's tents would be supported not by stakes or poles, but by rising air heated by desert temperatures — pushing its top and sides outward like an inflated balloon.

Such tents would, during the day, be constantly supplied with warm gases of carbon dioxide emitted from factory smoke stacks. At night, when lower temperatures contract these gases, the dome of the tent would partially collapse — pressing down on the air inside to maintain a constant pressure to warm the crops.

This cooling also would cause water vapor developed by plant evaporation and respiration to condense within the tent, creating a constant recycling of water. For that reason, says Bassham, tent farms with enough flexibility to resist strong winds would be ideally suited for desert environments where lack of water and constant evaporation make conventional farming methods impractical.

It also would reduce pollution and recycle materials presently wasted in conventional energy-producing processes, he adds. Pumping carbon dioxide and sulfur dioxide pollutants produced in combustion back into the greenhouse allows plants to convert them into food.

Returning the ashes of burnt plant material to the soil also replenishes all the nutrients except nitrogen, thus excluding the need for many costly fertilizers.

The process appears promising. And inflated, plastic covered greenhouses have already proved successful in the United States and other countries. But such energy farms would require methods and materials so advanced that it may be some time before Bassham's ideas are actually put to use.

Yet, starting out with valuable crops — papaya or flowers, for example — on a smaller scale may provide enough of an economic incentive to develop covered energy farms in a stepwise fashion, Bassham adds.

Business lost friend when Lance resigned

NEW YORK (AP) — The loss of Bert Lance as a budget director with easy access to the Oval Office is deeply disturbing to business leaders suspicious of the Democratic administration.

"I'm tremendously disappointed because he was in a key spot to do more for the business community and the Carter administration than anybody else," J.B. Fuqua, president of the Atlanta-based Fuqua Industries Inc. and a 20-year friend of Lance, said after the budget director resigned.

"I think the business community lost its best friend in the administration."

It was Lance, a longtime friend of Jimmy Carter, who planned to balance the federal budget by 1981 and hold down the minimum wage — two issues dear to most business leaders.

Walter Hoadley, chief economist of the Bank of America, said in San Francisco that business leaders have been warily observing the Carter administration since the inauguration.

"The private sector has been watching the administration and waiting to see what kinds of programs there would be to stimulate the economy, since Democrats are allegedly not friends of

Fear investigation of personal affairs

Good many business executives reluctant to serve Washington

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Long before the Bert Lance affair, a good many business executives were reluctant to serve in Washington. More precisely, they were reluctant to undergo the investigation of their personal affairs.

The fear was at least twofold: They felt the legitimate maneuvering that brought them success in the business world would be made to appear villainous, and they also feared exposure of indiscretions.

But there is at least one other reason, as expressed by Prof. Eugene Jennings, an authority on corporate management who acts as personal adviser, mainly in career counseling, to chairmen and president of blue chip companies.

Said Jennings: "They say it is preposterous that they, whose careers were shaped under the rules of planning, organization and efficiency, should lend their talent to a behemoth of opposite qualities."

As with any group, businessmen if polled aren't likely to speak with one voice, and that might apply especially to bankers, who earlier expressed shock that people might believe overdrafts were a way of doing business.

Inferences of that sort could erode investor confidence, which is the underpinning of the banking system, while also focusing the investigative eye on all banking practices, something the industry desires as little as it does a recession.

Despite the reluctance of business people to serve, there remains some personnel interchange between private and public sectors. This very week, 49 private sector executives began work in government, and 13 government employes in business, as part of the President's executive interchange program.

This is the eighth interchange in the program, whose goal is to improve rapport and cooperation between business and government. The program already has involved nearly 400 middle management executives from government, industry and education.

Still, he maintains, fear inveitably plays a role. "Few chief exeuctives could pass the test put upon Bert Lance," he said in an interview three weeks ago. Everyone has skeletons, he said, and too many people in Washington want to let them out of the closet.

Disappointment, and sometimes anger, was evident in the statements of some businessmen when asked to comment on the day Lance resigned. Some of them had expressed earlier the feeling that whatever faults he had, Lance still was linked in purpose with business goals, especially that of a balanced budget.

It is understandable that some business people like the style and flair of Lance, a "can do" type, a man of purpose and goals who seemed to consume challenges that stood between him and opportunities.

And, like others, they feel that post-Watergate ethics represent an ideal that might be impossible to attain: A perfection in human beings who by their nature are prone to failure.

Some business people point out also that the same ideal of perfection is sought in the technological products of industry, in automobile production, for example, when anything approaching perfection would be unaffordable.

To accomplish its objectives, the program arranges for the private and public sectors to swap executives for one year. Each learns something about the other, and sometimes careers are advanced as well.

Joe Linneman, for example, has won three promotions since completing his interchange assignment as controller for an electronics firm four years ago. He works in the Office of Management and Budget.

Companies which have executives in Washington this year include American Telephone, Equitable Life, General Motors, Sun Co., Pennzoil, Ernst and Ernst (auditors), Xerox, General Electric, IBM and Merrill Lynch.

Jay F. Morris, executive director, states "the program is grooming a cadre of potential leaders for cabinet and senior level appoints of future years."

But even far short of that, he says, "everybody wins."

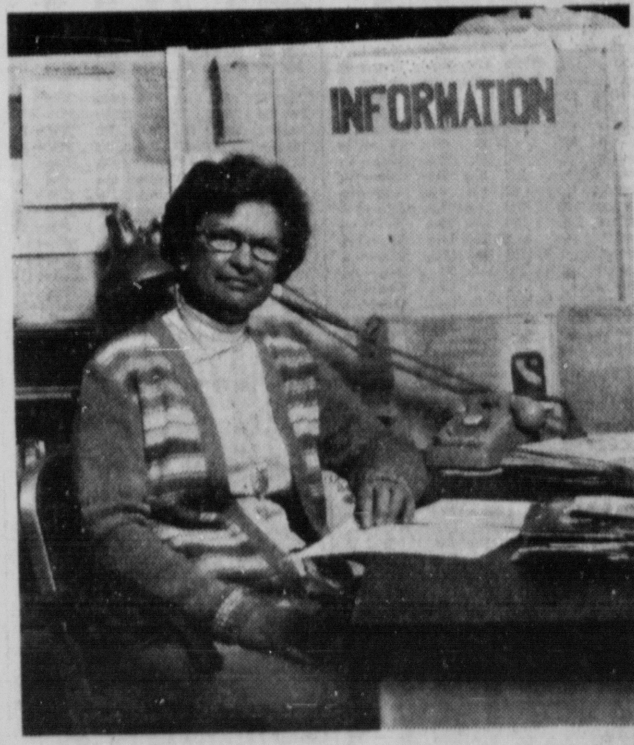
Sometimes.

Longs Drug earnings up

Longs Drug Stores, Inc., a retail drug chain operating 103 stores in California, Hawaii, and Alaska, announced a 10 per cent increase in earnings and a 15 per cent increase in sales for its second quarter ended July 31.

Unaudited earnings for the quarter were $4,764,000 or 45 cents per share against $4,346,000 or 41 cents for the comparable period in 1976. Earnings for the six months ended July 31, were $8,825,000 or 83 cents per share against $8,157,000 or 77 cents for the like 1976 period.

Unaudited net sales for the quarter ended July 31, increased to $130,092,000 from $113,316,000 for the same period in 1976, a 15 per cent increase. Net sales for the six months were $254,297,000 arainst $221,219,000 for the previous year's comparable period, a 15 per cent increase.



"Everyone on our small staff is over 40, but Blue Shield still gave us what we believe is the best plan at the lowest cost. We're very satisfied."

"When we started this office of information and referral in 1974, we looked for a health coverage plan that we felt would be right for us. There are only 8 of us, and we're all over 40, so we didn't think we'd get by without paying a lot of money.

"Blue Shield surprised us by giving us what we wanted at a price we could afford. Since then we've had opportunity to use our coverage and we've been satisfied — we've found them to be fast and thorough, and we don't spend much time filling out forms. That means we have more time to run our program, helping senior citizens." Olga Cole, director of a community service organization, Santa Cruz, California.

GET OFF BERT'S BACK

SHIRT FOR BERT — Former Director of the Office of Management and Budget Bert Lance found support in his home of Calhoun, Ga.

business,'' Hoadley said. He said Lance's access to Carter had been comforting.

''Now the question is: What will the President do to reestablish or reaffirm the relationship in such a way that business feels someone is close to the President who can interpret the private sector?''

Alan Greenspan, a one-time top economic adviser to then-President Gerald Ford and now president of a New York economic consulting firm, said: ''I think that the Lance affair is tragic for him and for the American people. It removes from government an individual who successfully carried the views of the business community to the President.''

Also troubling some business leaders was the effect the investigation of Lance would have on other business people considering government service.

''The whole Lance affair is personally very sad for me, especially when you look well beyond Lance's personal banking habits,'' said William E. Simon, former treasury secretary in the Nixon and Ford administrations and currently a New York consultant.

TWA schedules

Record traffic 'levels' reached

NEW YORK (BW) — Trans World Airlines Inc. flew more scheduled revenue passenger miles in August than any month in its history.

This marks the second straight month TWA has reached record traffic levels.

System scheduled revenue passenger miles in August increased 9.6 per cent compared to August 1976. Domestic revenue passenger miles were up 9.4 per cent and international revenue passenger miles were up 9.8 per cent during the month.

In the first eight months system scheduled revenue passenger miles rose 4.9 per cent — up 3.4 per cent domestically and up 8.3 per cent internationally compared to the like period in 1976.

TWA said its domestic traffic in Auguest grew at a faster rate than the industry because of the stimulus of new promotional fares, while international traffic continued on its year-long upward trend.

TWA operated 7.3 per cent more system scheduled available seat miles in August over August of last year — up 5 per cent domestically and up 12.2 per cent on international routes. In the first eight months system scheduled available seat miles were 5.3 per cent above those in the like period of 1976.

During August TWA's system passenger load factor rose to 64.3 per cent, which was an increase of 1.3 percentage points over August of last year.

Scheduled cargo revenue ton miles declined 2 per cent systemwide — up 1 per cent domestically and down 7.1 per cent internationally in August from the previous August. In the first eight months system scheduled cargo revenue ton miles declined 5.6 per cent from last year's comparable period.

Cucamonga laboratory purchases Oregon firm

Data Design Laboratories in Cucamonga has acquired all of the stock of Custom Systems Associates, Inc. in a cash transaction, said Thomas C. Beiseker, president.

Located in Portland, Ore., the company will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Data-Design Laboratories. James L. Fling will continue in his capacity as president.

Custom Systems Associates, Inc. operates in three key product areas. The Ritch Division designs and manufactures electronic beverage dispensing equipment consisting of portion control and accounting devises for fast food and restaurant installations. Customers include major fast food chains.

The bio-physics division designs and manufactures medical electronics equipment for patient care and monitoring. Major teaching hospitals and universities are among its customers.

LEWIS HOMES—SAN DIMAS, meeting the diverse location needs of many Southern Californians

Hub to many places

San Dimas community ideal 'close-in' location

To large numbers of home buyers, close-in location means nearness to many places.

Such need was expressed by the buyer of a home in San Dimas. He explained that his job is in Orange County, his fondness for sports draws him to the Anaheim Stadium and the Coliseum and his wife can't resist pre-concert dining at the Hollywood Bowl.

The Lewis Homes-San Dimas community fulfills the divergent location needs of Southern Californians by getting them off to a head start wherever their various interests lead them, said Roger G. Lewis, vice-president and director of construction for Lewis Homes.

The single-family residences are nearing completion, with sales now in progress. The homes feature a variety of architectural motifs with cedar shake or wood-shingle roofs.

Refrigerated air-conditioning, ceramic tile entries, wood-burning fireplaces and cultured marble pullman tops are noted in the various residences.

Buyers choose from three- or four-bedroom plans with two baths, family rooms and two or three-car garages. Some plans are designed with walk-in wardrobe closets, inside laundry rooms and kitchen breakfast bars.

Purchase price is said to be another factor attracting buyers, the price ranging from $61,000 to $74,000.

The community centers at Allen Avenue, just east of San Dimas Avenue. It is reached by taking Orange Freeway (57) north to Route 10 Freeway, continuing north on 210 to its junction with Foothill Freeway. From there turn east on Foothill Freeway 30 to San Dimas Avenue, south ¼ mile to Allen Avenue and left to sales information center.

The community centers at Allen Avenue, just east of San Dimas Avenue.

From the San Bernardino Freeway, the route is north on Route 10 Freeway to Foothill Freeway 30, east on Foothill Freeway to San Dimas Avenue, south ¼ mile to Allen Avenue and left to the Lewis Homes sales information center.

Another route, starting from Foothill Freeway, is by exiting at San Dimas Avenue, driving south ¼ mile to Allen Avenue and left to the site.

Orangewood Estates

Montclair 'sales' now under way

Previous sales are under way at Orangewood Estates, a new Westfield Development Company Inc., community of 72 single-family homes in Montclair, announced James Rodgers, owner and president of the Irvine-based building and development firm.

Priced from a low $57,900, the one and two-story homes offer three and four-bedroom, two and 2½ bath arrangements with from 1,402 to 1,828 square feet of living space on estate-size lots.

Sloped ceilings, wood-burning fireplaces with gas lines for log lighteres and family rooms with sliding glass doors for indoor/outdoor living are featured in the homes' living areas.

Color-coordinated kitchens are fully-equipped including gas range with continuous cleaning eye-level double oven, multi-cycle dishwasher, disposal, ceramic tile countertops, double sink, furniture finish ash cabinetry, luminous ceilings, large pantry, and, in most plans, exterior pass-through kitchen window.

Quality construction features include concrete driveways and walks, copper water lines, preparation for central air conditioning, front and rear exterior lighting, underground untilities, smoke detector, weather-stripping on exterior doors, and pre-wiring for telephone and television outlets.

Other features including electric door chimes, custom hardware, decorative lighting fixtures, quality wall-to-wall carpeting or vinyl asbestos flooring throughout, spacious linen closets, two-car garage and front yard landscaping with trees and plants and sprinkler system complete the package of values you will receive in Orangewood Estates.

The 100-shop Montclair Plaza Shopping Center and schools from elementary to post graduate university level are all close to the new community. Nearby recreation facilities include several public and private golf courses, tennis clubs, riding stables and Mt. Baldy Recreation Area.

The onsite sales office, open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., is manned by Stuart Realty of Tustin, exclusive sales agent.

To reach Orangewood Estates, take the Pomona Freeway to the Ramona Avenue exit, go north on Ramona to Howard Street and turn left on Howard. Or from the San Bernardino Freeway, take the Ramona exit south to Howard and right to Orangewood Estates.

Loans

Major Federally regulated mortgage lenders now have to disclose publicly where they make their mortgage loans.

Real estate briefs

Jorgensen to head delegations

Earl Jorgensen, Franchise Director at Herbert Hawkins Realtors, will head his Company's delegation to the 1977 California Association of Realtors Convention in San Diego, October 5-8.

Among others attending the event at the Town & Country Hotel will be Herbert Hawkins, President; Janet Hawkins, Marketing Director; Jim Papararo, General Sales Manager and many managers and sales associates from the firm's 100 offices throughout Southern California who take an active interest in CAR.

Playing host to their associates will be Bob Andrus, Hawkin's San Diego Regional Manager, and Gail Andrus, manager of the Claremont Mesa office.

While attending seminars and convention events, they will also staff a large, professionally constructed booth designed to acquaint CAR members with the many unique Herbert Hawkins programs and promotional campaigns.

The Company's massive advertising program, often seen in this newspaper, has been an award-winner at past conventions and another large display has been entered in this year's competition.

Realtors seminar clinic planned

A seminar clinic sponsored by the Ontario, Upland and Chino Board of Realtors is set for 7 to 10 p.m., Sept. 29, at Chaffey College.

Entitled Real Estate Roundup, the clinic will be in the college cafeteria and there will be no admission fee. The session will be open to the public, with seven topics up for discussion.

Topics and discussion leaders will be Business and Estate Planning, John Coles and David Briggs; Real Estate Exchanges, Wayne Levitt and Micky Muni; Real Estate Syndication, Wayne Landis; Creative Financing, Larry Ades, and Escrow Problems, Gladys Weiss.

Prof. Gilbert Extale of the Business Division faculty here is coordinating the program with the board.

Extale said that Business and Estate Planning will be new to the agenda of this fourth annual clinic. He reported that here the discussion leaders will explore the tax pitfalls of investment planners and the liquidation of estate assets that may confront executors, administrators and heirs.

Southland home sales rated

The South accounted for more than a third of all sales of single-family homes in the United States in 1976, according to the National Association of Realtors. A total of 1.1 million resale transactions were recorded in the region.

Real Estate investment explored

Two programs in the field of real estate investment will be offered by UCLA Extension this fall in the San Gabriel area.

"Basic Real Estate Investing" will meet on Wednesdays, October 5 to November 9, 7 to 10 p.m., at the Glen A. Wilson High School, 16455 E. Wedgeworth Drive, Hacienda Heights. Instructor Maurice Iddings is a realtor and tax attorney.

"Home Buyers Clinic: Buying Residential and Small Income Property" is scheduled for Nov. 5, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Holiday Room, Holiday Inn, 3223 E. Garvey Avenue, West Covina. The instructor is Richard L. Noyes, president, Audited Investment Properties.

Move it with rent a truck

Thinking of moving? Driver magazine has some tips for do-it-yourself movers. Before renting the truck, figure out how much you have to move. Note if you have lots of books, appliances and canned goods. Truck rental companies can give you a good idea of the size truck you'll need from the information you provide. Comparison shop and don't forget to ask about hand trucks, boxes and furniture pads.

1976 home prices listed

In 1976, 40.2 per cent of existing single-family homes sold in the United States sold for prices in the $30,000 to $49,999 range, according to the National Association of Realtors. A total of 31.6 per cent were sold at prices under $30,000; 17.9 per cent commanded prices between $50,000-$69,999; and 10.3 per cent were sold for $70,000 or more.

Never on Sunday

Legislation in 1845 ordered elections in the United States to take place during the first week of November because "harvesting is over then and winter has not yet made the roads impossible." Tuesday was designated instead of Monday because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Landlord homes studied at UCLA

How to go about buying, selling, remodeling, and landlording — or landladying — homes in today's market will be examined at UCLA Extension this fall in four Saturday programs beginning in October.

"Selling Your Home in a Seller's Market" will focus on pre-selling strategy and an understanding of the kinds of sale mechanics that can increase the seller's net proceeds. The seminar will meet Saturday, October 1, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences Building.

"Remodeling Your Home: Getting the Best For Less," a seminar exploring how to make remodeling work in terms of cost effectiveness and added value, is scheduled for Saturday, October 25, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences Building, UCLA.

"Home Buyers Clinic: Residential and Small Income Property" will chart a path for the non-professional investor to buy right and avoid surprises, and will meet Saturday, October 22, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 1200 Rolfe Hall, UCLA.

"Landlording for Do-It-Yourself Landlords and Landladies" will present the technical and human side of managing apartments, together with a recipe for more profits with less effort and a clear conscience. The seminar will meet Saturday, December 3, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in 5200 Math Sciences, UCLA.

Housing boom spreading across nation; hot spots listed

The housing boom is getting spread around. The rest of the country is catching up to California.

In a list of major markets which will have record single-family production this year, the Midwest, South, Mountain region and Pacific Northwest are represented as well as California.

Of the half-dozen hottest single-family markets on a per-capita basis, only two now are from California.

This patter bodes well for a second half of housing activity even stronger than the first and for a 1977 total of 2 million starts or better.

And there is enough backlog of demand to support an equally good year in 1978, though a shortage of lots and a lack of water loom as future problems in some markets.

These are findings of Advance Mortgage Corporation's current quarterly survey, "U.S. Housing Markets," which compares housing trends in 17 major markets and the U.S. Advance Mortgage is a subsidiary of Citicorp.

ALL HOT

"The boom is no longer as lopsided regionally as last year or even this spring," says Advance Mortgage president Robert J. Mylod.

"The once-feverish demand in California has been subdued to merely very strong. At the same time, single-family demand is still rising in most of the other markets we survey, especially in the Midwest and Mountain regions. It is in balance with sales at a high level in the Southern markets.

"Not just in California but in a dozen major markets from Washington, D.C. to Seattle, good tracts in moderate price ranges sell out in three months or less, often before models can be roofed in or literature printed.

"It is indicative of this year's regional balance that Los Angeles-Orange County, which has a deserved reputation as a hot market, ranks at the bottom in single-family markets not generally thought of as booming, such as Atlanta and Minneapolis-St. Paul, are twice as hot as L.A.-Orange."

The hottest single-family markets in the first half were, in order of rank: Riverside-San Bernardino, Phoenix, Houston, Denver, San Diego and Seattle.

Markets that should set new single-family records this year include this group plus Minneapolis-St. Paul.

U.S. single-family starts rose from an annual rate of 1,394,000 in the first quarter to 1,450,000 in the second. "U.S. Housing Markets" projects a rate of at least 1,500,000 over the next two quarters.

A pickup in apartment starts, especially in the federally-subsidized sector, is expected to raise the second half rate of total starts to 2 million-plus, compared to the 1,905,000 of the first half.

DOWN TO REAL DEMAND

"The leveling off in California," Mylod points out, "does not reflect any great change in basic demand. Homes over $100,000 now require harder selling, but there are still campouts, lotteries and auctions at many new tracts in the lower price ranges. The significant difference is that much — not all — of the speculative component has been squeezed out of the market.

"This has been largely the achievement of the state's lending institutions, with strong leadership from the San Francisco Home Loan Bank. They began last spring to impose higher down payments and interest rates — premiums up to 1 per cent — to identifiable non-occupant buyers.

"This is the first time, to our knowledge, that lenders have confronted a dangerous market situation before it turned into the forseeable bust. Speculation however dies out hard and there is still room for concern."

BALANCE AMONG SECTORS

This year's market is also moving into a better balance between sectors, the Advance survey notes. Some 30 per cent of the second half starts should be multifamily, the highest ratio since 1974, through still far short of the 38 per cent average of the past decade.

Condos are selling well again, even in resale. (Except in Philadelphia and Atlanta; their inventories are several years away from cleanup.) Inventories in several markets are close to zero. Conversions are resuming on a massive scale — Houston projects 13,000 this year. Almost every market has some new projects and in Chicago, Texas and California the numbers are significant.

NOW, REHAB

Rehab is becoming a significant sector in many markets. It is the only bright sector in Boston where Skid Row blocks of 100-year-old housing are being turned into $60,000 units. Even more significant is the trend in New York where space no longer viable for commercial use is being converted to housing, often to more exciting units than are available in standard apartments. There are so many conversions of loft buildings that once-depressed market is visibly tightening.

THE BIG GAINERS

There have been especially strong upturns this year in the Dallas apartment market, running double last year's first half, and in all sectors of the Phoenix market, which will approximately double last year's totals. The Phoenix trend appears to be only beginning. Offerings of individual lots, in which buyers must commit to build within one or two years, are sold out in an afternoon.

Only a couple of major markets are building at rates that appear to be unsustainable. In Houston, multifamily permits increased to an annual rate of 40,000 in the second quarter, compared to an absorption rate of 20,000. San Diego is one California market which has not leveled off. Moratoriums covering some 25 per cent of its buildable land continue to heat it up.

LOT FAMINE

"The major concerns in next year's market and in what remains of this year's," says Mylod, "relate not to demand but to shortages and costs.

"Lots are scarce and increasingly expensive in all but a few markets. Some have appreciated 25 per cent in a year. In the larger markets few good lots are available under $18,000, almost compelling a $70,000 home. In Chicago, single-family lots command the same prices as multifamily land.

"Only Denver and San Diego have restrictions which affect the supply of buildable land. The explanation, rather, is that land developers could not forsee the current sales pace and that environmental requirements, especially severe in California, have lengthened the lead time for new development to as much as 18 months, even two years.

"It is not likely that even next year many starts will be lost for a lack of lots. (Except, probably, in San Diego and Denver.) But the supply of lots will be bid up, adding one more cost pressure to an already too costly product."

The one bright note in the lot supply picture comes from the Washington, D.C. market. Sewer moratoriums which covered the Maryland half of that market for the past five years were lifted in July.

One byproduct of the lot shortage is that smaller builders in many areas are being forced out of the market or forced into development risks they can ill afford. Increasingly, developers are turning builders also, if they are not already, and holding their lots for their own use.

The most important ingredient, mortgage money, should remain in ample supply next year, says Mylod, though rates will probably be somewhat higher.

State opens new office in real estate crackdown

LOS ANGELES — As part of its stepped up enforcement program against unscrupulous and dishonest real estate licensees, the California Department of Real Estate officially opened a new branch office in Santa Ana recently to provide service directly for Orange and Riverside County residents.

"The new office (located in Room 324 of the State Building, 28 Civic Center Plaza) will mean increased consumer protection and better enforcement through closer community contact with consumers and licensees," Real Estate Director David H. Fox stated. "While many licensees are honest and do a good job, there are some who cheat innocent victims in real estate transactions through misleading and fradulent practices."

Fox noted that the Department annually receives over 14,000 public inquiries and more than 1,000 complaints concerning real estate transaction and licensee activities from Orange and Riverside County residents.

William H. Wall, Chief Deputy Commissioner in charge of the Santa Ana office, explained that "Orange and Riverside Counties comprise one of the state's fastest growing areas with over 1½ million residents and more than 60,000 real estate licensees." Wall urged anyone aware of possible dishonest or fraudulent activities by licensees to immediately contact his office so appropriate investigatory and disciplinary actions may be taken.

In addition to examining license applicants and policing the professional conduct of brokers and salespersons, the DRE also approves newly subdivided property for public sale, issues comprehensive public reports on the new property detailing vital consumer information, and conducts numerous statewide consumer education programs.

Fox encouraged individuals, prior to buying or selling a house or raw land, to stop by the office and pick up available informational consumer education brochures.

The new Santa Ana location joins existing DRE offices in San Diego, Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco and Sacramento.

Real estate loan volume takes jump in August

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Financial Federation Inc., Los Angeles-based holding company for 11 California savings and loan associations, reported that real estate loan volume in August was 45 per cent higher than in the like month of 1976.

For the first eight months of 1977, loan volume surpassed the previous year by 46 per cent.

The company's total new loan volume in August was $55.1 million, compared to $37.9 million a year ago. For the first eight months, total loans of $427.5 million set a record for any similar period. This compares with $292.7 million for the first eight months of 1976.

"During the first eight months of this year, total savings deposits increased $156 million, a 21 per cent gain over last year's record for the same period of $128.4 million," he said. "As of Aug. 31, total deposits were $1.724 billion, compared to $1.489 billion a year ago.

"With a total loan portfolio balance of $1.755 billion at the end of August, it is clear that we are more than achieving our goal of converting all savings dollars that come into our institutions into home loans. This is the historic role of a savings and loan organization, and we are pleased that our company is able to demonstrate the uniqueness of our industry among financial institutions."

Moves lawn to new town over higher water rates

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — When city officials here imposed higher water rates to cut down water usage during the dry summer months, Jim Sloggett found a way to keep his lawn green. He moved it to a different town.

When the council last month boosted the water rates, Sloggett figured out his bill for keeping the grass green would go from $15 to $43.

So he got a sod cutter, removed his lawn and transplanted it to land he rented in the nearby towns of Clifton and Orchard, where cheaper water rates will keep his bill at about $15.

It was not known whether he had any plans to return the lawn to Grand Junction this fall.

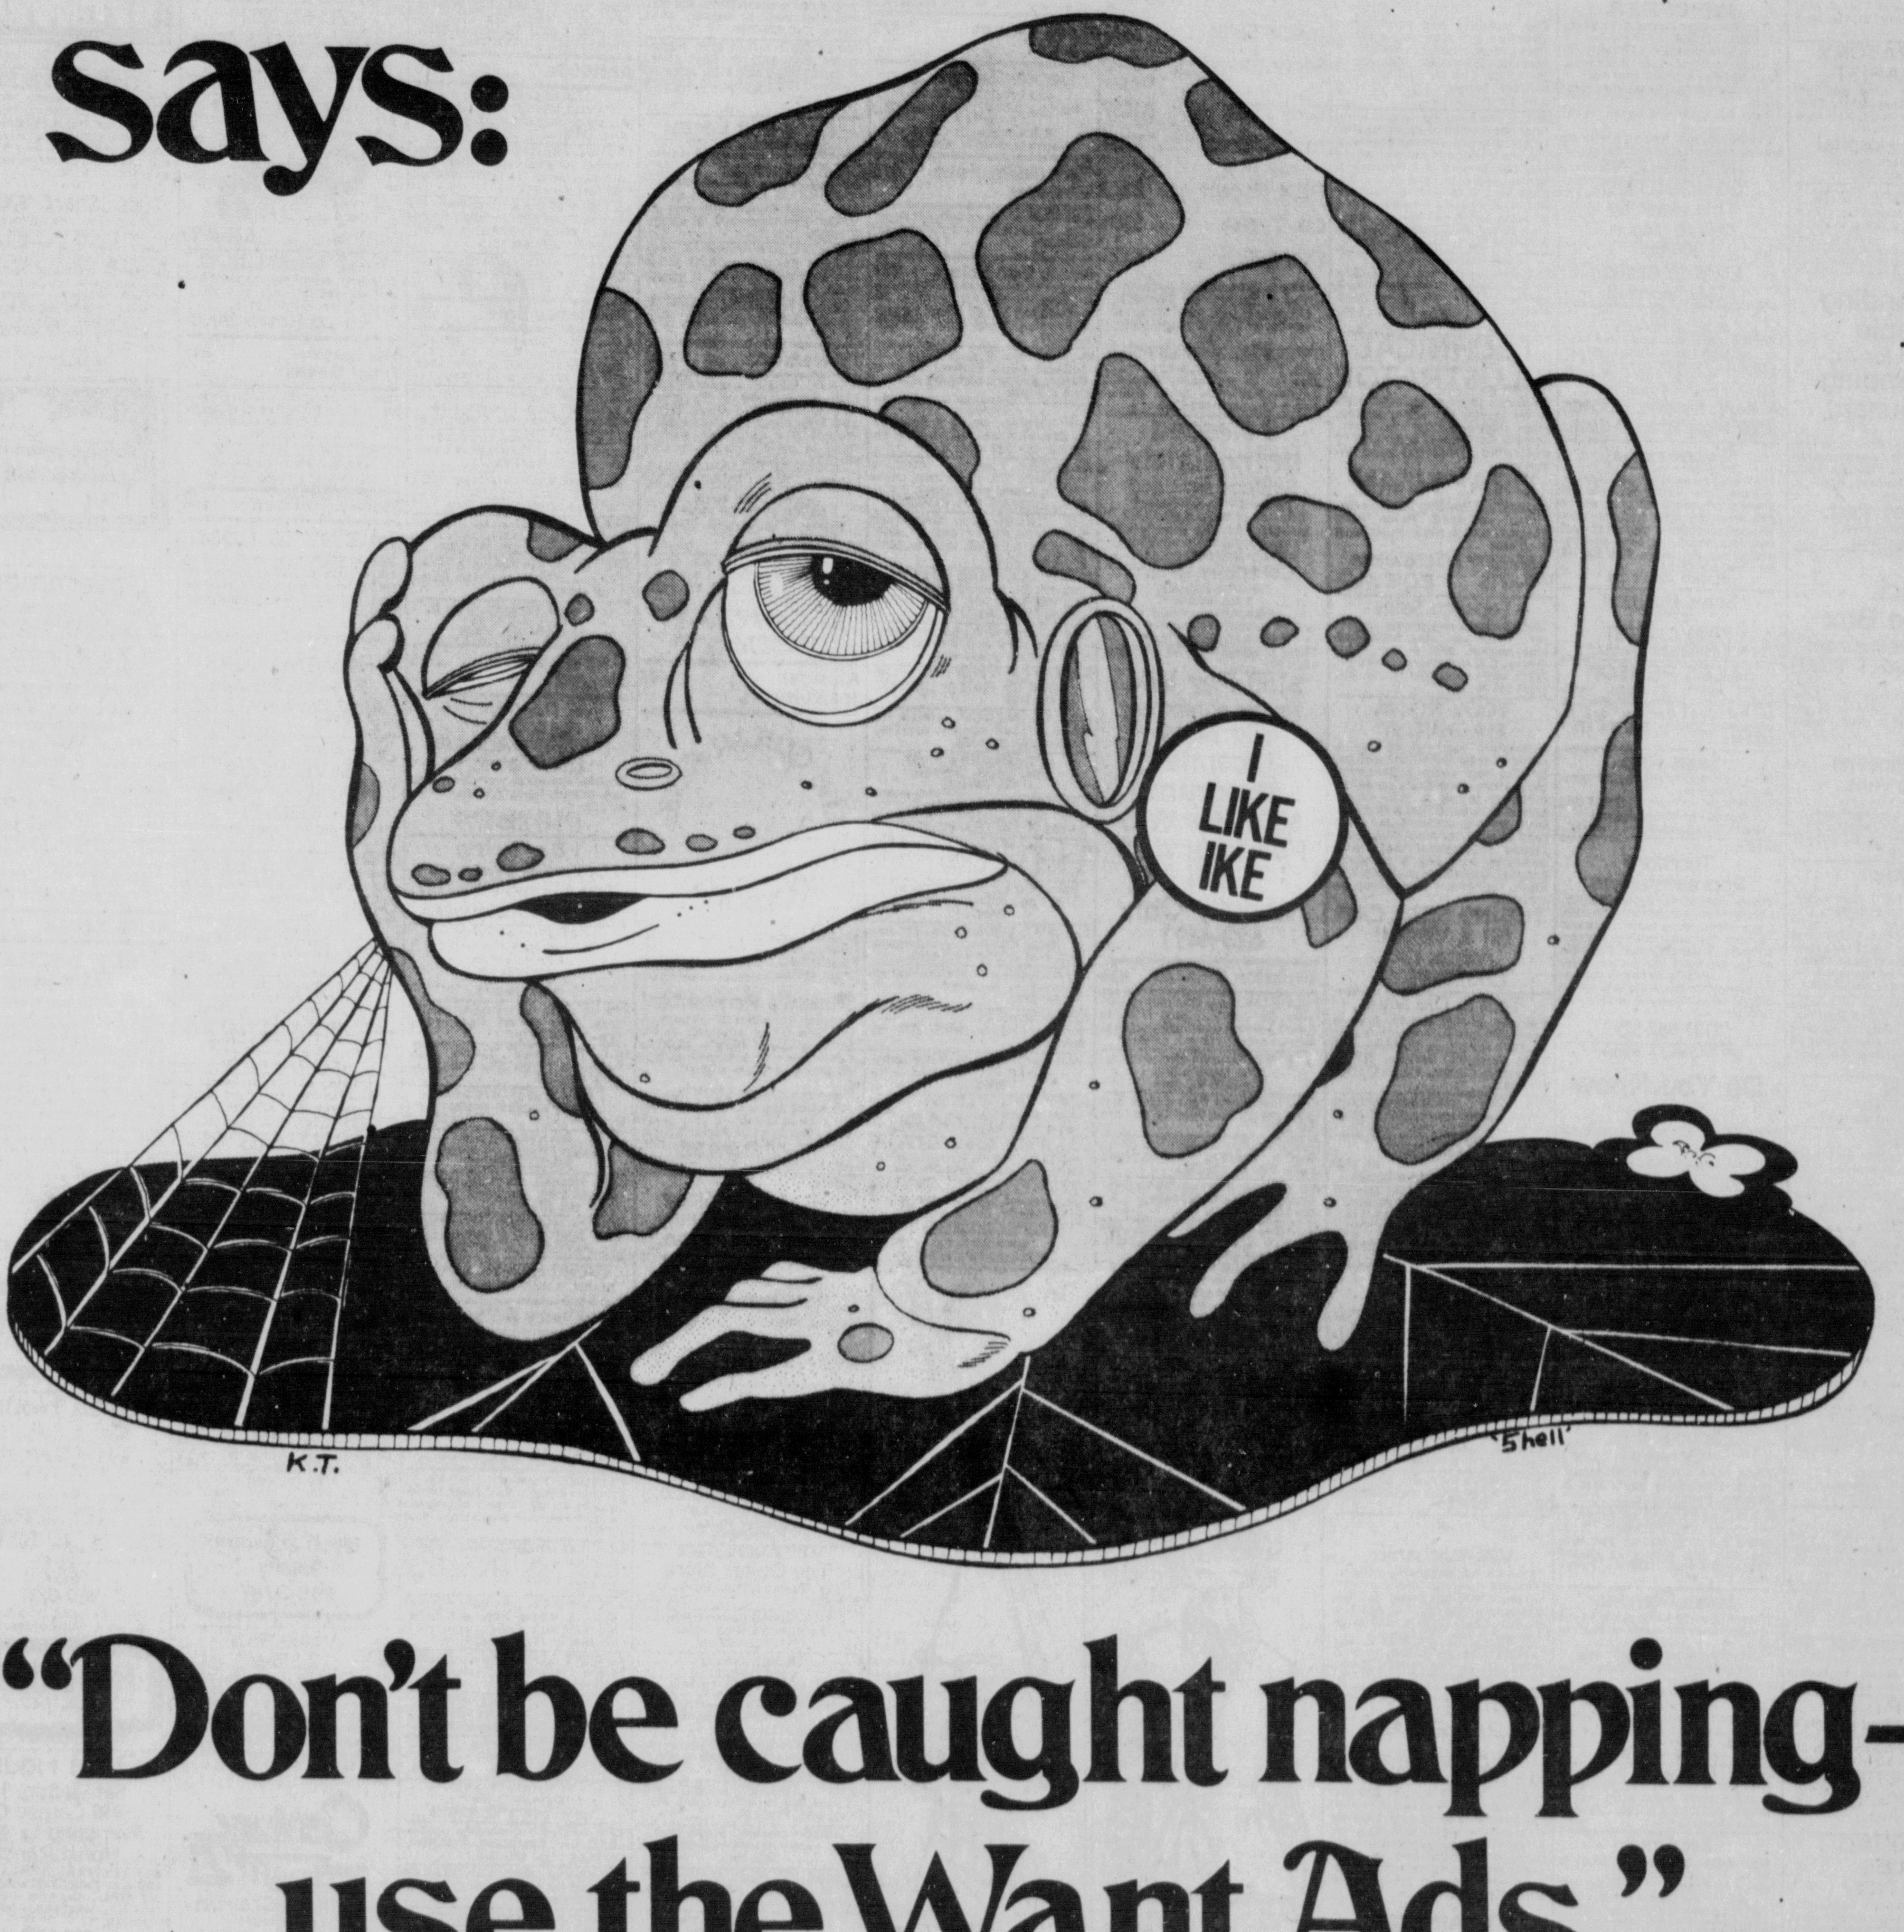
Rip Van Ribbit says:



"Don't be caught napping-use the Want Ads."

"I shouldn't have taken that second sleeping pill," croaked Rip Van Ribbit as he opened one bleary eye. "I'd better hop over to Lily's pad for a cup of coffee and catch up on what's new."

Halfway across the pond he ran into his old friend, Phil O'Dendron. "Hi Ya, Phil," he rasped. "How's Rhoda? You look terrible. Been sick or somethin'?"

"Rip!" exclaimed Phil. "Where in the bulrushes have you been hiding? And what's with the 'I Like Ike' button?"

"Just overslept," said Rip. "You oughta do something about those wrinkles."

"You sound kinda hoarse, Rip."

"Probably got a person in my throat. Have you seen Lily White?"

"Boy, you HAVE been out of it. Lily moved to the Everglades. Had a big house-cleaning and sold a lot of stuff in the Want Ads. Real estate fella got her a great price on her house and she also found a good reliable car for the trip. You know, in spite of all the changes, those Want Ads still do the same old great job."

"What changes?" croaked Rip.

Want Ads — Good Things That Never Change

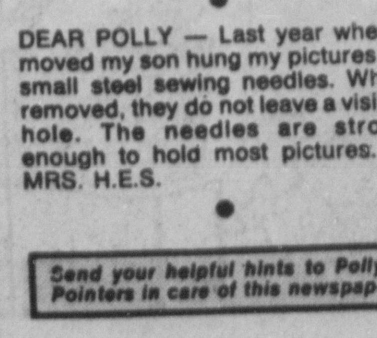
Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Each night I put in the oven the plates, cups and saucers that will be used for breakfast. The pilot light keeps them warm. The bacon and eggs retain their heat much longer when placed on a plate taken from a warm oven. — LUCILE.



© 1977 by NEA, Inc.

●

DEAR POLLY — Last year when I moved my son hung my pictures on small steel sewing needles. When removed, they do not leave a visible hole. The needles are strong enough to hold most pictures. — MRS. H.E.S.

●

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When I have trouble opening one of those pill bottles that says "Push down and turn," I tap it smartly around the top with the handle of a knife and then let hot water run on the lid and around it for a few seconds and then it will open easily. — MAE.

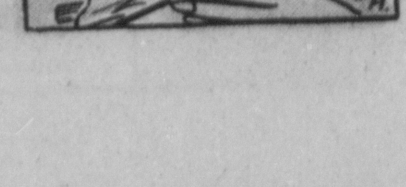
POLLY'S NOTE: Take care to hold bottle so that no water can seep in to spoil the medication.

●

DEAR POLLY — When I crochet I keep a medium-size safety pin fastened to one handle of my scissors. When the work is put down this pin is slipped through the last stitch in my work (after I remove the crochet needle), so there is no danger of that last stitch slipping out. — MRS. J.R.K.

●

DEAR POLLY — I line my vanity and bathroom drawers with small guest towels that never get used. These towels collect a lot of toothpaste, make-up and such, while cutting down on the noise made by these articles being dropped in the drawer.—PAULA S.



GUEST TOWEL
E.H.

DEAR POLLY — When a dog has puppies a plain old box can get very messy. Try using a young child's plastic swimming pool with newspapers covering the bottom. This makes it easy to clean up puppy messes and makes a perfect, leakproof bed (indoors or out). There is enough room for a large litter and the mother, too. — MARTHA.

9-25

●

DEAR POLLY — It is a great help when doing outside painting to use an aluminum ladder with round hollow pipes for the rungs. You can put a broom handle through the hole in a ladder rung and then put the bail of the paint bucket on this handle. As your painting progresses, move the handle down or up to a more convenient rung. — LETHO.

●

DEAR POLLY — When I want to take a picture of a baby I give the youngster a piece of gummed plastic tape, and snap away as the baby tries to remove the tape from his fingers. — MRS. C.H.B.

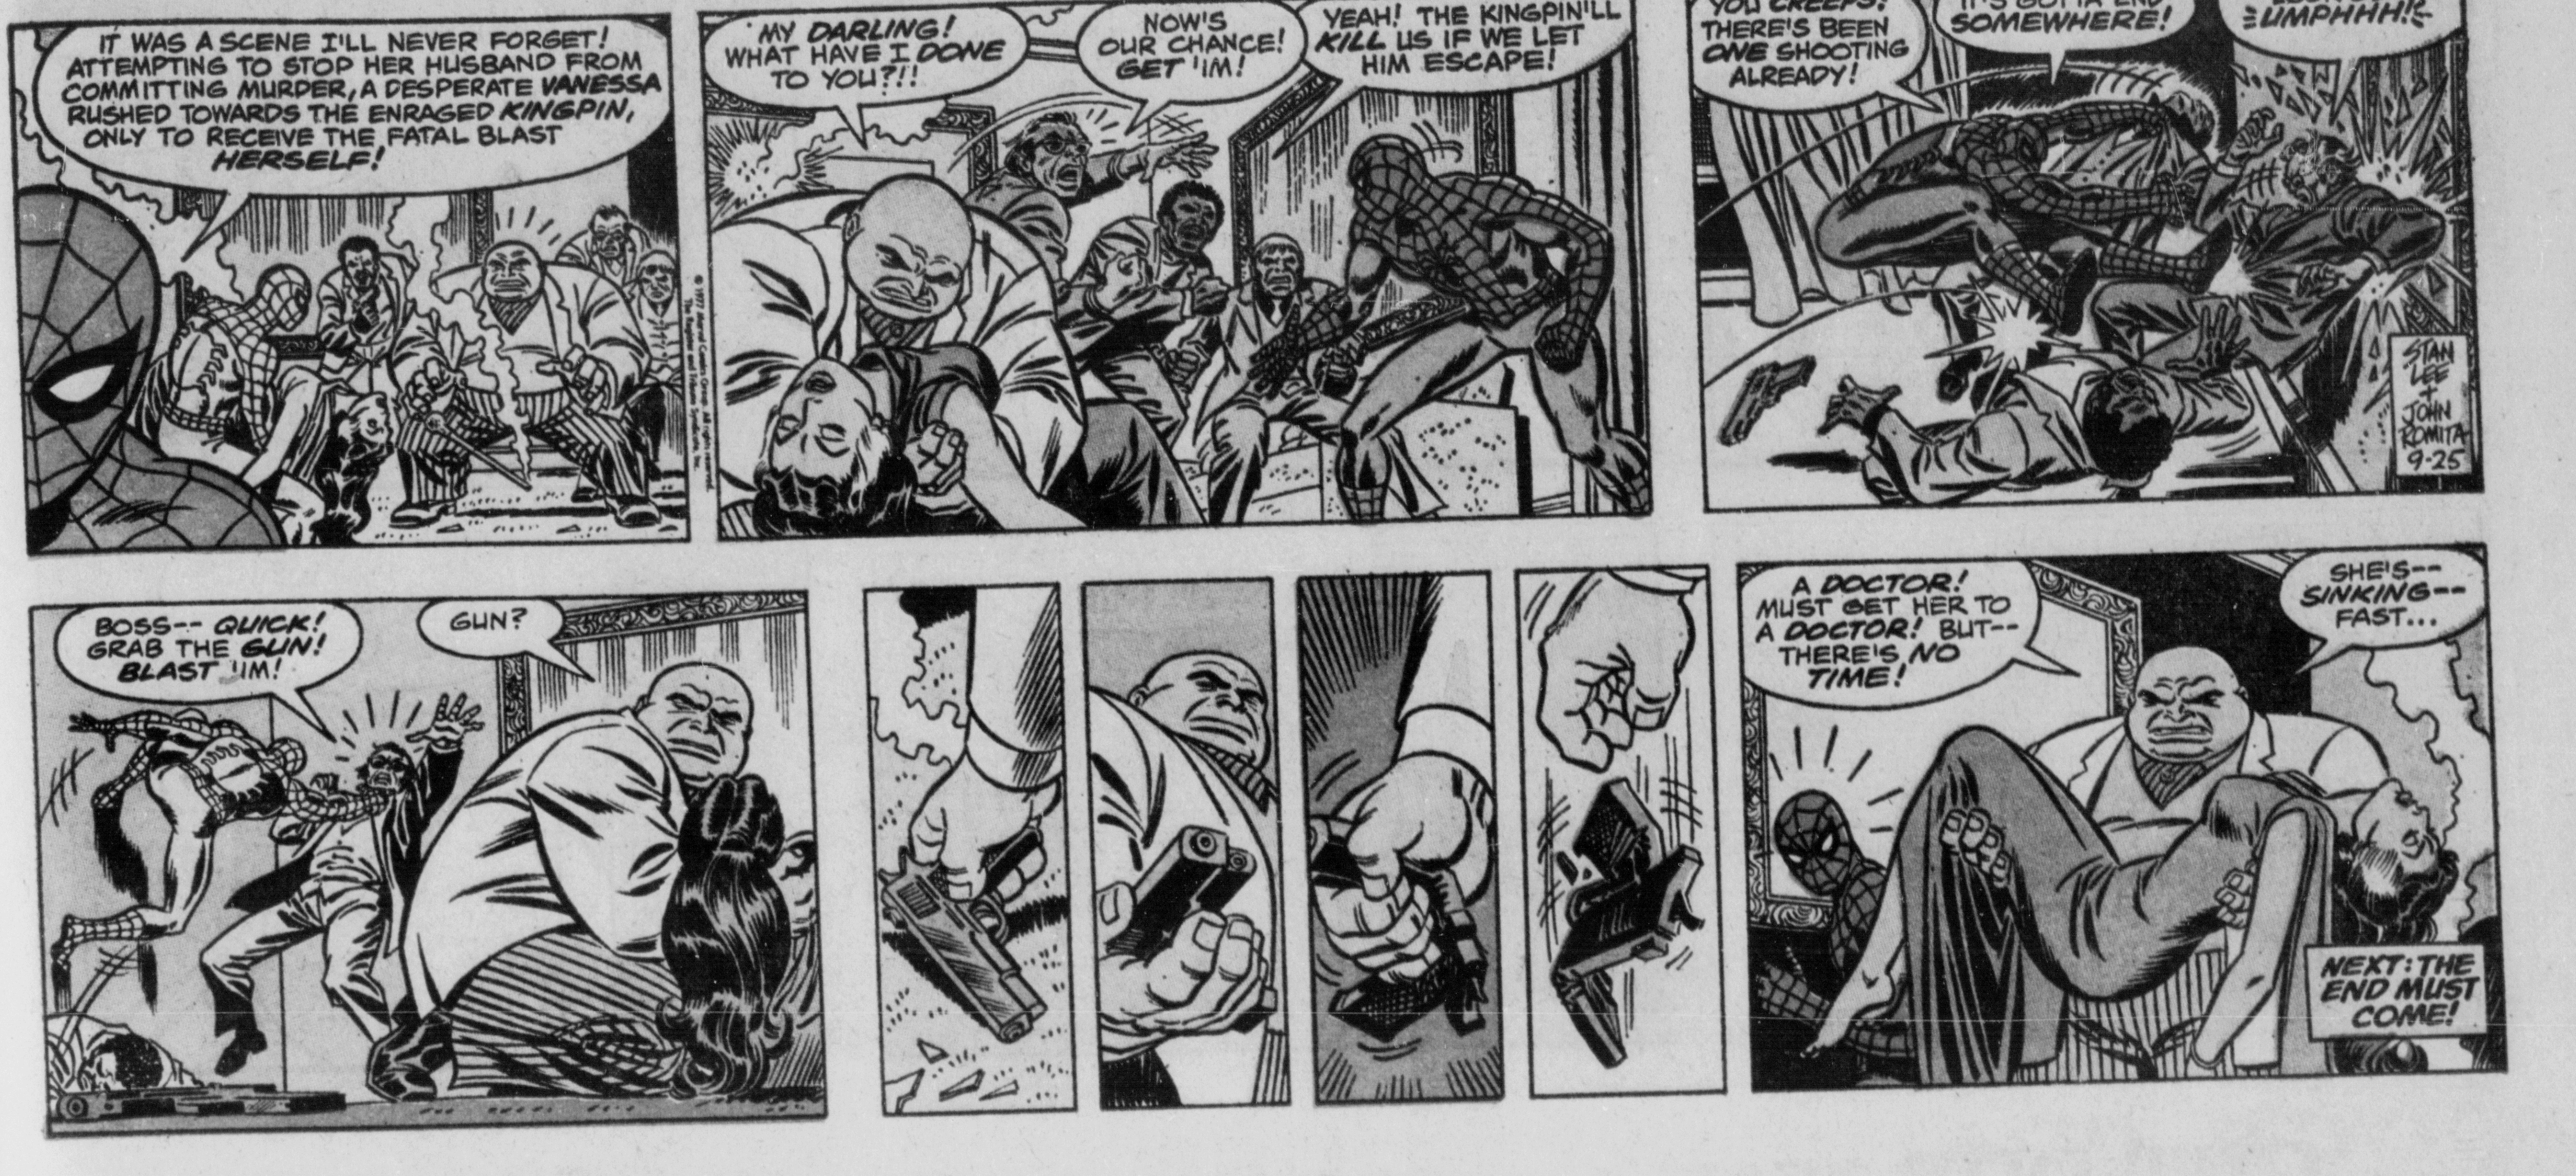
the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN®

By Stan Lee and John Romita



IT WAS A SCENE I'LL NEVER FORGET! ATTEMPTING TO STOP HER HUSBAND FROM COMMITTING MURDER, A DESPERATE VANESSA RUSHED TOWARDS THE ENRAGED KINGPIN, ONLY TO RECEIVE THE FATAL BLAST HERSELF!
MY DARLING! WHAT HAVE I DONE TO YOU?!!
NOW'S OUR CHANCE! GET 'IM!
YEAH! THE KINGPIN'LL KILL US IF WE LET HIM ESCAPE!
YOU CREEPS! THERE'S BEEN ONE SHOOTING ALREADY!
IT'S GOTTA END SOMEWHERE!
LOOK OU--- UMPHHH!!

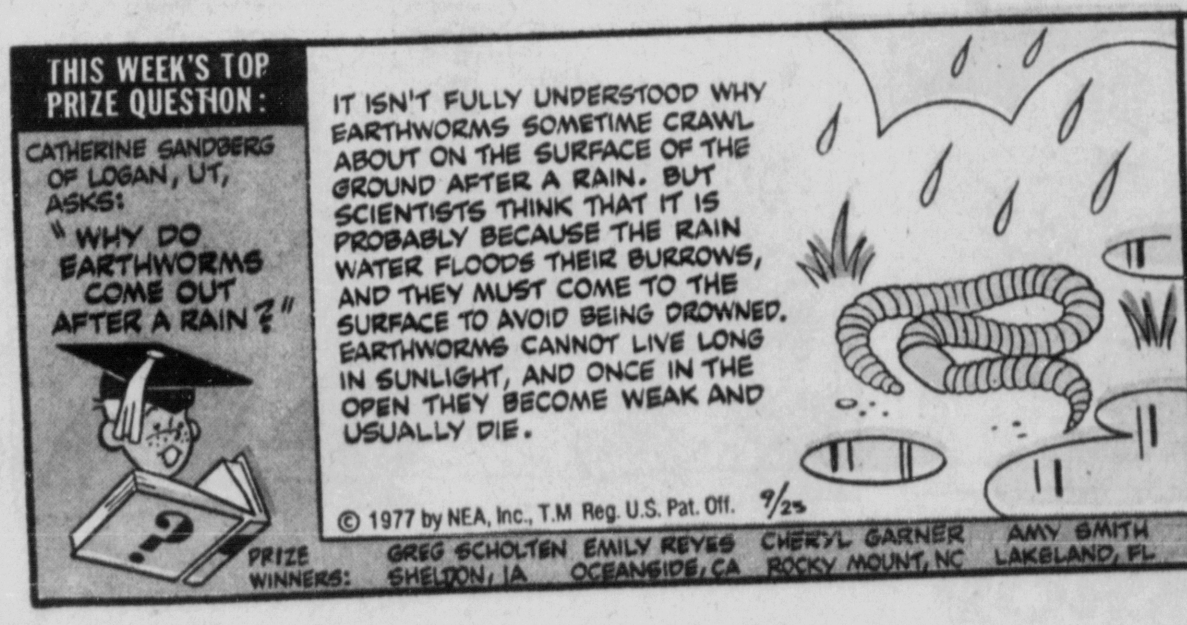
IMAGINE THAT...

PROBABLY ONE OF THE LOUDEST NOISES EVER HEARD BY HUMAN EARS WAS THE VOLCANIC ERUPTION OF MT. KRAKATOA, IN 1883. THIS MIGHTY EXPLOSION WAS HEARD 3,000 MILES AWAY.



THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

IT ISN'T FULLY UNDERSTOOD WHY EARTHWORMS SOMETIME CRAWL ABOUT ON THE SURFACE OF THE GROUND AFTER A RAIN. BUT SCIENTISTS THINK THAT IT IS PROBABLY BECAUSE THE RAIN WATER FLOODS THEIR BURROWS, AND THEY MUST COME TO THE SURFACE TO AVOID BEING DROWNED. EARTHWORMS CANNOT LIVE LONG IN SUNLIGHT, AND ONCE IN THE OPEN THEY BECOME WEAK AND USUALLY DIE.

When the parents of a young woman learn there is no chance for their daughter to recover from her comatose condition, they determine to remove her destiny from the hands of medical science and place it in the hands of God—encountering unexpected medical and legal opposition along the way—in the NBC World Premiere Movie "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan," Monday at 9PM. Based on the headline-making case of a young New Jersey woman who lapsed into a coma at age 21, the drama stars Brian Keith, Piper Laurie, David Huffman, Stephanie Zimbalist, David Spielberg, Biff McGuire, Louise Latham and Bryon Morrow.

Burt Reynolds, who was slated for a football career with the Baltimore Colts until a knee injury ended those plans, stars as a jailed ex-superstar quarterback who mobilizes his fellow convicts for a gridiron battle against their oppressive prison guards in "The Longest Yard," the ABC Sunday Night Movie at 9PM. Also starring are Eddie Albert as a sly and sinister prison warden, and Ed Lauter as a mean guard captain. Michael Conrad portrays a fellow inmate and veteran footballer who assists Reynolds with his team, and Jim Hampton is a lovable con whose resourceful good nature proves to be his tragic downfall.

Alan Alda stars as Caryl Chessman, California's notorious "red light bandit," who spent 12 years on death row before being executed. The story is retold in "Kill Me If You Can," a fact-based movie on NBC, Sunday at 9PM. Chessman was arrested and charged with robbery, rape and murder in the late 40s. He was accused of simulating a police car by covering his car's spotlight with red cellophane and approaching victims parked on lovers lanes. Chessman studied law in prison and became an expert lawyer, which was helpful in his battle to avoid the gas chamber. Talia Shire co-stars as attorney Rosalie Asher, who aided Chessman in his long ordeal. After eight stays of execution, he lost his final appeal.

KABC-TV MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE

abc 9:00 PM ⑦

Fred, the unflappable cockatoo, who plays Tony Baretta's roommate in ABC's Baretta, recently was awarded the Grand Patsy (for best animal or fowl actor) for the second consecutive year.

When a visitor to the Baretta set asked him about his reaction to the honor, Fred's response was atypical silence. His interpreter, series star Robert Blake, explained: "That means I ain't got no squawk."

For most of the last five years actress Barbara Parkins has been living in England. Now, however, she is spending most of her time in Hollywood working in television productions. In "Young Joe, The Forgotten Kennedy," a motion picture being filmed for ABC, she co-stars with Peter Strauss. "I left Hollywood because everything in both films and television was so bad," she admitted. "Just recently, though, there has been a change. I have done three television productions in a row and they have all been excellent. I think the tide is turning."

COVER CLOSE-UP

NEW TERRITORY

The popular "I'd rather be sailing" bumper sticker would have been appropriate for Australian-born actor Rod Taylor had NBC not decided to put Taylor on the fall schedule this season as the star of The Oregon Trail, TV's first new Western series in some years. "I had just bought a boat and was planning to go sailing for an extended period and try my new toy," Taylor said, his head shaking with incredulity. "But NBC wanted me to do the series, so here I am, riding horses, breathing in the dust and basking in the hot sun.

"But I'm a gambler and I really believe in this TV project. Our series is a sophisticated show featuring authentic history to the backdrop of beautiful scenery," Taylor added.

Taylor, a popular television star (Hong Kong and The Bearcats) and motion picture star ("The Birds," "Hotel," and "Sunday in New York"), portrays Evan Thorpe who reluctantly but successfully takes on the difficult task of wagon master of NBC's The Oregon Trail on Wednesday (9-10PM).

Taylor, in real life colorful, outspoken and respected by his peers, has played western heroes before, but none such as Evan Thorpe.

"He's gentle, he cannot read and write, he's moral and insists on prayers in the evening." Taylor said. "I think that's contrapuntal to the Rod Taylor who can ride and shoot and fight. I think that's useful, frankly.

"If he were a straight-out, big, tough boss of the trail, it would be a bore. I think he's far removed from John Wayne. He's a stumbling, bumbling, shy man who, when the chips are down, will save your life," the actor added.

With his three motherless children—17-year-old Andy, played by Andrew Stevens (son of Stella Stevens); 12-year-old William portrayed by Tony Becker; and 10-year-old Rachel, acted by Gina Marie Smika—Evan Thorpe, a widower, moves from his Illinois farm hoping to better himself and his family in the new territory of Oregon.

The series, set in the mid-19th century, when Oregon fever raged across the eastern United States, also stars Darleen Carr as wagon train teacher Margaret Devlin, an independent young woman who is attracted to the strong, courageous character of Evan Thorpe; and Charles Napier as the wagon train's scout and guide, taciturn mountain man Luther Sprague.

The weekly series dramatizes the epic journey from Independence, Mo. to the Willamette Valley in Oregon, as the pioneers struggle against the elements to reach what they pray will be the promised land.

The efforts of NBC and Universal Studios have combined to make this expensive television project authentic and realistic with the entire filming taking place in Flagstaff, Ariz.

"We settled on Flagstaff because it approximates the actual barren wasteland that the pioneers encountered on the way to Oregon," according to creator and executive producer Michael Gleason. "The Flagstaff area is gorgeous with its beautiful plains, streams, lakes, rivers, deserts and mountains. The scenery will be as varied and lush as in any television series you'll see."

"However, the scenic background is only the backdrop to this series," Gleason cautioned. "The people is what this series is about. Evan Thorpe and his family are the microcosm of the people who represent the emigrant spirit—the pioneer spirit that settled the country. All this is embodied in Evan and his family and that's what our series dramatizes."

Each week's episode depicts the wagon train's arduous journey across the unknown wasteland while dramatizing the Thorpe family's relationships with the other members of the pioneer train struggling through emotional upheavals brought on by the inhuman difficulties on the trail.

The Oregon Trail offers a series of dramas unique in television: family drama with all the warmth, love, conflict and humor played in a world of high adventure, grueling hardships and the gravest jeopardy. Romance one day is brought up against the extreme jeopardy of natural disaster the next. Children's play must give way to extraordinary efforts to survive—and the children resume their play.

Andrew Stevens, son of actress Stella Stevens, has his first series role as Rod Taylor's son.

Tony Becker and Gina Marie Smika portray the younger son and daughter.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D.-Wis.)

What is being done to interest young men in the space program? —D.B., Lima, Ohio

● NASA has reopened the training program for astronauts, and there is great interest in it. But the question should be: how do we get more young women interested in the space program? NASA has been woefully inadequate in attracting and training women and minorities. It has promised to do better, but only time will tell.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of Family Secrets

Do you have any special idiosyncrasies when you write — such as sitting in a certain way at a special desk? —S.S., Little Rock, Ark.

● No. Probably because when I started, I knew a writer who had to wear a special old sweater for inspiration when she worked. I got put off by that. She also was a lousy writer, and I haven't heard of her for years. Maybe she washed the sweater.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

● Absolutely! If she does, she must bear in mind the awful possibility that she might not be able to dance as long as he can.

FOR PEGGY WILLIAMS, first woman graduate of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Clown College

What got you interested in the circus, and how did you become a clown? —S.R., Torrance, Calif.

● After I graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a degree in special education, I wanted to communicate with my students in a unique way. Pantomime seemed to be the answer — it is visual and imaginative. I had great success with this method. Then I noticed an ad for the Clown College in a Florida newspaper. Although 5,000 people applied, to my astonishment, I was one of the 50 accepted. That was seven years ago.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

● Bennett claims it's because he works 45 weeks a year and sings songs that don't become dated. ("At my age," says the 51-year-old performer, "I can't be 'with it.'") He doesn't get bored on stage and continues to be influenced by his early mentors — Astaire, Sinatra, Crosby, Ella Fitzgerald, Peggy Lee. He attributes his success to the fact that he records good songs, not cheap ones: "In this age of the ripoff, some feel the public will buy and listen to anything. I don't agree."

FOR BILLIE JEAN KING

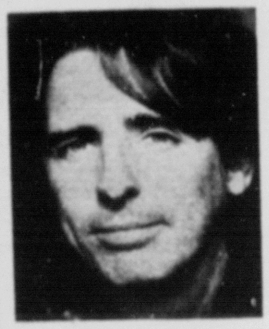
● When the child shows inclination. It all depends on the child. If a 2-year-old drags a tennis racquet around the house because his parents play or because he wants to emulate what he saw on TV, that's the time. Same thing with a 10-year-old. You must not push, however. You can get the child interested by showing him what goes on at the courts, but putting a racquet in his hand doesn't mean he'll take to it as a duck takes to water. Desire must come from the child, not the parent.



FOR ALICE COOPER, rock singer

Do your snakes require special handling? —F.M., Allentown, Pa.

● Ever since I was a kid I've been around snakes, so handling them is no problem. I trained my crew on how to care for Angel (my new snake), especially when we're traveling. Although they can all attend to Angel, there's one person exclusively assigned to Snake Duties. Snakes aren't as frightening as they appear to be — once you get to know them.

FOR ROBYN SMITH, jockey

Is it true you try to discourage other women from becoming jockeys? —Violet Pavelec, Waterloo, Iowa

● To the contrary, I encourage women to try and do anything in life they want to. I just warn them of the hard work involved and the fact that they must not give up when they get discouraged — which happens to all of us once in a while.

FOR IRMA BACHARACH, mother of composer Burt

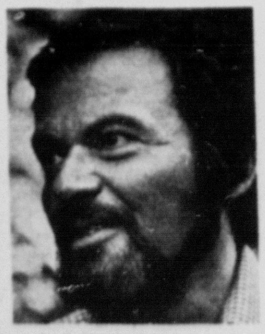
● When he was 7, we were in a restaurant, and I was drilling him on etiquette and good manners. Just as our entrée was served, I saw a friend approaching from the other end of the room. I said to Burt, "When this lady comes and talks to us, Daddy will stand up and you must, too." Burt stood up — but continued eating (I'd forgotten to say he should stop eating while he stood) and managed the incredible feat of eating spaghetti and shaking hands at the same time.



FOR MAURICE SENDAK, children's writer and illustrator

Where do you get all your ideas from? How did you learn to draw so well? —L.S., Walnut Creek, Calif.

● I have no idea where my ideas come from — except for the fact that those ideas, or images, as I'd rather call them, are always there and were always there. They are fragments of feelings — flashes of pictures — that have lived with me from earliest childhood. Occasionally, one of those fragments will blossom and bloom into a finished work. None of my ideas are new. They are my oldest friends — and even enemies.

PRO AND CON

Should The Government Subsidize Olympic Athletes?

PRO Kenny Moore, 1968, 1972 Olympic marathoner

Yes. When East Germany, a nation the size of Ohio, wins more Olympic medals than the U.S., it means it has given its athletes better coaching and medical help plus more time to train. To be a world-class gymnast, wrestler, rower, fencer, swimmer or weightlifter requires so much single-minded effort that it is extremely difficult to hold down a job and train properly. It's not fair to the athlete or his employer to try. Now that colleges are supporting Olympic sports less and less, because of decreased revenues, it becomes the responsibility of Congress to develop a program of assistance for potential Olympic athletes.

CON E. Newbold Black IV, 2nd vice president, U.S. Olympic Committee

No. Direct subsidy by Federal, state or municipal governments could lead to unnecessary pressures on the administrators and athletes involved. Where the government can assist the athlete is: 1) In funding more and better facilities and in making available, at no charge to the athlete, greater access to existing facilities. There is only one bobsled run in Lake Placid, for example. There is only one refrigerated 400-meter track for speed-skating. 2) Reduced or free air transportation to training sites or competitions. 3) Additional tax relief for an athlete's training expenses in the form of tax deductions or tax credits based on private contributions.

PATTY WILSON'S

MAGNIFICENT MARATHON

They told her not to start...they told her not to go on. Her foot was fractured and a seizure threatened her. But still she ran the 1,300 miles.

By Sheila Cragg

It used to be that when young Patty Wilson ran, her arms and legs flailed like a rag doll's. She was an awkward child, uncoordinated, without the grace of an athlete. Why, she couldn't even throw a ball.

Perhaps not a tragedy; many children are clumsy, their muscles undeveloped, their needs uncertain. But Patty felt her ineptness more deeply than other children might: she came from a family of athletes, a concentrated world of bowling, basketball, handball, tennis — and competition. Her older brother, Richard, played baseball, and her younger sister, Sandy — Sam they call her — enjoyed softball.

"I felt left out," Patty says, "I took dancing and thought that would help. They talked sports, and I didn't understand the world they were talking about."

Timidly at first, Patty began to run a mile with her father, Jim, who was always by her side. Watching. Their runs were mild and innocent, the least of challenges for a child lacking athletic ability. But there was one more dark element in a race over obstacles: Patty had a dreaded and misunderstood disease. She was epileptic. Her disease and the way people fear the victim became parts of the fabric of Patty's later marathon triumph.

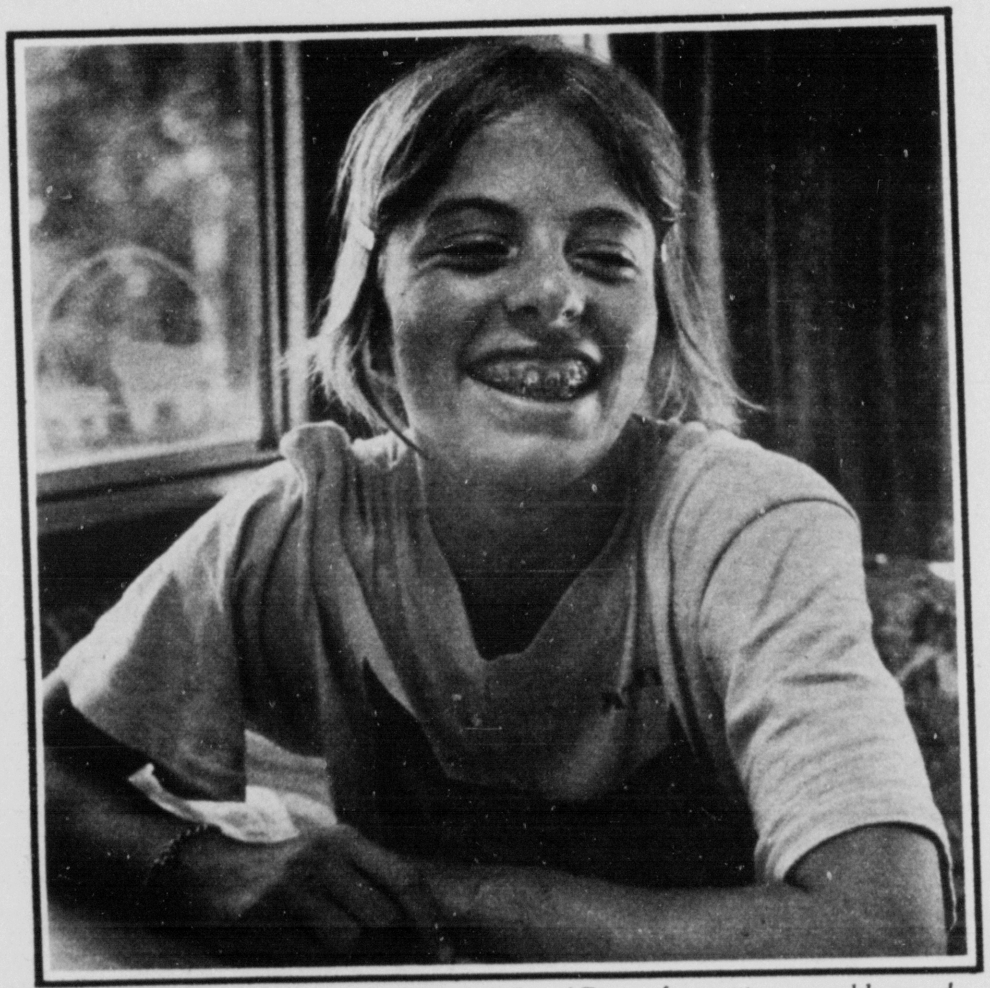
Her first modest achievement came when she ran from her home in La Palma, Calif., to her grandparents' home in Los Angeles. Patty was 13; the distance was 30 miles. In her mind were thoughts of Pete Strudwick, a marathoner she'd met just before she began the run. There was something in Pete that found itself alive in Patty — a fierce determination to overcome an obstacle. Pete, the marathoner, runs on stumps because he has no feet.

In 1975 she and her dad ran the 100 miles from La Palma to San Diego. When a newspaper publicized the event, the trek became even more of a challenge for Patty, and her determination became an unshatterable purpose.

But a first moment of truth was to befall Patty. In that same year, as a freshman in high school, she joined the all-guys cross-country team. During her first meet, Patty had her first psychomotor seizure while running. It was 90-degree weather and smoggy. A quarter-mile out, Patty began running like a mechanical tin soldier. Her arms and legs marched up and down.

Jim and her mother, Dotty, were standing on the sidelines. They didn't know what to do. They couldn't — or wouldn't — run among the competitors and grab her. To their disbelief, Patty finished the race. She was standing. But she was unconscious.

Jim and Dotty cooled her down with water and asked her questions: "What is your name? Do you know who I am? Where do you live? Are you a girl?" There was no response. Nearly an hour later, Patty regained consciousness. But she didn't remember anything about the race.



"I haven't been stopped...I never will," said Patty after setting a world record.

Each time an epileptic has a seizure a part of life is lost. Patty's psychomotor seizure is one form of an epileptic attack: staring, confusion, a kind of sleep and loss of memory. There would be more attacks, of course, but Patty's doctor felt that she could continue running — if she were always accompanied.

For Patty, the striving to overcome was developing. Toward the end of running season, she won her first race. She was invited to the Santa Barbara cross-country invitational for high-school girls.

"I was scared," Patty says. "It was a two-mile race over hilly terrain I'd never seen. The crowd was yelling 'Patty,' and I wondered why. I won it, and the team voted me Most Inspirational Runner."

Now was to come the second step for Patty, the next test. A few weeks later she and her dad ran 300 miles to Las Vegas, and after the school year, they ran to San Francisco. They simply put one foot after the other for 508 grueling miles.

In 1976-77, Patty, then a sophomore, competed on the men's cross-country team and the girls' track team, and Jim started talking about a run to Portland, Ore. "I was negative," says Patty's mother. "I'd about lost Jim to heat stroke. I thought the San Francisco trip was hard enough."

Jim and Patty persevered, though, and persuaded Dotty to help them in their greatest challenge — a 1,000-mile run from Buena Park, Calif., to Portland.

To train for this multiple marathon, Patty and Jim ran 125 miles a week. During one session they were running shoulder to shoulder. At the bottom of a hill, Jim burst ahead because there was running room for only one. He ran a quarter of a mile and turned to check on Patty.

She was nowhere in sight. Jim ran down the hill to see if she'd stopped at the gas station. He asked the attendants if they'd seen Patty, but they hadn't.

Jim ran a mile east and then a mile west. Still no Patty. Now it was twilight. He ran their original route, which was about three miles, and then ran home. No one had seen Patty. Jim went back to where they were when they'd separated. No Patty.

"I panicked!" he recalls. "People had told me that men in vans could drive up along side Patty and kidnap her. I was afraid she'd been hit by a car. A lot of things spun through my mind."

Jim ran home, and in the darkness he and Dotty drove the streets searching. They returned home and were about to phone the police when Patty turned the corner. She was heading toward home — and running.

"Where have you been?" Jim asked hysterically. Patty was confused, and when he realized that Patty had had a seizure, they began to fit together the pieces.

"All that time Patty thought she was talking to me," Jim explains. "When I turned to go up the hill, she continued going straight. She wasn't aware that I wasn't there. Finally, she got to a point far enough away, and she didn't know who she was or where she was. She went to a park and sat down. She didn't know what was happening. Hours later, when she cleared from the seizure, she ran home."

The Wilsons had not revealed that Patty had epilepsy. They feared she'd be barred from cross-country events and marathons. Patty talked about it freely. Her high-school coaches knew, but her parents kept it a secret from the press and the public.

Dotty, reflecting, explains why: "Patty's first seizure occurred in her third-grade classroom. The teacher rushed out of the class and summoned the principal. They took Patty to the nurse's office. The children went home and related it all to their parents, telling them the teacher said Patty had epilepsy, and they came back with a batch of old wives' tales. The social situation became very difficult. The children left Patty alone, and she didn't want to return to school.

"I figured that if that's the way a few react, then that's the way the general public would react. We didn't even tell her grandparents for a long time. Even though Patty is a junior in high school, young people still remark to both Richard and Sam, 'Oh, your sister's the one that had the seizure in third grade.'"

The doctor they consulted refused to label Patty with the word "epilepsy." He told the Wilsons that she had a seizure disorder, but they didn't realize that it was the same thing as epilepsy.

"I was scared of the word epilepsy," Jim states. "I didn't know what it was. It meant something like polio or leprosy. Now that I understand it, it doesn't frighten me as much. Her epilepsy is so mild we don't think in terms of her having it, nor does she. But she does have it, so why not help those who are less fortunate than we are?" The Wilsons did just that when they publicly announced a month prior to her Portland run that Patty had epilepsy.

Their target date, June 18, was rapidly approaching. The details of planning the trip mushroomed. The Wilsons needed help. Robert Bradach, a personal friend, took over. He raised funds, found a recreational vehicle to lease and contacted chamber of commerces in every city through which Jim and Patty planned to run. Freeways tightly lace California, and it is against the law to run on them. Assessing which side roads and highways they could run on, and seeking police protection, became a time-consuming task.

They ran long, lonely miles and encountered blisters, pain and hecklers who pelted them with garbage, dirt and thoughtless taunts.

On June 18, television crews, reporters, state, county and city officials, epilepsy society members, runners and well wishers gathered to celebrate the impossible. Patty radiated warmth, moving among the people, laughing and talking.

Dr. Robert Schuller gave the invocation and shared his Possibility Thinkers Creed: "When faced with a mountain I will not quit! I will keep on striving until I climb over, find a pass through, tunnel underneath or simply stay and turn the mountain into a gold mine, with God's help."

She received the California flag, a proclamation to present to the governor of Oregon and the Candle of Understanding, the national symbol of the Epilepsy Foundation of America.

Like a pied piper, a local band led the crowd to watch Patty's takeoff. Patty, 5'4", solid and tanned, looked lost among the male runners who'd come to run the first few miles with her. To keep her waist-length blond-brown hair from blowing in her face, she'd tied it with a band. Patty broke through the paper banner that heralded her run. Momentarily, she turned toward the crowd, saluted the Candle of Understanding, then was off.

Patty's Portland run presented challenges that would have stopped most athletes. During the first 25 miles, she suffered a stress fracture in the metatarsal bone of her left foot.

At Port Hueneme, Calif., Jim and Dotty, who is a vocational nurse, took Patty to the hospital emergency room. The doctor X-rayed her foot and advised that it be put in a cast. She would be immobile for six weeks. He warned that if she ran on it, she might never be able to run again.

"It was my decision to go on," claims Patty. "Dad wanted me to go on. I could feel it. I knew how much he wanted me to make it, how much it meant to him. It was our dream. After we got going with the broken foot, it was a challenge to me to see how strong I could be within myself." She seemed to sense how much she symbolized to others.

Patty's second of a multitude of challenges occurred when they found that their arrival time would be extended by two weeks. They'd chosen the cooler coastal route to avoid the extreme heat they'd encountered on the San Francisco run. The mileage charts for the inland route varied between 969 to 990 miles. "We didn't figure it would be that much farther going up the coast and over," Dotty explains. "We knew we'd gain some, but nothing like 300 miles."

Patty didn't think the extra distance would bother her, but then she'd waken every morning and think, "Nine hundred miles more. I can't make it — 1,310 miles! In my mind I'd go crazy. Dad helped me think in terms of running mile by mile, day by day. That relieved me from dwelling on the awesome distance I would cover."

Patty averaged 31 miles per day during the journey. She rose at 4:30 A.M. The size of their recreational vehicle was not much larger than the bathroom of a home. Just the logistics of moving around and synchronizing their routine were at times a comedy.

There were the ordinary morning preparations — and the painful ones. Dotty had to drain a score of blisters on Patty's feet with a hypodermic needle, a process that had to be repeated every afternoon and evening. Jim wrapped Patty's feet, as well as her legs from thigh to calf.

Patty and Jim were on the road and running by 6:00 A.M. They ran in segments of five miles or more before taking short breaks.

"Patty pulled me along and I pulled her along," Jim recalls. "We told each other stories, played games and collected returnable bottles. Patty practiced her Spanish or imitated her favorite star, Barbra Streisand. The camper ahead was our incentive. Just reach it! When we were in pain and discouraged, we told each other to Bite down on the bullet."

After 10 to 15 miles Patty and Jim would stop and have juices. During the day they consumed about two gallons of fruit juices and a special drink designed to restore the potassium and electrolyte balance. They also took salt tablets. Breakfast and dinner were their only meals.

Patty's foot pained her. It was swollen and barely fit in her shoe. They tried ice packs, hot soaks and different shoes. Along with three drugs to control her epilepsy, Patty took pain medication. Twenty-one days out, she became violently ill in the middle of the night.

"I thought her vomiting was going to tear her insides out, it continued so long," Dotty says. "I wanted desperately for her to stop running."

But the next morning Patty struggled through three miles. She slept for five

Despite The Strength, Spirit And Endurance Of Her Run, Patty Still Fights The Stigma Of Epilepsy

By Penelope Lemov

Patty Wilson's inspirational story is all the more remarkable because of her epilepsy, a disorder marked by recurrent convulsions that can range from body-jerking seizures (grand mal) to milder transient spells (petit mal).

The disorder is a short circuit of sorts. "Instead of putting out normal electrical discharges, some brain cells put out abnormal frequencies which can cause a seizure," says Dr. Samuel Shelburne, director of Neurology for Children's Hospital National Medical Center. "The abnormal frequencies are there all the time, but we still don't understand why a person goes months without a seizure and, then, suddenly, has one."

Medical researchers do know that some seizures are preceded by an aura, a particular sensation like a smell, a taste or a feeling of numbness in the hand. They also know that some seizures are triggered by sensory stimulation, such as a flickering candle, a blinking traffic light — even so seemingly little as some kinds of music or food.

While anyone can have epilepsy at any time during his or her life, 75 percent of the cases begin before age 20. Dr. Shelburne notes that 80 percent of the pediatric cases are outgrown by the time the patient is 21.

The tendency toward seizures can be inherited, but some epilepsy stems from cell damage caused by such things as poor prenatal care, birth trauma, high prolonged fever, a head injury, infection, drug abuse or alcoholism. "Automobile accidents that result in head injuries are the major cause of epilepsy in adults," says Jim Gorman of the Epilepsy Foundation in Washington, D.C."

Although there is no real cure for epilepsy, 70 percent of the patients under a doctor's care gain control over the seizures through appropriate drug therapy. Surgery is sometimes a solution. "It's very good — a cure rather than control — but it is possible only for those patients whose electrical abnormality is in one area of the brain that can be removed," Dr. Shelburne says.

'Enriched Flavor'™ Tobacco!

There is a way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into a low tar cigarette.

MERIT proved it.

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain "flavor-rich" ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers the kind of taste smokers can switch to.

And stick with.

"Merit cigarettes have converted me from a confirmed high tar cigarette smoker to a low tar smoker."

...PATTY WILSON DAY WAS PROCLAIMED...

hours, then ran 15 more miles. Her steely mental fiber kept her running long after her body cried — "Quit!"

Hills and head winds were another problem. "It always seemed like the biggest hill was at the end of a day's run," says Jim. "If we'd consulted bicyclists, we would have run from Portland to Los Angeles, instead of the way we did."

Patty and Jim faced stiff winds all along the coast. The breezes blurred their vision and blew them backward and sideways. On the ocean it was the sand; in Coos Bay, Ore., it was the wood chips piled along the road. They wished they had goggles.

If Mother Nature was bad, human nature was worse. From passing cars hecklers yelled, "Run faster! Is that as fast as you can go?" Once motorists threw several fish at them, and another time children bombed them with dirt clods.

From the Oregon border, high-school track teams and track clubs ran with Patty and Jim. But all the way, people with epilepsy stopped and talked to her. "They didn't care about the running; they cared that Patty carried the message that she had epilepsy," Jim says. "She was a light for them." People with other handicaps came to run or talk with Patty. A girl with diabetes told them she couldn't run on the track team anymore, but she wanted to run a short way with Patty.

"Dad and I had a lot of determination," Patty says. "There was no way we could quit; there were people all along the way. In Oregon, people accompanied us from one city to another."

During their final leg into Portland, the crowds poured out to greet them. Gov. Bob Straub, a regular jogger, joined Patty the last mile. Children, track teams and TV and newspaper reporters congested the road. People cheered and waved.

The worst part for Jim was his guilt feelings. "What kind of father was I to make my daughter run on an injured foot?" he agonized. The last hundred yards he looked over to see if Patty had a smile of victory, but she could only grimace from the incredible pain.

Then, it was over. They were swooped up in welcoming ceremonies. Some people in the crowd fought back tears, others wept openly. Gov. Straub proclaimed July 29 Patty Wilson Day throughout Oregon. It was a special day for everyone who had ever struggled against adversity, and especially for those who bore the label "handicapped." And there was another high point: according to an editor at Runner's World magazine, she set a world record; there is no record of a woman running more than 100 miles.

Later, Patty's foot was X-rayed and treated. Her foot was healing and had not been permanently injured.

"I haven't been stopped because of my epilepsy. I never will!" Patty says with finality. "This run was tough. It was a lot of marathons put together. Now, maybe people that are stopped because of epilepsy, or any other handicap, will try to do something they've wanted to do. Maybe, they'll think, 'Hey, I can go out for the track team next year and not be so self-conscious.'"

There are still barriers that must be hurdled. "Because of fear, young people like Patty are often barred from physical education and sports programs," says Mrs. Viola Miller, director of the Orange County (Calif.) Epilepsy Society. "It's not surprising that most people conceal their epilepsy because of prejudices that still exist."

"When we talk about the disadvantages of epilepsy, I worry about job applications," Patty says. "I know I'm going to have to face it. I probably won't be able to get my drivers license when I turn 16 in November, but I don't dwell on it. I can't pretend that my epilepsy is not there. They're not going to change everything just because I ran 1,310 miles. They're not going to say, 'In your case we can let you drive, let you have a job. We can give you life insurance.' That's a fantasy."

At present, Patty is waiting for her foot to heal, but she's planning a 2,000-mile run next summer. Following graduation from high school in 1979, she'll run to Washington, D.C. A lot of people will be cheering her on.

On September 25 Patty will appear on Dr. Schuller's Hour of Power. (In some areas the show will be shown on October 2. Check your local listings.)

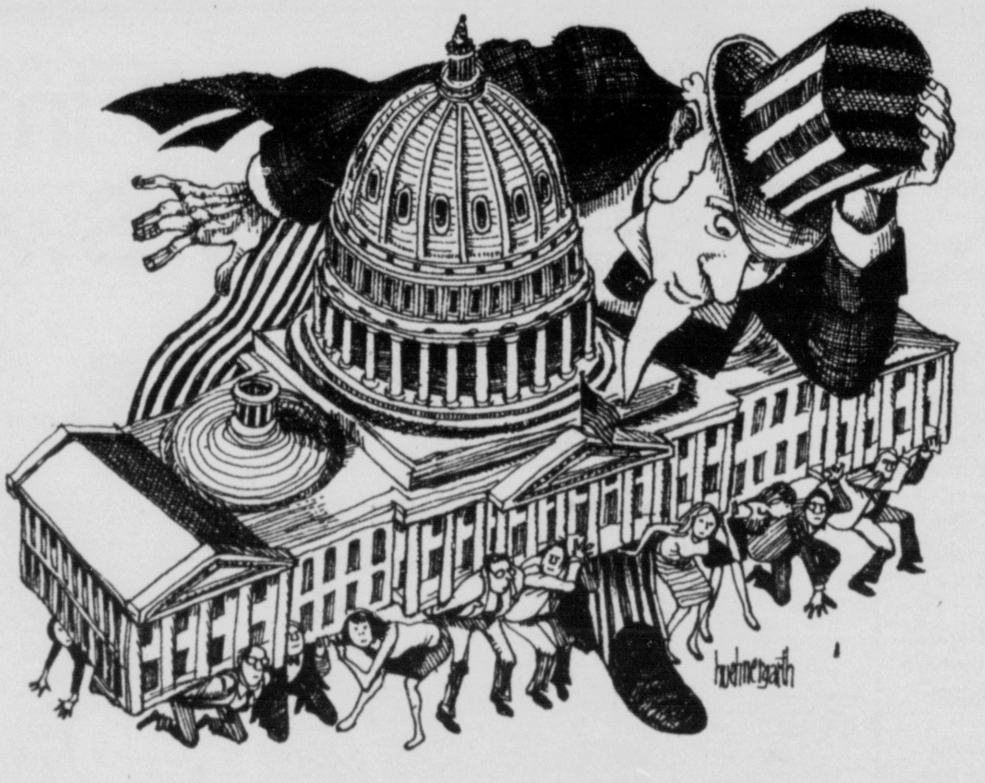
WASHINGTON'S WORKAHOLICS

For the many Congressmen and White House staffers who routinely work 12 to 14 hours six days a week, little time is left for families or the Georgetown social circuit.



By Paula Dranov

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano spends at least 12 hours a day at his desk. Nancy Jordan, wife of President Carter's special assistant Hamilton Jordan, plans her own social life and considers it a bonus if her husband can join her. A Georgia Congressman's wife reports that her husband has gone as long as two weeks without seeing their children awake.

Washington hostesses have been complaining that the town's newest celebrities, President Carter's White House aides, aren't available for dinner, cocktails or the Georgetown soirées that the capital always has regarded as essential to the running of the country. Sans Souci, the Washington restaurant that has accumulated a star-studded clientele through four administrations, hasn't seen much of the new White House crowd. And the families of Carter's aides find that moving to Washington hasn't done much for togetherness — the long working hours keep men like Jordan, Press Secretary Jody Powell, Congressional liaison Frank Moore and domestic-affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat on the job between 12 and 14 hours a day.

Things got so bad back in February that President Carter — who gets to see much more of his family than he did during the campaign — issued a memo suggesting that the staff make time to be with their families. Welcome as the idea might have been, it hasn't had much effect on the working habits of Carter's top staff people. They've discovered what Washington veterans always have known: the pressures of top-level jobs turn even the most dedicated family men and women into workaholics.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, a Colorado Democrat and the mother of two young children, contends that the 12-to-14 hour days most officials put in leaves them physically exhausted. The hardest thing to arrange in her own hectic life, she says, is "having some quiet, connected time to think." Mrs. Schroeder brings her children to the office, leaves debates on the House floor to answer their phone calls and has virtually withdrawn from the capital's cocktail circuit in order to spend more time with her family. And California's new Republican Senator, S.I. Hayakawa, reasons that "this is what I got myself into, and I'm having a good time at it." He admits, however, that there are things to complain about. "We have to work late every night and don't get time for exercise and shooting pool and listening to jazz records and doing all the other things one would like to do."

Does Washington make or just attract workaholics? Sen. William Proxmire has confessed that he's a workaholic and "if it wasn't politics, it would be something else, but politics really is tough. One year I was gone [from home] 50 consecutive weekends." On the other hand, there's Eileen Shanahan, Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who has to keep pace with her boss, Califano. "I'm not a workaholic," she protests. "I know how to loaf." Her job heading the Department's public-affairs division doesn't leave her much time for loafing, however. She spends 12 hours at the office at least three days a week, 14 hours the other two and about seven hours on Saturday. "Shanahan's law," she quips, "is that you can put in 13 hours a day six days a week, but seven days will kill you."

As far as work is concerned, Califano is a law unto himself. Regarded as Washington's foremost workaholic, he usually arrives at the office at 7:30 A.M. and doesn't leave until at least 7:30 P.M. He puts in a shorter day on Saturday — from 8 until 6. Califano's top aides must leave word as to where they can be reached at any hour of the day or night "even if we're just going to the grocery store," one aide said. Califano rarely goes to the office on Sunday (he does paper work at home) and tries not to disturb his aides then, either. "Otherwise, he'll call at any time," they report.

The Secretary is so involved in his work that he usually is late to social engagements and once showed up an hour late for a White House dinner. But he does manage to get some relaxation — tennis at least twice a week and softball when a game comes up. When he heard that HEW staffers had played Congressional aides, he was miffed that he hadn't been included. "Let me know next time, and I'll pitch," he volunteered. Although Califano is regarded by his underlings as a demanding boss who "creates incredible pressure," he rarely raises his voice and "is good about saying thank you."

Thanks can be hard to come by at the White House where President Carter expects aides to work as hard as he does. As a result, morale there can deteriorate. Press Secretary Powell went to considerable trouble earlier this year to deny a New York Times report that staffers were unhappy about the long hours and the failure of the President to praise them for jobs well done. Ironically, lack of recognition is something Carter observed about his mentor, Adm. Hyman Rickover. "We feared and respected him and strove to please him," he wrote of the days when Rickover was his commanding officer in the Navy. "I do not in that period remember his ever saying a complimentary word to me."

But working in the White House always has meant long hours. Barbara Hackman Franklin, now a member of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, remembers what it was like during the Nixon Administration, when she headed the White House talent search for women. "It was flat-out, nonstop work from 7:30 A.M. until 10 P.M. or midnight." And she recalls the uncanny ability of the White House telephone operators to locate staffers anytime, anywhere. "I was having dinner in a quiet corner of a Washington restaurant. No one knew where I was, but all of a sudden the headwaiter called me to the telephone. It was the White House switchboard with a message for me to call my husband." That puzzled Mrs. Franklin, who wasn't married at the time, until she learned that there was another Barbara Franklin at the White House. She still can't figure out how the switchboard found her.

Bunny Mitchell, the President's adviser on minority issues, says her 8-to-8 schedule doesn't leave her much time for ordinary chores such as going to the bank, doing the laundry and shopping. Like most top White House aides, her day begins at an 8 o'clock staff meeting.

Most of Carter's advisers arrive at the White House at about 7:30, though for some the workday starts even earlier. Stuart Eizenstat may work for an hour or so before leaving home. Quitting time is always uncertain. Hamilton Jordan's wife remembers when "we could have the weekend off, or we could go to the beach. Now I plan for myself and if Hamilton can join me, fine." Jody Powell's wife finds that she can't make social plans, either. "It's hard to accept an invitation, especially to a small dinner party where people are planning on you. That's one of the frustrating parts to me — not being able to plan."

Things aren't much different on Capitol Hill, where Congressmen, Senators and their aides put in long days, sometimes until the early hours of the morning, when Congress is trying to clean up its work and adjourn. Sen. Hayakawa, who usually gets to the office at 9, is a "night person" who once startled his staff by announcing, "Let's get some food and work all night."

Pat Schroeder says she gets at least 15 invitations a day to cocktail parties and receptions but attends only those she considers essential. "The idea that work gets done on the cocktail circuit is one of the biggest myths in this town," she contends. Most of her weekends are spent in her Colorado Congressional district, although, "ideally," she would make the trip west only twice a month. April Evans, the wife of Rep. Billy Lee Evans of Georgia, says her husband usually gets home between 10 and midnight and gets up so early in the morning that he'll often just "wake me up to say goodbye." Sometimes she goes to receptions "so that I'm at least in the same room with him" but adds that "you kind of get to feeling like a widow."

The Washington press corps also puts in a full day, although most reporters don't log the hours top officials do. Sally Quinn, the Washington Post reporter who tried to make the transition to network television a few years ago, says that so few of her colleagues ever get a chance to watch the news that they couldn't figure out what she was going to do for CBS. "I didn't fail at anything important," she says of her fellow reporters' view of the fact that she didn't make it as an anchorwoman. Most of official Washington rarely gets home early enough to see the network evening news and usually is en route to work when the news comes on in the morning.

Despite the long hours, the toll they take on family life and the often breakneck pace, few Washington officials would give up their jobs. And few of their families would ask them to. As Nancy Jordan puts it, "I'm sure there's no bigger challenge. You know this may be the most important thing you ever do."

You can't be turned down for this Insurance if you're 50 to 80!

Here is a life insurance policy that can be yours for the asking if you inquire before October 31st. Not only is no physical examination required, but the policy is actually issued to you without a single health question!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS® is an individual life insurance policy that guarantees to accept every man and woman between 50 and 80 who applies during the guaranteed acceptance period—regardless of any other insurance carried.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is underwritten by Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, specialists in serving the specific needs of America's older population. This protection is recommended to their members by two of America's highly respected national nonprofit organizations of the mature: the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

An Important Opportunity for Every Older Person!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a distinctive concept of life insurance, achieved as a result of the years of effort Colonial Penn has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

Our goal was a life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—a policy whose cost would be reasonable and whose benefits would be worthwhile. With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS, the Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company has succeeded.

Here's How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This For You:

During the first two years that your policy is in effect, your coverage is reduced. If you should die during the first policy year, the benefit paid to your beneficiary is $100. If death occurs during the second policy year, your beneficiary receives $250. Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for his insurance dollar—and, at the same time, guarantees acceptance for all applicants.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS also provides increasing cash values which begin in the first or second year.

The cost? JUST $6.95 A MONTH.

No matter what your age, your sex, or the condition of your health, you pay just $6.95 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your sex and age. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up!

Act Now—You Have Nothing to Lose!

To obtain full information on PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS in time to take advantage of this opportunity to become insured, please mail the coupon before October 31st.

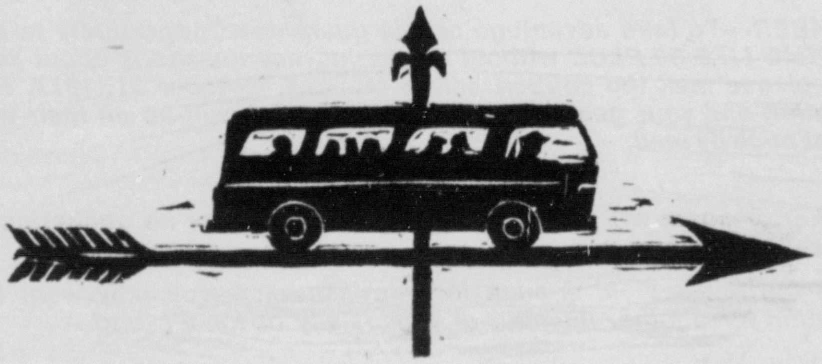
Observations

What this country needs. "A really good five-cent cigar," suggested Thomas Riley Marshall when he was Vice President of the U.S. (1913-20). But times change—and today we think one of the greatest needs is improved public transportation. It saves money and energy, too—as we've been reminding America in ads for seven years now. Even car pooling can help. If the average load per commuter car increased by just one person, it would save 700,000 barrels of oil a day, estimates the Federal Energy Administration, reducing pollution and traffic congestion in the process.



What has 24 legs, four wheels, and a dozen happy grins? A company van carrying 12 commuters to work—one of the most promising ideas in public transportation since energy saving became a national cause. Under the van pool plan, pioneered by St. Paul's 3M company and fast spreading, corporations buy vans to pick up workers in surrounding communities and deliver them back at night. Typically, the employee who volunteers to be a regular driver for a route bills a monthly commutation fee to his riders (about $30 a month in most cases). He or she, in turn, gets to ride free and can use the van weekends. More than 90 companies now use the system, which is proving... well...just vantastic!

Another success story. In Westport, Connecticut, you can have your choice between "Minnybuses" and "Maxytaxys." The cheery red buses, which carry 20 passengers each, take commuters to railroad stations, carry kids to beaches, and ferry shoppers to stores. Averaging more than 80 passenger miles per gallon of diesel fuel, they have lured 25 percent of the town's commuters away from second cars since the program began in 1974. The Maxytaxys, 12-passenger vans, offer door-to-door shared-ride service. Summoned by phone, they carry people anywhere in town for from $1 to $3.25.

NATIONAL GOODS CORPORATION

"The van was the company's idea to save energy. But the seating is his own idea."

It all adds up. New Yorkers, with their integrated public transportation system, use only 47 percent as much energy as the average American for getting around. The 231 miles of subways in Gotham carried more than a billion paying passengers in 1976; the bus lines, 636 million; and commuter railroads, 107 million. Which is pretty moving in itself.

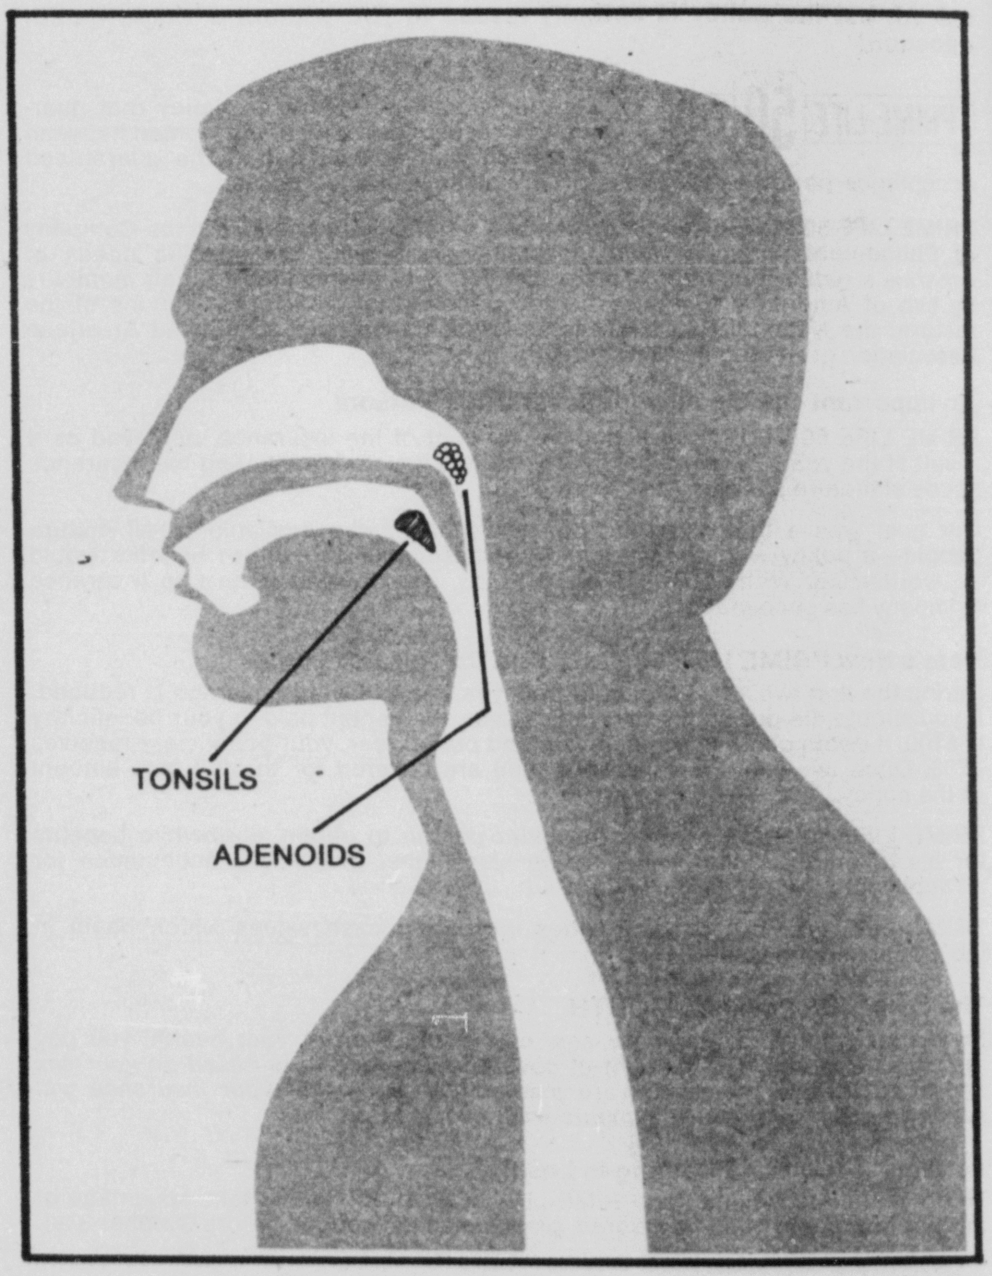
WHEN SHOULD TONSILS AND ADENOIDS BE REMOVED?

Here are some guidelines that will make you better equipped to decide whether your children should have the operation.



By Alvin N. Eden, M.D.

The surgical removal of tonsils and adenoids remains the leading cause of children's admissions to hospitals in the United States. T and A, as it is called, accounted for 666,000 operations in 1975. The whole subject of tonsils and adenoids is complicated and controversial. It all comes down to the crucial decision that must be made in every case: should my child have his tonsils and adenoids removed?

Remember that a T and A, although a simple enough procedure, is an operation that requires general anesthesia. Therefore, it involves a small amount of risk. Studies have shown that about one in 10,000 patients dies every year from complications following the procedure. Clearly, a T and A should never be done unless it is medically indicated. Your child's physician, usually in consultation with an ear, nose and throat (ENT) surgeon, must make this decision.

The location of the tonsils and adenoids allows them to act as a trap and first-line defense against inhaled or ingested bacteria and viruses. The tonsils and adenoids are made up of lymphoid tissue, which manufactures antibodies against invading diseases. Therefore, unless there is an important and specific reason to have the operation, it is better to leave the tonsils and adenoids in place. Nature has put them there for a useful purpose.

A little background will help you to understand this subject better. In the 1930's T's and A's were almost a routine procedure. More than half of the children in the United States had their tonsils and adenoids removed. At this time throat and ear infections could not be successfully treated with medication. So it made sense to surgically remove these potentially dangerous areas of infection.

With the beginning of the antibiotic era in the 1940's, physicians had an effective method of treating bacterial infections of the tonsils and adenoids without subjecting the child to surgery. In addition, a relationship was proven to exist between a T and A and the development of paralytic polio. As a result, there was a dramatic reduction of T's and A's performed each year.

With the development of the Salk and Sabine vaccines, however, polio was pretty much eliminated. Hence, one of the main dangers of the T and A was removed, and, once again, the number of annual T's and A's increased rapidly. In the early 1970's more than one million T's and A's were carried out each year.

When should a child have a T and A? First, here are some reasons not to have the operation.

Frequent colds: Despite what you may have heard, a T and A will not reduce the number of upper-respiratory infections your child will pick up.

An occasional throat or ear infection: This is perfectly normal during the early childhood years and is no reason to subject the child to the operation.

Poor appetite: Another old wives' tale that probably developed because people believe that the tonsils block the throat and prevent the child from swallowing. This is just not true.

Convenience: Because each child's case must be evaluated individually, it is medically unsound, no matter how convenient for the family or for the doctor, to perform T's and A's on several children from the same family at the same time.

Noisy mouth breathing: This is due to large adenoids and, in itself, is no reason for surgery. If given enough time, the adenoids shrink, and breathing becomes less noisy.

To avoid having a T and A as an adult: The operation is not safer and easier for a child than for an adult. Besides, few adults ever require the operation because they are not very susceptible to recurrent throat or ear infections.

So much for the wrong reasons. For some children, a T and A is necessary and beneficial. The following are instances when the procedure may be recommended.

Frequent episodes of tonsillitis: In such cases the tonsils are obviously a focus of infection, and the child is better off without them.

Chronic middle-ear infection with accompanying hearing loss: This is probably related to large and infected adenoids. If the adenoids obstruct the eustachian (auditory) tube, which connects the middle ear with the throat, they can interfere with hearing and eventually may cause permanent hearing loss.

Severe difficulty in breathing or distorted or slurred speech: This can be caused by enlarged adenoids that obstruct the nasal passages. The tonsils on occasion may be so large and swollen as to interfere with swallowing or breathing.

Parents never should try to pressure their physician into scheduling a T and A. If your doctor does recommend the operation, it should be done by a qualified surgeon, preferably an ENT surgeon. Further, the surgery always should be performed with the help of a qualified anesthesiologist in a facility equipped to handle any complication that might arise during or after surgery.

Unless your doctor believes there are specific and real indications for the operation, leave your child's tonsils and adenoids where nature put them. Although the topic of T's and A's is complicated and controversial, parents who are armed with sufficient information about the procedure will find it much less confusing.

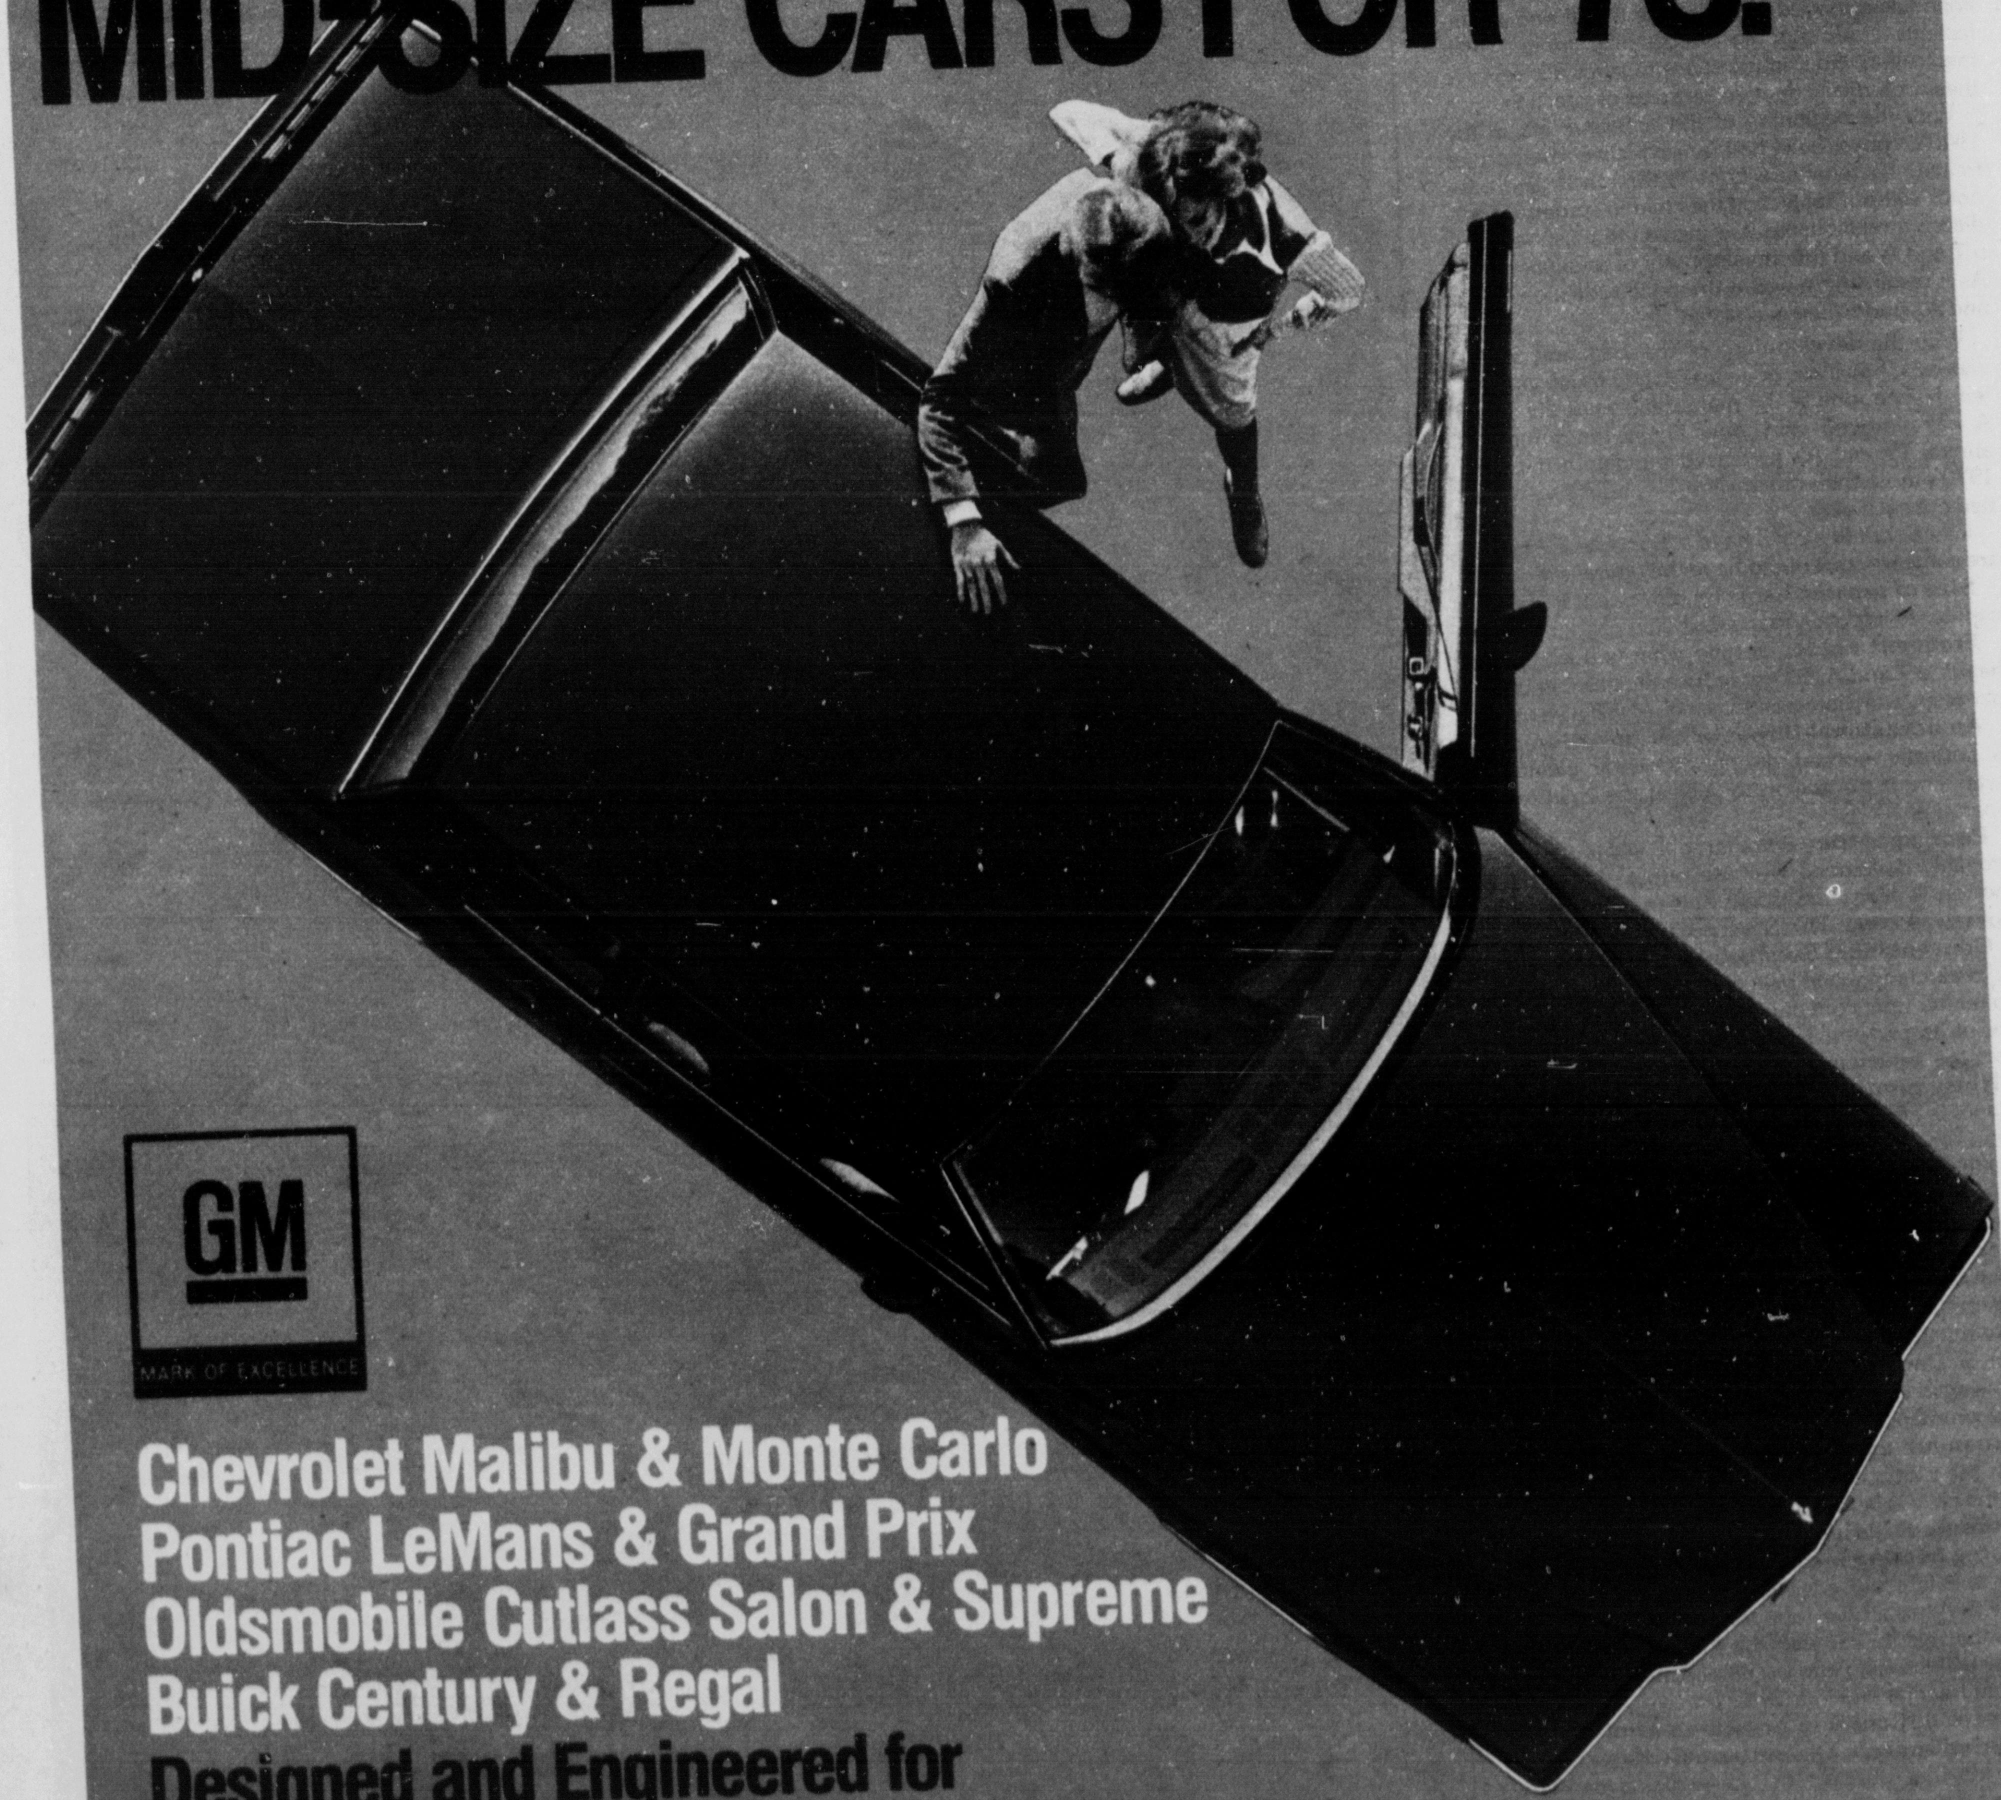
A PREVIEW LOOK AT GM's MID-SIZE CARS FOR '78.



GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Chevrolet Malibu & Monte Carlo
Pontiac LeMans & Grand Prix
Oldsmobile Cutlass Salon & Supreme
Buick Century & Regal

Designed and Engineered for a Changing World.

The Second Wave.

In the wake of our tremendously successful 1977 full-size cars, these new mid-size models are the most scientifically designed production cars in GM history. Yet they're as handsome as they are functional.

Last year, General Motors introduced its new, trimmer full-size cars. As you probably know, it was one of our most successful new-car announcements ever.

For 1978, GM is proud to present its newest family of new cars.

They, too, are fuel efficient and utilize space better.

They are also the product of more computerized engineering than any group of cars in GM history. More modular construction. And extensive corrosion-resisting treatments.

The result is a new generation of traditionally popular GM cars that are spacious. Secure. More maneuverable in city traffic compared to last year. And, with their trim new looks, in tune with the times.

Strong cars, tested and retested.

Strength and security are integral elements of these new cars.

These qualities were "designed in" through traditional engineering and testing techniques—including hundreds of thousands of miles of GM Proving Ground evaluations—and through more computer technology than on any group of cars we've ever developed.

In addition, the body designs underwent hours of testing in the wind tunnel.

The finished products are solid, finely honed automobiles that are exciting to look at and emphatically in the GM tradition of sound engineering combined with high style.

Good gas mileage, too.

From the day these new cars first went on the drawing board, gas mileage was a prime consideration. And even with the additional emission controls on California cars, we think you can't help but be impressed with the ratings given by the EPA.

For example, our new mid-size cars received EPA estimates of 16 MPG City, 23 MPG Highway and 18 MPG Combined City/Highway when equipped with GM's available 231 cu. in. 2-bbl. V-6 engine and automatic transmission.

Please remember, however, that the actual mileage you get will vary according to the kind of driving you do, your driving habits, and your car's condition and available equipment.

Some GM-built engines are produced by divisions other than the division producing the car you may be interested in.

We suggest you consult your Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile or Buick dealer for complete details on engine sources, availabilities and 1978 EPA gas mileage ratings. And while you're at the dealership, ask to drive our exciting new mid-size cars . . . designed and engineered for a changing world.

The Inside Story... Chevrolet Malibu and Monte Carlo, Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix, Oldsmobile Cutlass Salon and Supreme, and Buick Century and Regal.

Once you get inside the dramatically redesigned exteriors of these new cars, the first thing to strike you is a feeling of comfort and interior spaciousness. Plus what we think are some of the most luxurious options ever offered on this class of car.

People who previewed our new top-of-the-line models were impressed with the level and variety of interior trim available on these new cars. The broad selection of soft vinyls and fine fabrics, including crushed velour. The handsome new instrument panels. And the cut-pile, wall-to-wall carpeting.

Trim on the outside. Roomy on the inside.

It is hard to believe just how roomy these new cars are without getting into them.

Compared to last year, both sedans and coupes offer more headroom and legroom, front and rear.

There's more front and rear "chair" height.

More room in the rear for knees.

Where did all the room come from?

Well, our engineers call it "better utilization of interior space." Slimming the seats, but not the comfort level. Lowering the floor. Thinning the doors and recessing armrests.

These cars were designed for people by people. Men and women who know what comfort means.

You might think this year's trimmer models would skimp on trunk space. Not so. For 1978, you get more usable trunk space than last year for such things as luggage, golf clubs and picnic baskets.

It's mounted on a special lightweight wheel and, since it has much less bulk, you get more trunk space. And since it's significantly lighter and stores vertically, it's easier to get out of the trunk and install, should you have a flat.

The Greenhouse: Your window on the world.

The window portion of an automobile has long been called the greenhouse, but never has the word been more appropriate.

These new cars provide impressive visibility, offering a great view of the outside world for you and your passengers.

These cars incorporate extensive corrosion-resisting treatments, including:

Specialty steels, where the metal is rolled and then dipped in molten zinc to help form a rust-inhibiting bond.

Water-repellent wax coatings that are power-sprayed on such areas as quarter panels and deck lids.

And electrogalvanized or Zincrometal® outer door panels and rear quarter panels.

All this is in addition to the extensive use of highly specialized corrosion-fighting materials like galvanized steel, zinc-rich primers, moisture-repelling sealants and, of course, Body by Fisher's tough acrylic finishes.

Combined, they represent important advances to help these GM cars retain their good looks.

Building a quiet car.

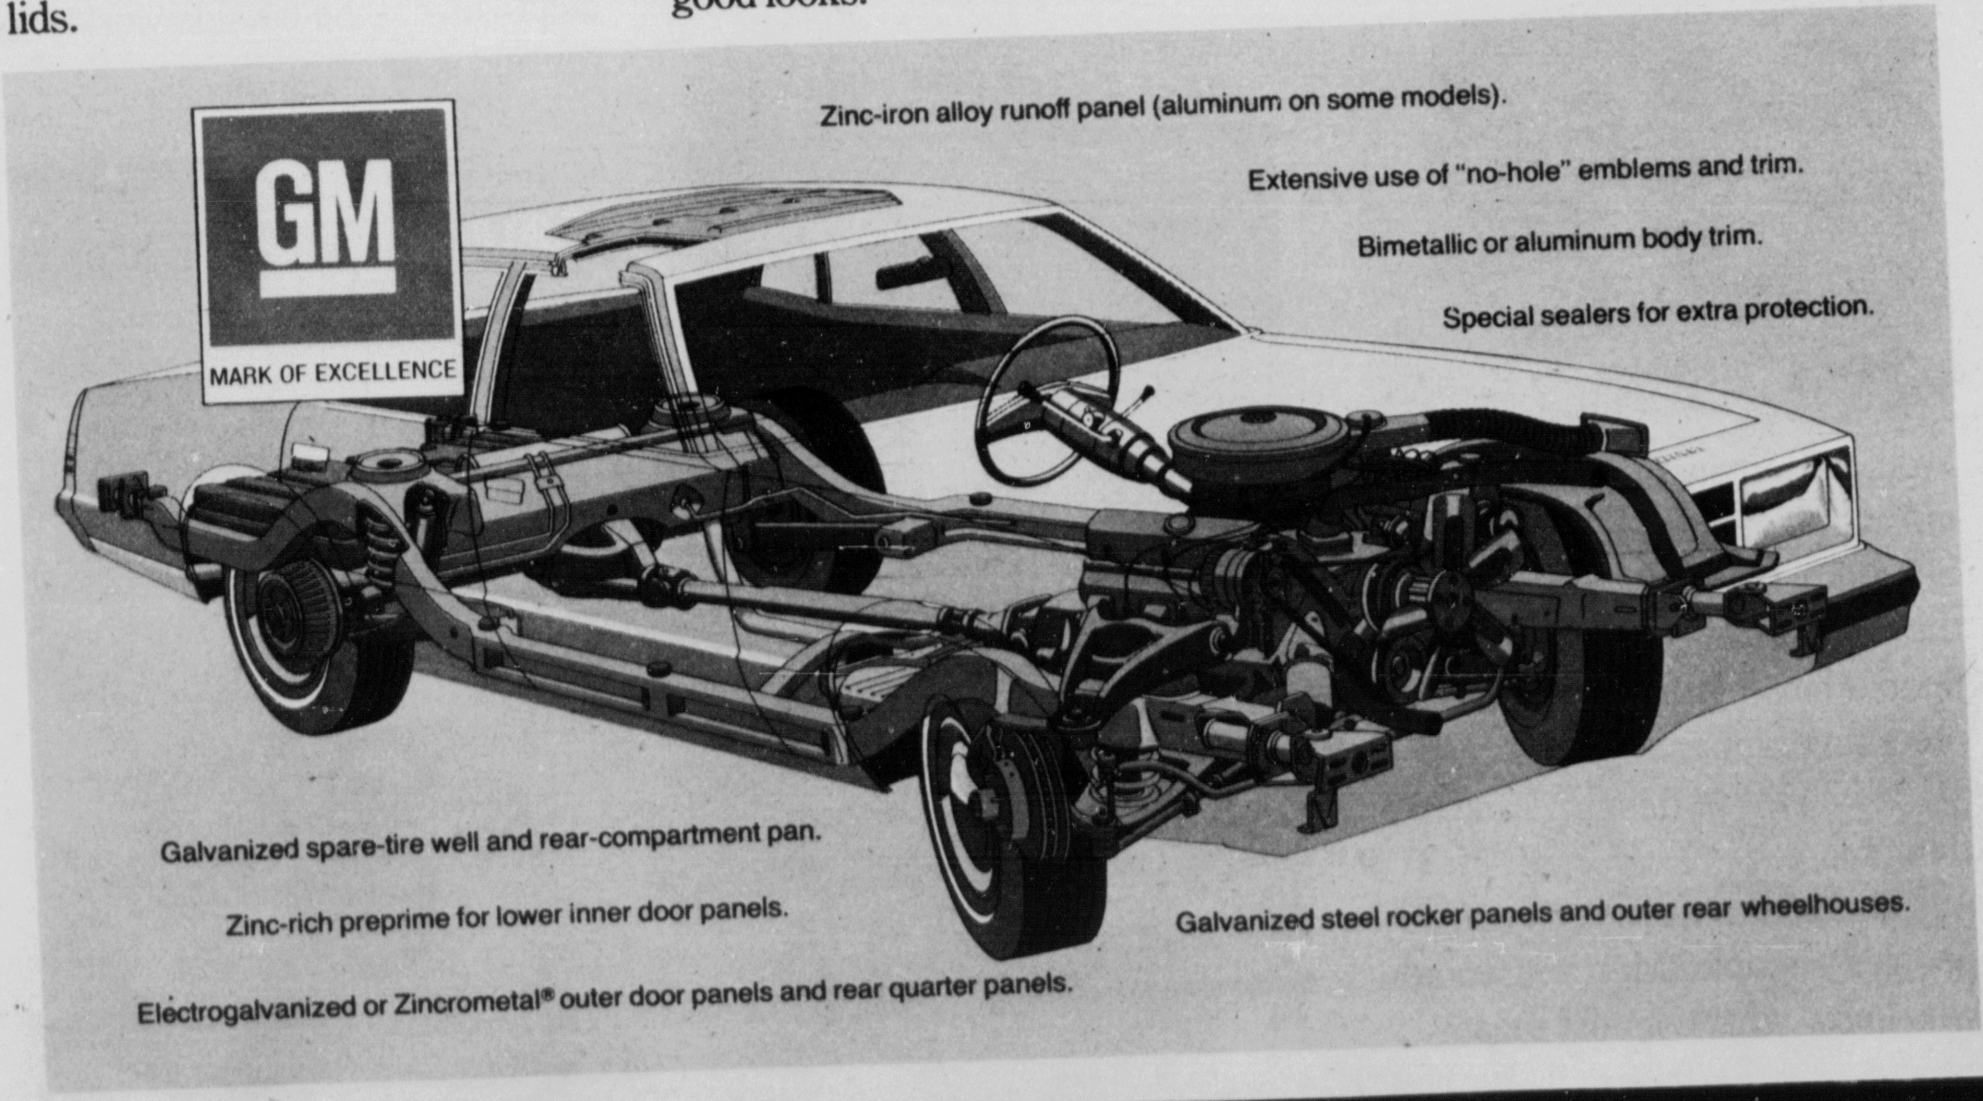
There are four ways General Motors went about making these cars quiet inside.

First, they were designed with a full-frame construction to help provide a solid foundation. There are also 14 specially tuned rubber mounts to help isolate the body from the road and the running gear.

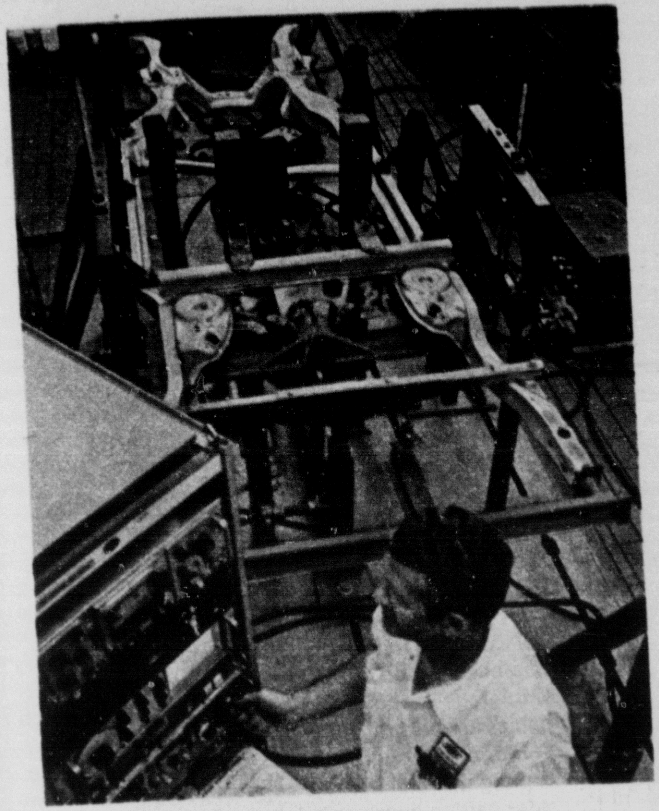
Second, we minimized noise "intrusion" in the passenger compartment with such things as super-soft foam door seals.

Third, we utilized noise-absorbing features like Body by Fisher's one-piece foam-backed carpets and headliners. They're contour-molded and cover like blankets.

And finally, we eliminated noise sources in a number of areas



GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE
Zinc-iron alloy runoff panel (aluminum on some models).
Extensive use of "no-hole" emblems and trim.
Bimetallic or aluminum body trim.
Special sealers for extra protection.
Galvanized spare-tire well and rear-compartment pan.
Zinc-rich preprime for lower inner door panels.
Galvanized steel rocker panels and outer rear wheelhouses.
Electrogalvanized or Zincrometal® outer door panels and rear quarter panels.



by using materials that don't squeak, and by beefing up and sealing the structure and trim where needed to help prevent rattles.

The result is a finished product you have to drive to believe.

New features, big and small.

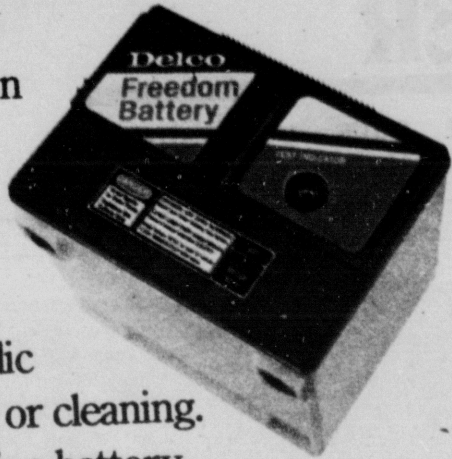
In stop-and-go traffic, a 3-speed blower passes outside air over the front seat to the rear passengers. At higher speeds, a ram-air system helps provide additional air flow.

For 1978, the headlight dimmer switch is integrated into the turn signal. There's a new split tailgate for wagons. There's a batch of optional equipment to choose from, including power rear vent windows on sedans and wagons. And, for the very first time in all of these cars, you get Delco's amazing Freedom® battery.



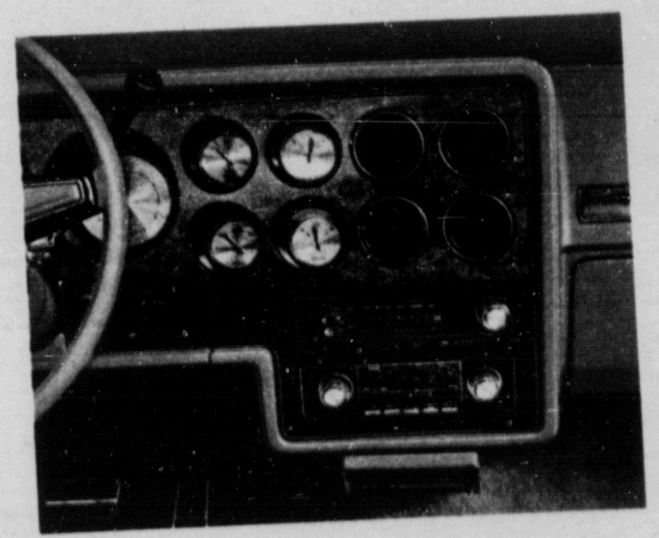
This reliable battery never needs refilling. Holds a charge longer than ordinary batteries. And requires no periodic checking or cleaning.

That's a battery.

Modular construction and serviceability.

We mentioned earlier that these new 1978 cars had a great deal of modular construction. What does that mean? Simply that many components are now constructed as a unit and can be replaced or removed for ease of service.

For example, many heater and air-conditioner components now share a single module. Your serviceman has this central location to go to if servicing is necessary.



In addition, a number of instrument-panel dials and gages are now removable from the front. Think how much effort that can save should you have to change a bulb, for example.

In all, these cars are spacious, quiet, secure, good-looking and built to stay that way.

We're proud of them and think you'd be, too.

A word about components.

Like all GM cars, these new 1978 mid-size models incorporate thousands of components produced by various GM divisions and other suppliers.

In order to meet public demand for particular models or equipment, federally mandated requirements for emissions, safety or fuel economy, or for other reasons, it may be necessary to produce these cars with different components, or differently sourced components, than initially scheduled.

All such components have been approved for use in these cars by General Motors, and will provide the quality performance associated with General Motors products.

DEALING WITH YOUR CHILD'S ANGER

By Sally Wenkos Olds

According to psychologist John B. Watson, who has been called the "father of modern behaviorism," rage is one of the three emotions with which babies are born. (The other two are love and fear.)

Parents, though, often have great difficulty accepting that children are capable of fury. They consider getting angry an adult privilege and insist that children bottle up their wrath. But present-day psychological thinking maintains it is healthier to acknowledge children's strong emotions than to pretend these emotions do not exist.

"I hate you!" 9-year-old Melanie shouts to her mother after being told she may not go out to play because she did not clean up her room as she had agreed to do. Melanie's mother could have said, "Don't you dare speak to me like that," denying the child's right to get angry. Instead, she said, "I know you're angry because you want to go out. But the rule is that rooms have to be cleaned before people go out to play."

Parents need to control children's behavior so that children do not hurt themselves or others and do not cause undue damage to property. Parents do not need to curb children's emotions. Indeed, they cannot. The anger is there. Suppressing its open admission merely drives it underground to surface in some other — perhaps more damaging — way.

Psychologist Dr. Alice Ginott, in her syndicated column, "Between Us," tells the story of 12-year-old Andy, who hated to lose to his father at backgammon. Usually Father reacted to the boy's anger at losing with a lecture, whose main points were, "It's only a game" and "Everyone loses sometimes." Andy would become even more upset, and what should have been an enjoyable activity left both father and son unhappy.

One night Father tried a new approach. "It must be tough to come so close to winning and then lose," he told Andy. "What a rotten break." Andy calmed down at this acknowledgment of his disappointment and frustration.

"When a child is upset, he's not receptive to reason," says Dr. Ginott. "What he needs are words that will diminish the anguish and help him save face. Andy's Dad provided such words."

The essential factor in this new approach was the acknowledgment that Andy's feelings are valid. Instead of criticizing the boy for being upset, babyish or a poor sport — none of those approaches would have alleviated his disappointment — Father displayed understanding of his son's feelings. Children appreciate such understanding.

The stormy feelings that parents often think of as negative are just as essential to children's emotional growth as the sunnier ones that are easier to accept. By helping children to face their feelings and to work through the situations that arouse them, parents can help them become more competent in dealing with life.

TECHNIQUES FOR MAKING FABULOUS GIFTS

Owl plaque of foam egg carton.

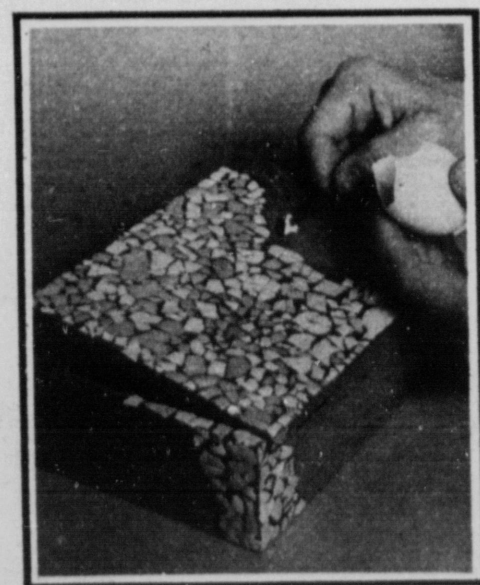
Artificial fruit made into jeweled artifacts.



Mosaic box created with egg shells.

The term "recycling" takes on a glamorous connotation with these handcrafted items that you can make and display with pride.

There's nothing more exciting and gratifying than turning something you would ordinarily throw away into a decorative or useful object. Here are some examples:

Masking tape and shoe polish can work wonders on any surface that would be enhanced by an old-world leather appearance, such as odd-shaped or chipped bowls, lamp bases and scratched table tops.

With a few snips of the scissors and some trimmings, you can create whimsical, decorative items from foam egg cartons — such as a pair of bunnies, an owl plaque or a bouquet of fantasy flowers.

Cracked egg shells can be used to give objects an attractive mosiac or crackle finish. They can be used to turn bottles into vases, for example.

Plastic fruit that once was so popular, as well as wastebaskets, jars and other throw-aways, can be transformed into elegant-looking works of art. All it takes is metallic gold paint, glue, a few "jewels" from the button box and FAMILY WEEKLY's instruction leaflet.

Here's how to order full-size patterns and instructions for crafting with masking tape, egg cartons, egg shells, plastic fruit and other odds and ends. Send $1 for each copy of Fabulous Gifts leaflet #302 to:

THE SECOND CHILDHOOD OF GEORGE SEGAL

A nervous breakdown nearly destroyed his marriage and his career, but now one of Hollywood's most versatile actors is enjoying life the way he did as a carefree kid.

The road to contentment and relaxation involved some rigorous self-scrutiny.

By Patricia Baum

Once upon a time, in Great Neck, N.Y., there lived a little boy who longed to be a movie star. He so idolized his tough-guy film heroes — especially Alan Ladd, with trenchcoat, .45 automatic, and Veronica Lake — that often he would skip school for the movies.

Today George Segal, 43, has certainly realized his dreams. One of Hollywood's most versatile, busy and sought-after talents, he bounces easily between comic parts, like the gun-toting husband in Fun with Dick and Jane, and dramatic roles, most recently as the inspector in Rollercoaster. A movie actor since the early 60's, Segal won his superstar badge a few years ago with A Touch of Class.

"Yes," Segal himself sums up, nodding his sandy-haired head, "I got everything the 9-year-old kid wanted. But for a long time it didn't add up to contentment."

After graduating from Haverford College, Segal grittily headed toward his goal. He started in an Off- Broadway theater selling orange drink, ushering and cleaning bathrooms. Then came a depressing period of "laying myself open to casting directors, who got their kicks in knocking me down. They fed on my misery."

Segal nabbed a few stage parts before landing a contract with Columbia Pictures. There he survived some early movie misfortunes to play two indelible roles: the wheeling-dealing POW corporal who sells rodents for food to his fellow prisoners in King Rat and the belligerent young professor in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Then director Sidney Lumet, who had seen him clowning on the Tonight show, asked him to display his comic talents in Bye Bye Braverman.

Since then, Segal has leaned toward the frothy roles because "they're the toughest. There's only one way to do them — the way that gets a laugh. And every joke must work or it throws off the whole film and everyone feels cheated." He isn't off-target too often, according to A Touch of Class director Melvin Frank, who hailed Segal as "the best light-comedy actor in the business."

Segal not only won success but got it on his terms as well. Beginning his movie career in the glamor days of Hollywood, Segal hardly projected the romantic image of his pretty-boy contemporaries like Troy Donahue, and studio executives pressured him to change his name (too ethnic), fix his broken nose and dye his hair. But Segal stuck by the name, nose and mane. He also stuck by his wife, Marion, even taking her and their two daughters, Elizabeth, 15, and Polly, 11, to his far-flung movie locations. Being a devoted family man and believing that "temperamental behavior is most undignified," Segal provided scant fodder for the hungry gossip columnists.

Despite his moral fiber and inner strength, Segal experienced a great deal of anxiety. "I could never relax," he says. "I would feel so guilty about the dry spells that even successful actors go through that I would constantly go around meeting with people to churn up business, even though the scripts were landing at my door anyhow. And when I was working, I was so busy worrying about the next project that I couldn't enjoy what I was doing at the time. I hated all that pushy behavior but didn't know how to stop it."

That behavior nearly stopped him. At about age 40 Segal underwent what he bluntly terms "a nervous breakdown or male menopause. Suddenly my whole life seemed irrelevant. My head was a nest of snakes, and I felt like firecrackers going off on the Fourth of July. I had absolutely no control over myself." His tensions exploded into highly erratic behavior. At one point, he was so miffed that Columbia had no posters up at the studio of his new film, The Blackbird, that he stormed into the president's office and kicked over plants.

Worse still, the crisis spilled over into his personal life, threatening to destroy his marriage. "I was impossible to live with," he remembers. "I would come home in a sweat and constantly lose my temper."

Thanks to his tolerant family, supportive friends and long spells of listening to music, Segal pulled through. And now, far from being a frenetic workaholic, he finds film-making "a total love-fest. I fall a little bit in love with all the people I work with. We help each other and have a ball."

Segal feels closer than ever to his goal of becoming "a relaxed participant — sitting with my legs up but my antenna tuned in." He claims he's well within reach of overcoming the few remaining obstacles to his inner peace. Meanwhile, he says grinning, "I haven't felt so good since I was a little kid playing cops and robbers." ■

"I like to smoke, and what I like is a cigarette that isn't timid on taste. But I'm not living in some ivory tower. I hear the things being said against high-tar smoking as well as the next guy.

"And so I started looking. For a low-tar smoke that had some honest-to-goodness cigarette taste.

"It wasn't easy. The low-tar cigarettes I tried tasted like chalk. And high-tar cigarettes were starting to taste rougher as I went along.

"Then I tried a pack of Vantage. It was smooth yet it had taste. And a lot less tar than what I'd been smoking.

"As far as I'm concerned, when I switched to Vantage, I changed to a cigarette I could enjoy."

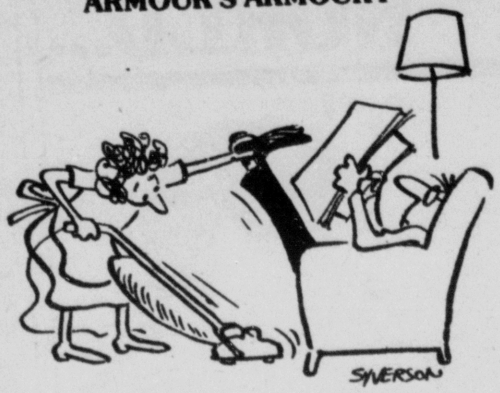
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



SWEEPING STATEMENT

She swept me off my feet, I say
Of one who is my wife today.
She swept me off my feet with smiles
And words and other winsome wiles.

But that was many years ago,
And things are not the same, you know.
Though still upon my feet a bit,
More often I'm inclined to sit.

So now my wife, who's still a wonder,
Says "Lift your feet" when she sweeps under.
—Richard Armour

"I hear the bank is looking for a cashier." "I thought they hired one a month ago." "He's the one they're looking for." —Conrad Fiorello

With one-dollar-a-gallon gas threatened, this country may be back on its feet sooner than anticipated. —Mrs. Rose Sands

From the back seat in the car pool: "Last night my wife poked me in the ribs and said, 'I can't sleep. I'm worried about Junior. I think he needs more discipline.' I said, 'More discipline? He isn't even using what he has.'" —Robert Orben

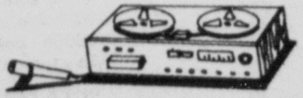
WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Abandoned Money

Considering how hard most people work for their money, it's amazing how much of it they abandon. An estimated $15 billion is lying unclaimed in banks and businesses throughout the country. These assets include dormant savings accounts, unclaimed insurance proceeds, unused gift certificates and uncashed dividend checks. "Most states have laws that make the state the custodian of money unclaimed by owners, but few have been very aggressive about going after these moneys," says Albert L. Beerman, a partner in the nationwide accounting firm of Alexander Grant & Co. To help remedy the situation, Beerman's firm is assisting more than a dozen states in tracking down the owners of these assets. When the owners can't be located, the states, as custodians, have the right to use the funds — a bonanza that amounted to $128 million last year in New York State. Beerman says a program to track down abandoned assets is a good investment — a well-designed search program can bring a 50-to-one return for each dollar invested by the states.

Books For The Blind



More than 52,000 students haven't let blindness or other handicaps stand between them and their educations; they've used taped textbooks from Recording for the Blind. Now in its 26th year, RFB is a national, nonprofit service which supplies free, recorded educational material anywhere in the country to the blind and those with other disabilities, such as MS or cerebral palsy. The RFB Master Tape Library currently contains more than 37,000 recorded texts and is being increased daily with the help of 4,000 trained volunteers across the country. Texts range from elementary to postgraduate level, and if RFB doesn't have a book, it will record it on request. RFB's Jan Sneed says that RFB needs more volunteers, particularly those qualified to read specialized college and graduate-level texts in engineering, electronics, computer science, medical sciences, business administration and statistics. If you're interested in volunteering, write: Jan Sneed, Recording for the Blind Inc., 215 E. 58th St., New York, N.Y. 10022. For further information about available recordings, write Mrs. Maureen Croon-Johnson at the same address.

Dumber By The Dozen?

It ain't necessarily so says a Brigham Young Univ. researcher to the "larger the family, the dumber the kids" theory popular in recent years. After studying the American College Testing (ACT) scores of 15,000 students at the Provo, Utah, university, Dr. Richard Galbraith, an asst. prof. of child development and family relations, says that academic achievement is unrelated to family size. Galbraith also takes issue with the notion that increasing the spacing between the births of children is beneficial to their intelligence level — if anything, Galbraith found a slight increase in performance with closer spacing. "The only factors that appear to influence the child's academic development," says Galbraith, "are their parents' level of academic achievement and the amount of stimulation in the home environment."

Mind Your Manners

"Manners can take you places that money won't," says Marjabelle Young Stewart, author of several books on etiquette who has taught the social graces to Presidents' children and Congressional wives. Her first pupil was her own daughter, Jacqueline, whom she prepared to attend embassy functions when the family lived in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Stewart's center of operations is now a Victorian house in Kewanee, Ill., but she still teaches youngsters to deal with situations ranging from tackling an artichoke to meeting royalty. Mrs. Stewart believes etiquette is needed now more than ever. "Some of the biggest readers of my boys' etiquette book are college students who sneak-read it as if it were Playboy. They're ready to learn manners when it becomes personally important with things like job interviews." Etiquette in Mrs. Stewart's book is more than party manners. Children learn to put away their clothes, take phone messages and behave in a locker room. But there are still doubting Thomases like the friend of her 9-year-old son, Billy, who remarked, "I can't believe people come to your house from all over just to learn how to cut meat."

Brushing Up On Tooth Care

Everyone knows how important it is to brush his teeth, but how many people know what kind of brush to use and how? Very few, according to a recent survey by the American Dental Association (ADA), which reported that almost 85% of those questioned had never been advised on brush selection by their dentists. Here are some tips from the ADA to give you a quick brushup.

- Use a soft bristle brush. It's most effective in removing plaque at the gumline and won't damage sensitive gum tissue. The brush should be small enough to reach every tooth and have a straight handle.
- Replace toothbrushes often. As soon as your brush shows signs of wear, get a new one. Brushes need to be replaced about four times a year, more often for children who tend to chew on the bristles.
- The most effective brushing method is the "back and forth scrub," which uses short back and forth strokes. Ask your dentist to demonstrate.
- Once a day is enough for adults who are no longer cavity-prone, but all others, particularly children, should brush after every meal. And, finally, don't forget flossing and regular checkups.

Jog Lag

Overexertion isn't the only kind of fatigue you have to worry about when exercising. Many a good jogging or other exercise program has been abandoned because of mental fatigue, the boredom that comes from letting exercise sessions settle into a predictable routine. "Most people have many false starts because they let exercising become tedious," says Benno Isaacs of the Health Insurance Institute. Isaacs says the best way to avoid boredom is to get a friend or family member to exercise with you. It also helps to change the scene — if you exercise at home, work out in different rooms; if outside, change the locale. Alternating your exercise program from day to day can help, but you should always start with the easiest ones. And too much of a good thing can be bad — overtiring yourself will only dampen your enthusiasm.

Quick Takes

The Eye Research Institute of Retina Foundation reports an eye-opening statistic: up to half of American women develop eye irritation and inflammation because of improper eye hygiene and use of eye cosmetics....There's nothing unusual about the scouts in Florida's Boy Scout Troop 66 and Girl Scout Troup 746 — at least when they're at their meetings. But when meetings are over and the scouts doff their uniforms, they don't put on anything else. The two scout troops, you see, meet at a nudist camp....American Family Physician magazine reports that men and women tend to respond differently to stress. Men are likely to deal with stress by either thinking the problem over or trying to forget it through sex, drinking or smoking. Women use other coping mechanisms, such as eating sweets and consuming soft drinks.

The High Life

Being high can be good for your health, at least when the high comes from living at 7,000 feet. After studying the mortality rate from heart disease of a group of New Mexico residents, Dr. Edward A. Mortimer Jr. says that men living high in the mountains are less likely to die from heart attacks than those living closer to sea level. Dr. Mortimer, a professor of community health at Cleveland's Case Western Reserve Univ., says: "We think that you never completely adjust to living at a high altitude where the air is thinner, and therefore whatever you do — walking around, doing chores — is harder physical work to the heart."
